THE COTTON ACREAGE

Outlook for Only Moderate Increase, If Any.

HEAVY SALES OF FERTILIZERS

South to Try to Keep Production Within Bounds—Other Crops Enlarged.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JACKSON, Miss., March 22.—"Will the South extend her cotton area this season?" I asked an old farmer the other day.

His reply was brief and to the point: "Not if the South knows herself." The adjuration which he added was only meant for emphasis and need not be recorded.

Hitherto, it must be admitted, the South has not always known herself, but she is beginning to acquire this all-important knowledge. In the past her farmers have given all their time and effort to the production of a world crop, and have permitted outsiders to enrich themselves at her expense, through study of the world's markets. She has been content to allow others to place such value as they chose upon her products, to control its demand in outside markets; even through hired agents to put any estimate they chose on the extent of its yield before it is harvested. Meanwhile, for lack of knowledge she has been unable to protect her own interests, to save herself from loss, to the verge of impoverishment, year after year.

But the South has been learning the lesson of her own error during the last few years. Give her a little more time and she will surely know herself.

The fact that the cotton crop of the Southern States has sold during the years 1901 to 1905 inclusive for $1,200,000,000 more than the crop of the preceding five years brought, is convincing proof—if any were needed—of the hard money value of increasing knowledge. And these greatly enhanced receipts have been for the cotton in its crude form only. I have taken no account whatever of the increased return from the product that has resulted from its manufacture on our own soil, from the building of Southern factories that by transforming the lint into cloth, increase its value from fifty to a hundredfold!

COTTON AREA FOR 1906.

Any one may ask what may be the probable cotton area planted in 1906, and any one may guess at a reply. But anything like a definite estimate at this time is as wild a guess as the counting of chickens before the eggs from which they are to come are yet laid. Only the great army of cotton raisers throughout the enormous area of the belt can reply to the question, and even they cannot solve the problem for themselves and the world for fifty days yet to come, at least.

I know that cotton brokers are sending out "preliminary" acreage reports even now, but that these are as misleading as they well can be every one on the ground knows. For even supposing that these firms had an active, trained observer in every one of the thousand and more counties of the cotton States, and supposing that such observers were able to take notes on even a part of the farms in each county, all these could only record at this date that such a percentage of the land was being plowed. Have they any occult method of divining whether the land is being plowed for cotton or other crop? One of these reports lies now before me, which asserts a 17 per cent. increase in cotton area in Texas. Now in that State the dreaded boll weevil, favored by the mild Winter, has already given numerous tokens of his extended presence, and State and county authorities in some of the worst-infected localities are offering to pay farmers for allowing their cotton land to lie fallow or to plant in other crops. Is a larger cotton area likely in these conditions? In the same report a 10 per cent. increase is given for Tennessee; obviously a mere conjecture. For it is safe to say that, as far north as that State, working the cotton land had not even been begun at the date when this report was issued.

Corn land at the South is plowed much earlier, as a rule, than the cotton fields. It is fertilized more heavily—cotton serving to some extent as a fertilizer for itself—and it is always planted from two to four weeks earlier. Admitting the truth of the estimates of early and large purchases of fertilizers this year, the Southern farmer deduces from this the conclusion, not of an increase of cotton acreage, but that much more corn than usual will be grown this year.

CORN ACREAGE INCREASED.

Besides my own observations, I have the opinions of native Southern farmers and of dealers in fertilizers to sustain my conviction that evidences up to this date—as to preparation and increased fertilization of land—point rather to the increased acreage of corn than of cotton this season. A member of a Jackson fertilizer firm, which does business on a larger scale perhaps than any other in the State, assured me that up to March 12 the fertilizer sales had been fully 30 per cent. heavier than at the same date last year. "Much of this increase of business," he said, "must be ascribed to the more favorable weather. This season is unusually early, while the season last year was late. We sold almost no stuff in 1905 before March 1; this year an enormous amount was called for in February. The demand for fertilizers, which is increasing largely from year to year, is a most convincing proof, not only of improved methods of farming, but of augmented general prosperity. Ten years ago there were only three plants for the manufacture of fertilizer in Mississippi; to-day there are twenty."

If the farmers of the South do plant an increased acreage this year, it will not be for lack of better advice. The leading newspapers and the Cotton Association bulletins are all doing their duty in urging upon the people a more prudent course. Every one who knows anything of agricultural conditions at the South knows that too much cotton is raised there and too little of other things. It does not pay to raise cotton by the millions of bales, and at the same time pay freight on corn, meat, and potatoes from the North. This is what the Southern farmer has been doing ever since the war, and he knows well how little profit there has been in it for him.

Now it is up to him (in slang phrase) to listen to the Cotton Association, whose watchword is, "Diversify! Diversify!" Let the farmer plant more land in food supply crops and less land in cotton. Let him make his farm feed him, and hold such cotton as he raises for luxuries. Those farmers who have followed this wise course for several years are independent of fluctuating markets to-day. And wherever they have opportunity to make their voice heard they are urging their brother farmers to follow their example.

TWO NEGLECTED PORTS.

The Department of Commerce and Labor issued last week a revised map of the world's transportation routes to accompany the monograph published last November, entitled "Transportation Routes and Systems of the World." The occasion for the revision was the fact that in the original map the Government neglected to note the lines running out of several of our own ports on the Pacific Coast, including Tacoma and Seattle. The fact that these ports were overlooked in the original drawing of the map was commented on the past week as an indication of the country's neglect of the opportunity for extensive commerce afforded by those ports which, however, is little profited by, at least so far as trade with the Far East is concerned.

Some of those who commented on the Government's omission in preparing the transportation map suggested that possibly the Department of Commerce and Labor had been listening to James J. Hill's oft-repeated assertion that he has grown tired of speaking about our trade with the Far East, for the reason that we have no Far Eastern trade, and accepted his statement literally. It would seem, though, that, with all due respect to Mr. Hill, the Government ought not to have ignored completely Seattle's and Tacoma's claims to a place among the country's ports.

WHERE TO SPEND THE SUMMER
Long Island
"Where Cooling Breezes Blow."

The ideal territory for a Summer Home. 250 miles of coast line on ocean, Sound and bays. Trending east and west, it is cooled during the Summer by the south winds direct from the ocean.

Unexcelled surf and still water bathing, boating, driving, etc. Long Island, with its unbounded natural advantages, is without equal as a location for a Summer or Permanent Home—a land of real home life; 3964 dwellings erected on Long Island during calendar year 1905.

A new booklet, "Long Island Summer Resorts" for 1906, containing a list of hotels and boarding houses; also a list containing real estate agents who have cottages to rent, free on application at L. I. R.R. ticket offices—120 Broadway, 95 and 263 Fifth Ave., 618 Sixth Ave., 574 Columbus Ave. and 51 West 125th St., N. Y. FLORAL PARK.
20 Minutes From Broadway,
On completion of the Penn. R. R. Subway.
Lot $300. $10 Down & $5 Monthly

With improvements, running water, etc.; no interest or taxes for one year. Title guaranteed. This is without a doubt the most beautiful and attractive piece of property and investment that was ever placed on the market before. Everybody knows John L. Childs, the seed and flower raiser; this property adjoins his handsome estate; it is also right at the depot and trolley. Floral Park has the best railroad service on Long Island, owing to four branch roads running through it. These lots are as good as 100 per cent. investment and could not be bought for less than that in a year from now, and a beautiful home site for any one wishing to build. All the new Penn. R. R. tunnels and improvements go straight to this property. For free tickets, booklets, etc., apply to

STOP PAYING RENT!
Make Your Rent Buy You a Home!!

Count up your back rent receipts; estimate the amount of money paid out the past few years—say, the last five; estimate the amount likely to be paid out in the next five years; then sit back and reflect how prudently you have invested so much money in "rent receipts," and what they are worth TO-DAY. If instead of "paying tribute" to a landlord, you had made these payments against certain desirable property, which is growing in value day by day, and on which is built a home, how much more pleasant would the retrospect and prospect be?

Take heed now and let the future take care of itself.

Get out of the rent-paying rut! Get into the home-owner class! In a word, "get busy," and begin banking against the future in the safest and most profitable of securities—Greater New York Real Estate.

Come in and ask for references. Ask us about others who stopped paying rent, and who now mark down a monthly payment of possession.

Come in and talk it over, or write us, and we will send you a representative who will be able to meet the limitations of any worker's income, no matter how large or small.

Follow the example of the Astors, the Gerrys, the Goelets, &c., and lay the foundation of future wealth, ease, and happiness.

CUNNINGHAM, MARY J.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to Michael Cunningham, if alive, or if dead, to his heirs and next of kin, being heirs and next of kin of MARY J. CUNNINGHAM, late of the County of New York, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, a decree was duly entered in the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, on the 11th day of September, 1905, admitting to probate the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, bearing date the 18th day of May, 1905, as her will of real and personal property; now, therefore, pursuant to an order made and entered in the Surrogates' Court of the County of New York on the 13th day of February, 1906, you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at this office in the County of New York on the 13th day of April, one thousand nine hundred and six, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said will, and show cause, if any you have, why the said decree heretofore made and entered herein on the 11th day of September, 1905, admitting to probate the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, bearing date the 18th day of May, 1905, as her will of real and personal property, should not be confirmed and ratified and why the said instrument probated as aforesaid should not be allowed to remain as the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, late of the County of New York, deceased.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Frank T. Fitzgerald, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 16th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six. [L. S.]

Blech, William Blech, George Blech, Mary Lucy Blech, Edward Blech, Mary Kummerfeld, Johannes Blech, Lucy Hadeler, Edward Sparnicht, Julia Frey, William Schutt, N. Henry W. Schutt, William Frey, Johanne Frey, Henry Frey, and to all persons interested in the estate of HENRY FREY, late of the County of New York, deceased, as creditors, legatees, next of kin, or otherwise, send greeting:

You and each of you are hereby cited and required personally to be and appear before our Surrogate of the County of New York, at the Surrogates' Court of said County, held at the County Court House in the County of New York, on the 3d day of April, 1906, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend a judicial settlement of the account of proceedings of Rudolph F. Rabe and N. Henry W. Schutt as executors of the last will and testament of said deceased; and such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Frank T. Fitzgerald, a Surrogate of our said County, at the County of New York, the 9th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six. [L. S.]

POHLMAN, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, John P. Schuchman of the City of New York has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Charles H., otherwise Christian H. Pohlman, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 16th day of April, one thousand nine hundred and six, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years, are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Frank T. Fitzgerald, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 21st day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six. [Seal.]

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—FLORENCE E. VAN FLEET, plaintiff, against PATRICK GARRY and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 6th day of June, 1902, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesrooms, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 3d day of April, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by James L. Wells, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

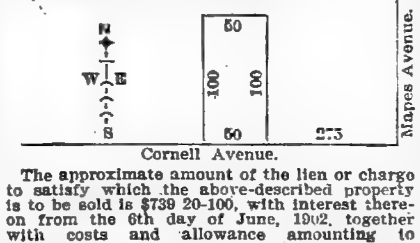
All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, with the building and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City, County, and State of New York, (and formerly in the Town of Westchester,) known and designated by the numbers (237) two hundred and thirty-seven and (238) two hundred and thirty-eight, on a map entitled "Map of Building Lots Belonging to William A. Mapes and Henry C. Mapes," near Westchester Village, Westchester County, N. Y., made by Garret J. Byrne, surveyor, dated October 1st, 1872, and filed in the office of the Register of said County of Westchester, November 16th, 1872, which said lots, taken together, according to said map, are bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Cornell Avenue distant westerly two hundred and seventy-five (275) feet from the northwesterly corner of Cornell Avenue and Mapes Avenue, running thence northerly on a line parallel with Mapes Avenue one hundred (100) feet; thence westerly on a line parallel with Cornell Avenue fifty (50) feet; thence southerly and again on a line parallel with Mapes Avenue one hundred (100) feet to the northerly side of Cornell Avenue, and thence easterly along said side of Cornell Avenue fifty (50) feet to the point or place of beginning, be the said several dimensions and distances more or less.

Dated New York, March 8th, 1906.

FRANK SCHAEFFLER, Referee.
CHALMERS WOOD, Attorney for Plaintiff, 52 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold. It has no street number:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $739 20-100, with interest thereon from the 6th day of June, 1902, together with costs and allowance amounting to $109 79-100 and interest from June 6th, 1902, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $12 and interest.

Dated New York, 8th day of March, 1906.

FRANK SCHAEFFLER, Referee.

WIGWAM COMMITTEE AGAIN HAS SHEEHAN

Other Interesting Changes Given Out by President Cram.

NIXON IS A VICE CHAIRMAN

Cockran Chairman of the Committee Which Will Watch Affairs at Albany for Tammany.

Tammany's standing committees for the current year were announced last night by J. Sergeant Cram, President of the General Committee for New York County. Many interesting changes have been made.

John C. Sheehan returns to membership in the Executive Committee for the first time in six years, having been appointed Vice Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions to succeed Thomas C. O'Sullivan, now Judge of the Court of General Sessions. Under the rules of the organization the Chairman and Vice Chairman of the standing committees are members of the Executive Committee, but without votes in that body. W. Bourke Cockran becomes Chairman of the newly constituted Committee on Legislation, which will watch affairs at Albany. Lewis Nixon is Vice Chairman of this committee, so he, too, like John C. Sheehan, an old leader of the Wigwam, returns to the Executive Committee. The other members of the Committee on Legislation are William S. Andrews, John Fox, Randolph Guggenheimer, Charles H. Knox, and Charles A. Towne.

Senator Thomas F. Grady again is Chairman of the Resolutions Committee, of which Mr. Sheehan is Vice Chairman. The only new member of this committee, besides Mr. Sheehan, is ex-Register J. H. J. Ronner of the Bronx. The old members, reappointed, are: William P. Burr, Oliver H. P. Belmont, W. Bourke Cockran, George C. Clausen, H. B. De Voe, Samuel J. Foley, Randolph Guggenheimer, Ferdinand Levy, Lewis Nixon, Dr. William J. O'Sullivan, Nathan Strauss, Jerome Siegel, Charles A. Towne, Edward G. Whitaker, Eugene T. Yuells, and E. A. Crowninchield.

M. Warley Platzek becomes Chairman of the Committee on Election Officers as the successor to ex-Senator George W. Plunkitt, who last Fall lost the leadership of the Fifteenth Assembly District to The McManus. George E. Best retains his vice-chairmanship of the committee. The other members include John P. Corrigan, Martin Geizler, and F. J. Sullivan, reappointed, with Henry Wolff as new member succeeding ex-Alderman James E. Gaffney.

On the Committee on Printing Charles G. F. Wahle, President of the Board of City Magistrates, continues as Chairman, while Antonio Zucca becomes Vice Chairman to succeed William Pitt Mitchell, who, however, retains a membership on the committee. The other members, all reappointed, are: Stephen A. Ferguson, Willis Holly, Thomas M. Lynch, Peter F. Meyer, John F. Murray, and Joseph P. Day. Thomas C. T. Crain continues as Chairman of the Committee on Public Meetings, but Maurice B. Blumenthal, who has been Vice Chairman for many years, gives way to William F. Grell. The other members, all reappointed, are: Champe S. Andrews, J. G. Britt, Charles L. Guy, John P. Schuchman, and William P. Schmitt.

John T. Oakley, who for years has been Vice Chairman of the Committee on Rules, becomes its Chairman, to succeed Senator Grady, while Daniel F. Cohalan becomes Vice Chairman. The other members are John V. Coggey, Samuel J. Foley, Michael J. Garvin, Timothy P. Sullivan, and Thomas E. Rush, all reappointed. The Law Committee retains Charles H. Knox as Chairman and Col. Asa Bird Gardiner as Vice Chairman. There are two new members, Benjamin L. Brandner of the Eighteenth District and Edward Mandel of the Twelfth District. The members reappointed are Franklin Bartlett, Philip J. Brett, Edward Browne, John J. Brady, Arthur C. Butts, Thomas F. Byrne, Daniel F. Cohalan, Thomas W. Churchill, Benton W. Crisp, Morris Kukor, Charles W. Dayton, John J. Delany, John T. Dooling, Robert E. Deyo, John J. Freschi, James W. Gerard, Charles Goeller, Edward H. Hawke, Jr., Frederick B. House, Edward B. La Fetra, Warren Leslie, Abraham Levy, Walter S. Logan, Robert L. Luce, Wauhope Lynn, John F. McIntyre, William B. McNulty, Jacob Marks, Rollin M. Morgan, R. Burnham Moffatt, Joseph F. Mulqueen, M. Warley Paltzey, William Hepburn Russell, William H. Steinkamp, William E. Stillings, Edward Swann, Henry W. Unger, George M. Van Hoesen, and Robert A. Van Wyck.

Fire Chief's Son Attempts Suicide.

James Brady, the 19 year old son of a former Fire Chief of Bayonne, had a quarrel with his mother yesterday at their home, 125 East Fifth Street, and going to his room shot himself in the abdomen. His sister found him on the floor with his clothing afire, having been ignited by the powder. Brady was taken to the Bayonne Hospital in a serious condition.

CAPT. TAPPEN'S WOES.

Poolroom Keeper Defies Him, and His Men Can't Get In.

Shaking his gray head, Capt. John Tappen of the East 104th Street Police Station told the reporters a sorrowful story last night about a poolroom that has not only proved impregnable hitherto, but whose proprietor now defies the police.

"Yes, boys," said Capt. Tappen, "the rascal sent me word Saturday that he had been running his poolroom three years right straight along, and he would run it three years longer if he wanted to. And he'll want to, you can bank on that.

"It's in a little two-story brick building in East 108th Street. You know it. The poolroom is on the second floor, and there is but one entrance, and that guarded by the finest poolroom doorkeeper that ever drew the breath of life.

"I sent for the proprietor Saturday. He sent back that message I have just told you. I'm up against it. When Capt. Cruise left here six months ago he told me about that place. He had tried to handle it, but failed. Headquarters were appealed to, men werent sent up in disguise, and all sorts of plans were made to get into the place. That doorkeeper wouldn't admit anybody but safe men. He knows every customer of the place. The proprietor is powerfully connected. His brother was not long ago a Detective Sergeant.

"None of my men seemed to be able to get into the place, and so about three weeks ago I stationed policemen and the patrol wagon outside the poolroom for several days. Then complaints were sent in, apparently by the residents thereabouts, asking that the policemen be taken away, as it looked bad for the neighborhood.

"Now I call on this fellow to stop. He practically tels me to go to the dickens. I have worried about that place for six months. I am afraid of being brought up on charges every week. But my men don't seem to be able to get any evidence, nor do the Headquarters men. I dream about that miserable two-story building. I confess that I don't know any more than a child what I'm to do about it. It's tough."

M. ORLENEFF HAD $7,000.

But Goes Back to Jail When Magistrate Wouldn't Take Cash Bail.

In the Tombs Police Court yesterday morning Paul Orleneff, the Russian actor, was arraigned before Magistrate Wahle on the complaint of Joseph Goldstein of 13 West Fourth Street, who said that he had paid Orleneff $1,500 as security for the faithful discharge of his duties as treasurer of the Orleneff Company, and that he had been unable to recover it. There was no examination, Magistrate Wahle adjourning the hearing until this morning, holding Orleneff in $2,500 bail.

Orleneff was arrested on Saturday evening at the Grand Central Station, on his arrival from Boston with the members of his company. When he was taken to the Tombs Police Court yesterday morning he found a dozen members of his company awaiting him.

When Magistrate Wahle said he would let Orleneff go on $2,500 bail, the actor pulled out a wad of bills, which he told the Magistrate amounted to $7,000, and offered to leave $2,500 as a guarantee for his appearance. The Magistrate explained that it was impossible for him to accept the cash bail, as the City Chamberlain's office was closed, but suggested that he send for a bondsman, or get some one to put up some real estate. But Orleneff said:

"No, if I cannot put the money up myself I would sooner go to jail until to-morrow, and then have the chance of suing the complainant for false imprisonment."

The actor then went back to his cell in the Tombs, where he said that Goldstein had never paid him $1,500, and that, on the contrary, he himself had paid Goldstein nearly $1,000 as salary at $30 a week.

MIX ANARCHY AND BEER.

Bronx Reds Cheer Fiery Speeches and a Sanguinary Play.

Some 500 Anarchists—men, women, and children, connected with the organization whose name translated appears to be Free State Society—assembled yesterday afternoon in the Bronx Casino, 2,994 Third Avenue, heard speeches, listened to soul-stirring music, saw a really shivering play in four acts, and kept seven bartenders busy serving beer.

The meeting was partly for the purpose of bringing together the Bronx Anarchists for the strengthening of their souls and partly to urge them to atend the mass meeting to-night at Terrace Garden, where the recent Idoaho mining troubles will be discussed. The money raised went toward a fund that is being raised to educate the two children of the late Johann Most.

President Henry Schneider made a speech, for which he was long and loudly applauded. Then sixty members of the Free State Society sang "Liberty." After that August Lott spoke for nearly an hour.

Following that came the presentation by local talent of the four-act play, "The Nihilist." It was written by August Spies before he was hanged in Chicago some years ago with several others of his kind. If all the persons that were theatrically killed in the drama had been really put out of the way it would have required a small graveyard to accommodate the corpses. Each act yielded a bountiful harvest of dead.

This drama dealt in general with such scenes as have recently been enacted in Russia. Plotting and bombs and murders of all kinds were thick. The drama came to a climax with a truthful representation of a dynamite explosion. This was wildly applauded by the audience, which felt it necessary more than once to rise and voice its approval.

PALISADES BILLS DELAYED.

Their Friends Made Anxious by Failure to Report Them.

Patriotic societies and friends of the bills designed to protect the beauty of the Hudson by taking the upper Palisades and a part of the Highlands out of the hands of the quarrymen are trying to discover why these important measures are held up in committee. The failure of the Senate Committee on Finance to report the Carpenter bill last Tuesday, and of the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means to report the Wainwright bill, has not destroyed all hope of these measures coming before the Legislature, but it has strengthened the conviction of its advocates that influences are at work in the opposition which have little to do with the merits of the proposed bills.

Benjamin B. Odell, while Governor, vetoed a bill similar to that of Senator Carpenter, which provides for the extension of the Palisades Park to Stony Point. The failure to report the Carpenter bill is now ascribed to the unwillingness of Senator Malby to oppose Mr. Odell's wishes. Mr. Odell is an intimate friend of the leader among the quarrymen who are opposing the bill because it will close their trap-rock quarries, which are now cutting away the face of Hook Mountain, near Nyack.

With Senator Malby against the Carpenter bill are Senators Raines, Grady, and Allds.

It is frankly admitted at Albany that, once out of committee, either the Carpenter bill or the Wainwright bill would have every chance of passage, supported as they are by widespread public sentiment.

DEPOSIT BOX RIFLED, SAYS MRS. STEPHENS

The Banker's Widow Declares She Was Robbed of $75,000.

HER ALLEGATIONS SCOUTED

Her Former Counsel Doesn't Think She Lost $25,000 in Cash and $50,000 Worth of Jewelry.

Mrs. William Austin Stephens, widow of a banker formerly associated with R. Fulton and W. Bayard Cutting, offers a reward of $25,000 for the recovery of twenty-five one-thousand-dollar bills and $50,000 worth of jewelry which she says have been stolen from her safety-deposit box in the vault of the National Safe Deposit Company. Mrs. Stephens lives at the Hotel Netherland.

Mrs. Stephens alleges that the money and jewels disappeared from her safety-deposit box some time between May, 1904, and February, 1906. She has engaged Henry Smith of 243 West Ninety-ninth Street as her attorney, declaring that she will sue the National Safe Deposit Company, but Mr. Smith said yesterday that so far he had received no instructions to proceed with a suit.

Thomas C. Ennever was the only person having access to the vault besides Mrs. Stephens. He was her attorney, and had the box opened last month, when he received an urgent telegram from California asking that he send Mrs. Stephens $10,000 immediately. The telegram informed him that the key to the box was in the storage warehouse, but did not tell him what warehouse. His instructions, he says, were to sell a number of New York Central bonds he would find in the box. He had power of attorney, and on presentation of the papers and telegrams the deposit company had the deposit box forced.

Mr. Ennever said yesterday that he advised a loan being raised on the bonds instead of their sale, but Mrs. Stephens said to sell them. He sold them, and then got a telegram telling him not to sell them. He bought them back and replaced them in the deposit box. There was no money and no $50,000 worth of jewels that he knew of in the box.

"I believe that Mrs. Stephens has lost neither money nor jewels," said Mr. Enneyer yesterday. "I understand that she had some trouble several years ago with a servant whom she charged with stealing jewels from her, but who was never prosecuted. She also had some trouble with a clerk in a law firm which formerly attended to her business. She gave him a scarfpin, which she afterward accused him of stealing."

Mrs. Stephens does not make the slightest imputation against Mr. Ennever, and Mr. Smith, her present lawyer, said yesterday that it could not be suggested that Mr. Ennever knew anything of the lost money and jewels.

"Mr. Ennever," he declared, "is of such high character and reputation that Recorder Smyth used to send him important cases as referee, although he did not know him personally. He knew his reputation for ability and integrity."

Mr. Smith was asked if thorough investigation had been made of the details of the forcing of the deposit box. He said that it had and that the locksmith employed could not have removed anything from it without Mr. Ennever knowing it. Mr. Ennever also had a witness present when the box was opened.

"Is it not probable that Mrs. Stephens misplaced her cash and jewels?" Mr. Smith was asked.

"Women frequently get excited and imagine things," he replied. "I had a friend refer me to-day to an article on this subject printed recently in one of the magazines."

"Can you explain why Mrs. Stephens wanted $10,000 forwarded her in such haste?" he was asked.

"I can," he replied, "but it would be a violation of the confidence between client and lawyer."

Mrs. Stephens is said to have been in California in connection with heavy mining investments which she has made. In her telegram to Mr. Ennever asking for the large sum of money she said that she had been hurt in an accident, but not seriously.

Mrs. Stephens came East from California about March 8, and went to the National Safe Deposit Company's Building. She opened her deposit box and fainted. When she came to she declared that she had had in the box $25,000 in one-thousand-dollar bills and $50,000 worth of jewelry. She declared, it is said, that the loss must have occurred before Mr. Ennever opened the vault. She exonerates him.

Mr. Ennever says that Mrs. Stephens had two safe-deposit boxes. One she used for her will and a deed to a cemetery plot and the other for her securities. When she first rented these, he declares, she wanted to have only one box and have it in both of their names, in case anything should happen to her. He objected to this and had her rent two, the one containing her securities being in their joint names, but only one key being issued and the key given to her.

"Mrs. Stephens asserts," said Mr. Ennever, "that the money was in twenty-five one-thousand-dollar bills and that she put them in an envelope, marked the envelope, and placed it in the box with the jewels and the papers. I am sure that she must be mistaken, and it is certainly unlikely that any ordinary person would take that sum of money and tie it up where it would be beyond all earning power."

Mrs. Stephens is wealthy, and among business men who were friends of her husband and who are her friends now is recognized as a truthful woman, but the loss of the money and jewels she alleges, and now offers a big reward for the return of, it is believed, may, after all, turn out to be a mistake.

Mrs. Stephens left the Netherland yesterday morning, saying that she was going to visit friends in Brooklyn and that she would not return that night. Her maid did not know where she had gone or when she would return.

The possibility of a suit against the National Safe Deposit Company is based by Mrs. Stephens on her allegation that the company had no right to allow her vault to be opened. Against this is the written authority Mr. Ennever holds and the power of attorney forwarded him when she was in California. She declared that she did not want the box opened if the money could be obtained otherwise. She had in the box a certificate of deposit for $25,000, issued by the United States Trust Company, and she declares that it was her desire to have her lawyer get the money by having the bank's books and the record of this deposit used as evidence of her credit without having the vault disturbed.

The officials of the National Safe Deposit Company have made a complete investigation of every detail of the claim of Mrs. Stephens, and declare that it was a physical impossibility for the alleged theft to have occurred.

NEGRO PASTOR ATTACKS TENDERLOIN'S "CLUBS"

Says They Are Merely Disorderly Drinking Resorts.

VAIN APPEALS TO POLICE

Volunteers Will Now Try to Get Evidence and Shut Them—No Sympathy for Spriggs.

The Spriggs case has aroused many respectable negroes of Manhattan to make war on the negro dives in the Tenderloin which pose as "clubs." They are held to bring reproach and harm on the negro race in the city, and in seeking to suppress them the opponents are actuated, they say, by motives of self-defense.

The enemies of the so-called clubs have already formulated plans, according to which they hope to close them. Having appealed in vain to all the proper authorities, these negroes say, they now plan to send out volunteers to gather evidence against the clubs, which will be presented to the police and other city officials in such shape as to compel action.

"The Terrible Tenderloin" was the title of a speech delivered yesterday afternoon in the negro branch of the Y. M. C. A., at 252 West Fifty-third Street, to some 250 young negroes by the Rev. Dr. C. S. Morris, pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church, 244 West Fortieth Stret. He attacked the negro clubs and the police. Referring to the Spriggs case and the revelations about white slaves, the Rev. Dr. Morris said:

"I'm glad these things have come out, and I'm glad that it was a negro woman who brought them to light. For you must know that it was a negro missionary worker who went to the District Attorney's office and told of those awful things and pointed out how some blow might be struck at the enormous iniquities of the Tenderloin.

"Respectable negroes have no sympathy for Spriggs. If that jury had been made up of us negroes, it wouldn't have taken it eleven minutes to decide that the prisoner was guilty. No man in many years has so embittered the public against the negroes in this city.

"Having the example of Spriggs before you, I want to talk to you about these negro clubs. The Tenderloin is thick with them, and that one institution does more damage to the negroes of this city than any other one thing. [Cries of "That's so!" "Hear him!" "Amen!"]

"These clubs have been in league with the police. I have been struggling to put at least some of them out of business for more than a year. They are increasing all the time. I have gone to the Police Commissioner. I have presented facts to the District Attorney. I have pleaded with Police Captains. I could get nothing done. But now that this Spriggs case has aroused public sentiment somewhat, maybe we can seize this opportunity and shut these dens of iniquity.

"Let me give you one example. One Saturday night three weeks ago I sent some of my workers to a place in West Thirty-seventh Street and to another right across the street. I had heard of white saloon keepers allowing preachers to conduct little services in their places, and so I thought my workers might be allowed at least to go into these two places to invite those boys and girls to the revival meeting that was being held at my church.

"What happened? They were put out of both places when their mission was discovered. They then decided to stand midway between the two places and sing some old-time hymns which those inside might have heard in their homes. The workers thought that might do some good. Presently they were locked up in the West Thirty-seventh Street Station as disorderly persons. We think that the club proprietors had them arrested.

"I was aroused from a sick bed to try to bail out those young men who had been singing hymns. I found it a hard task. I asked the Police Captain at the station why he didn't raid those places. I told him that in the back rooms all sorts of liquor was being sold, and that the places were crowded, although it was then long after midnight. He said his men couldn't get evidence.

"Then I went to both the clubs. I saw liquor being sold to some 250 men and women in the back rooms. The five or six waiters in both resorts were busy.

"Then I went back to the Captain. I told him what I had seen. I told him I would swear to all I told him before any court in the land. He thought a while, and then he said to one of his helpers, 'Is there a plain clothes man upstairs?' Of course there wasn't.

"Into these clubs go our young men and young women. They don't appreciate just what they are. And when some one of our wickedest or our weakest will get down to such a low point, having started down in these so-called clubs, that he will do some awful thing. Public sentiment is aroused against the negro promiscuously. And we all have to pay the penalty."

The speaker told about a secret committee that is getting ready to gather evidence against such places as the speaker told of. The committee had a meeting after the Y. M. C. A. exercises.

FOR PURE BROOKLYN WATER.

City Department Will Test a System to Prevent Typhoid.

Under the direction of Commissioner Ellison, Deputy Commissioner Cozier of the Department of Water Supply is about to install a system for the purification of Brooklyn's water supply. Mr. Cozier, in a statement made public yesterday, says that he intends to test a system which had recently received the highest scientific indorsement, and which, it was promised, would cost but a few cents for each million gallons of water.

The experiments are to be made because of an epidemic of typhoid which destroyed a number of lives in Bath Beach and other sections of Brooklyn last Summer. The authorities believe that the typhoid bacillus is in the drinking water. Mr. Cozier proposes entirely to eliminate it if he can.

AGAINST AGNEW PAVING BILL.

Mr. McGuire of the Barber Asphalt Co. Fears Somebody May Be Corrupted.

James K. McGuire of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company issued a statement last night in which he attacked the Agnew Patent Paving bill, now pending in the Legislature, and declared that if it becomes a law it will let down the bars in this city to graft. According to Mr. McGuire, the bill eliminates the requirement for competition in laying patent pavements, and allows such pavements to be laid under regulations established by the Board of Estimate. A bad Board of Estimate, he says, could fix regulations which would give a complete monopoly to patent owners.

A SHOCK FOR HEADQUARTERS.

Deputy Commissioner Mathot Turns Up for Work on Sunday.

Old John Smith, who for years has had charge of the corridors at Police Headquarters, was amazed yesterday afternoon when the swinging door flew open and in marched Third Deputy Police Commissioner Mathot. Smith rubbed his eyes and pinched his arm, to see if he was awake, and then stood at attention and saluted in true Bingham style.

Commissioner Mathot at once went to his room, and word was hurriedly passed around that he was on hand. Capt. Herlihy, who was in charge of the department, was just as much surprised as Smith. It was the first time in the annals of the Police Department that a Police Captain was not the ranking official on a Sunday.

At 3 o'clock Mrs. Mathot arrived and joined the Deputy, who showed her about the building. She then took her leave and the Deputy went back to his desk. After that the reporters arrived.

"Are you here on business?" asked one of them.

"I am. Sooner on the job the more leisure," answered Mr. Mathot. "I want to get the hang of the job. Among other things I am trying to find out is how a public official can be in three places at once.

"I have a trial at 10 o'clock; I have to receive bids for police contracts at 10 o'clock, and also at that hour I have to visit the Corporation Counsel."

Mr. Mathot left the building at 6:30.

FOUR FIREMEN KILLED; TWO MEN ARE MISSING

100 FAMILIES ARE HOMELESS

An Explosion Spreads the Flames and Falling Wall Crushes Six—Damage About $500,000.

The foreman and three of the men of Engine Company No. 14 were killed by a falling wall in a fire which started at 12:30 yesterday afternoon in the seven-story factory building at the southeast corner of Bedford and Downing Streets, in the old Greenwich Village section of the city. Two Italians are also supposed to have perished with them, 100 families were unhoused, and more than a dozen persons injured. The insurance adjusters estimate that the property loss will reach $500,000, if it does not exceed that figure.

The dead are:

CHRISTMAN, GEORGE B., Jr., 331 East Fifty-fifth Street; fireman, Engine Company 14.
HALPIN, THOMAS F., 139 Perry Street; fireman, Engine Company 14.
HEALY, DENNIS J., 217 East Sixty-ninth Street; fireman, Engine Company 14.
WALSH, JOHN F., 309 East Twenty-third Street; foreman, Engine Company 14.
TWO ITALIANS of 60 Carmine Street reported missing and supposed to be under the ruins of the house at that number.

The wounded, in addition to some who were attended by ambulance surgeons from the New York, Gouverneur, and St. Vincent Hospitals, and who did not give their names and addresses, included:

ARCHER, Dr. H. M., Fire Department physician; bone in hand broken.
COHEN, JACOB, Engine Company 14; legs burned and head cut.
KILMER, ——, ladderman Hook and Ladder Company 5; hands cut and burned.
LUCURIO, PETER, 60 Carmine Street; cut and bruised by falling timbers.
McCALL, LOUIS F., Engine Company 14; hands burned.
McKEON, JOHN F., Engine Company 14; perhaps fatally burned and bruised; at St. Vincent's Hospital.
WASHBURN, GEORGE, Fire Patrol 2; partly suffocated.

In the list of those hurt only McKeon of Engine 14 is considered in danger. All the fatalities were caused by the falling of the upper half of the north wall of the factory building. Six men, nearly the whole complement of No. 14, were buried under it.

Men Were on Third Floor.

Foreman Walsh had his men on the third floor rear of the old building at the southwest corner of Carmine and Bedford Streets. They were pouring water from its rear windows into the windows of the factory building behind it, fighting the flames from this point because the heat was too great to permit of a battle from the roof.

The scene of the disaster was a place famous as a landmark with the old-timers of Greenwich Village. It was Benedict's undertaking establishment, a concern which until two years ago had been the centre of mournful occasions to the Greenwich folk for nearly three-quarters of a century. It was called "The West Side Morgue." The building itself had been standing for more than a century and was nearly as feeble architecturally as would be a human at its age. When the mass of white-hot brick crashed upon it it crumpled like a house of cardboard and was flattened to the ground, carrying Walsh and his men down in the ruin.

The flames and whirling columns of sparks and bits of burning material rose a hundred feet toward the leaden sky, from which came a steady, cold drizzle, driving downward the rolling clouds of black smoke, which filled the old narrow streets and enveloped the quaint houses of a century ago as they blistered and in turn broke into flames.

After the tragedy came stillness. Every engine was stopped in its panting, for every engineer knew that a fellow-fireman might need his help to dig him from the burning pile of wreckage.

Men Went to the Rescue.

There was no word of command. The men of Truck Company No. 5, with Capt. Reilley and Deputy Chief Kruger at their head, turned their leather helmets and plunged into the mass of dust, smoke, and fire.

Of the six men that had gone down in the crash two were soon calling for help. Reilley and his men worked as if their own lives were at stake, using picks, shovels, poles, and their bare hands. It took ten minutes to get out Cohen and McKeon, both of whom were held down by brick and mortar and burning timbers. The legs of both men were burned, and their heads were wounded.

"I saw one poor devil burning near me," said Cohen. "When the crash came we didn't know anything at all for a few moments," he told a TIMES reporter in St. Vincent's Hospital. "McKeon and I were at the nozzle in the back window. I didn't even hear the crash. Johnny and I went down with the rest. Foreman Walsh and the other men were behind us in the same room. We were nearer the wall of the old building, and that is probably what saved us. When we came to Johnny and I hollered. He was worse hurt than I was. Neither of us could move.

Rescuers Seemed an Hour.

"It seemed an hour before we saw a fireman digging his way toward us. I have a wife and a baby, and I thought of them, I can tell you. I saw the body of one of the men of my company near me. It was burning."

McKeon was unconscious when taken out, and at St. Vincent's it was said last night that his condition was very serious.

Father Smith, the department Chaplain, was at the scene when the third man was brought out. He was Dennis Healy. There was a spark of life left in him, but his face and hands were purple,

HE DANCED ON THE ELEVATED.

Bronxite with Light Heart and Heels Tied Traffic Up Hard.

"Git out de cops—de resoives—quick, Sarge," said an urchin who ran into the East Fifty-first Street Police Station last night. "De guy'll fall an' break his neck, sure."

Sergt. Fay, after having heard a little more, called out six reserves. They ran to Third Avenue with the boy, and found several hundred men, women, and children looking up at a tall, middle-aged man, who was running up and down the narrow footboard along the downtown elevated track at Fiftieth Street. Now and then the man paused to dance a step or two. Now and then he turned and addressed his audience, which was growing larger every minute. The footboard and the elevated ties were wet and slippery and afforded only a treacherous foothold.

Three of the policemen went to the Forty-seventh Street elevated station and three to the Fifty-third Street station. They started to pick their way carefully toward the man, who was still running up and down, dancing and making speeches. He saw the three policemen coming from Fifty-third Street and ran south. He soon discovered he had been "surrounded." Then he began to dance as if he meant to bump a policeman off the street. The policemen halted a south-bound train halted just back of the three policemen from the north. Those three bluecoats climbed aboard, one of them on the front platform. Then the train was sent slowly toward the agile dancer until the policeman on the front platform could reach out and grab him.

The grab was not made quickly enough, however, and the man slid in front of the train over to the east track. How he managed to miss the third rail no one could guess. Then the train was stopped and orders given to halt all other trains. Then police, motormen, guards, and conductors closed in on the man, who, seeing himself cornered, surrendered. The train took him to Forty-seventh Street, and two policemen took him thence to the police station. He was held for intoxication. He said he was Thomas A. Johnson, a salesman, "from the Bronx, where the birds live."

Sons of Widow of Coal Operator Want to Stop Her Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST CHESTER, Penn., March 26.—Sons and a brother of Mrs. Henry B. Coxe, 63 years old, are trying to prevent her marriage to Dr. John Devere Hill of Liverpool. Upon their petitions to-day, Judge Hemphill, in the Court of Common Pleas, appointed the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia guardian of her estate.

Mrs. Coxe is now in New York, although she has a $1,000,000 palace near here. She inherited $900,000 from her father, Alexander Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., bankers, and $124,000 from her grandfather, Alexander Brown. She was Miss Isabelle Brown, a noted belle, before her marriage to Mr. Coxe, a wealthy coal operator who died in Brussels eighteen months ago. She gets an income of more than $50,000 from his estate. She does not spend much of it, and her balance on deposit is at present $238,000.

Dr. Allen, a young physician who traveled with Mr. and Mrs. Coxe for five years prior to 1905, said he was with them in Brussels when Mr. Coxe died. He was questioned about Mrs. Coxe's mental condition.

Q.—How did Mrs. Coxe behave during the Summer of 1904 after her husband died? A.—Very much as she had since I first knew her in 1899. Her mind was weak and childish. She could not comprehend ordinary conversation or enter into prolonged conversation.

Q.—How would you describe her mind? A.—As silly, childlike, senile.

Q.—Did you ever see Dr. Hill? A.—Yes. In Liverpool, when we landed in London later, and again in Liverpool.

Q.—What influence did he have over her? A.—Not for good.

Q.—Did he have a marked influence? A.—Yes.

Q.—What kind of a man is he? A.—He's a port physician at Liverpool and inspects incoming steamers. He is about 55 years old and looks like a hard drinker.

Q.—Did Mrs. Coxe give him money? A.—I think she did.

Henry B. Coxe, Jr., gave much the same testimony concerning his mother as had the others. He had noticed a gradual decline in her mental condition.

"Any one can gain her confidence without trouble," he said.

She first talked to him about marrying last July, but afterward she said she was joking.

"In January," he continued, "I received a letter from Dr. Hill, saying that he had proposed to my mother, and asked for my approval. I went to New York at once, and asked her whether it was true, and she said yes. Since then she has made no denial of the engagement, but has told other people that it was so. She said Dr. Hill would arrive from England on April 17, and that they would get married on that day at 6 o'clock in the evening.

FATHER SHOT BRIDE-TO-BE.

Then Killed Himself Just Before Time Set for Wedding.

EVERETT, Mass., March 26.—Less than three hours before the time set for her wedding to-day Pansy E. Townsend was shot and fatally wounded by her father, Joseph P. Townsend, in the sitting room of their home, 15 Woodville Street, this city. Townsend then killed himself by putting a revolver bullet into his head. His daughter died soon after being discovered.

Miss Townsend was to have been married to Francis E. Perry of Fort Myers, Fla., at 6 o'clock to-night at the People's Temple, Boston. Early in the afternoon the father sent the only other member of the family, his fifteen-year-old son Joseph, to East Boston on an errand connected with the wedding.

The only clue to the cause of the tragedy was a note written by Townsend. It was dated to-day and read:

At 3:40 I have taken my daughter's life and my own. I do this rather than see her the wife of Francis Perry.

So far as is known Townsend had nothing against Perry, and the supposition is that Townsend's mind was unbalanced by reason of his love for his daughter and his brooding over the prospect of separation from her. Townsend was formerly mate on a vessel sailing from Boston. He was born in Baltimore and was 56 years old. His wife had been dead several years.

Miss Townsend was an active worker in local church circles, and was well known and popular. She was 25 years of age.

ARCHBOLD TELLS FULLY ABOUT STANDARD OIL

And Attorney General Hadley Says a New Era Has Come.

WHY ROCKEFELLER IS ABSENT

Dislikes Cartoonists—Hadley Won't Examine Him Privately—Standard Lawyer for Federal Control.

As the result of the Missouri inquiry and the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States and the State of Missouri, Attorney General Hadley believes a new day has dawned in Standard Oil. The policy of secrecy and subterfuge has been abandoned, he thinks. In its stead has come a policy of enforced candor and open dealing. There will be no longer a masquerading of Standard offshoots under other names. Wherever the trust operates it will assume responsibility.

These conclusions reached by the Western prosecutor who invaded New York to clinch his case against the corporation, are practically admitted to be correct by the attorneys who fruitlessly endeavored to stop him.

So well satisfied is Mr. Hadley with the situation that he rejected yesterday a proposal made to him to examine John D. Rockefeller in private. The suggestion came from John D. Archbold, the Standard's Vice President, who announced on the witness stand that it was made with the knowledge of Mr. Rockefeller. It was prefaced with the declaration that Mr. Rockefeller was ignorant of the matters concerned in the suit against the Standard's Missouri offshoots, and that his only reason for dodging process servers was his fear of "notoriety and cartoonists."

Mr. Hadley couldn't see that Mr. Rockefeller was entitled to special consideration, and didn't hesitate to say so. He openly rejoiced, however, over the changed spirit in Standard Oil.

"In Nebraska and in Indiana the Republic Oil Company has already transferred the properties standing in its name to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," said Mr. Hadley at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday afternoon. "To my mind, coupling the move in these two States with the new-born attitude of Standard Oil officials, this means that the company has decided to do business in the open."

"It is my personal opinion," said Frank Hagerman, the Standard lawyer who has been the acknowledged spokesman of the corporation since Mr. Hadley fired his opening gun, "that Federal control is the solution of the trust problem. There is no trouble in the conduct of National banks and no criticism of their policy. When the Government of the United States charters and supervises industrial combinations there will be no trouble with them and no criticism of their methods.

"Some radical change is necessary. The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has admitted the ownership of a controlling interest in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Republic Oil Company, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company. The admission implies the fact that it is doing business in Missouri under assumed names, although it is conducting its operations in a manner wholly within the law. The statutes of Missouri forbid the operation within its borders of a corporation capitalized at more than $10,000,000. Other States insist that foreign corporations shall keep out. What other remedy is there than Federal control?"

The frank statement of Mr. Hagerman and the conclusions drawn by Attorney General Hadley at the close of the day's investigations were foreshadowed by the testimony of Mr. Archbold, Vice President of the parent company, which controls 70 per cent of the oil business of the Western Hemisphere.

By no stretch of the imagination can Mr. Archbold be considered as a man to whom publicity is pleasant. Yet he freely recited the tale of Standard methods and told without reserve what would have been regarded a month ago as Standard secrets when Mr. Hadley put him on the witness stand yesterday morning and questioned him as to the inside workings of the Standard combination.

It was 11 o'clock when the inquiry began. Attorney General Hadley slept late after his dinner with the Plaeides Club, and the Standard lawyers were belated in appearing. When Special Commissioner Sanborn was finally able to open the proceedings Mr. Archbold was the first man called.

He wore a frown and a blue sack suit. No sooner had he taken the stand that he registered a hearty kick against the presence of newspaper artists. At a previous hearing he smashed a camera. Yesterday he had hardly settled himself in his chair when half a dozen men with pencils got busy. Their industry was not lost upon him.

"I desire to protest," he said angrily to the Special Commissioner, "against the sketch artists. They are positively indecent."

Mr. Sanborn obligingly requested the "sketch artists" to cease their activities. Mr. Archbold then admitted, in answer to the questions of Mr. Hadley, that he was the Vice President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and that he owned stock in both that corporation and in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. M. M. Van Beuren, he said, is his son-in-law. Mr. Van Beuren is in New York.

"I saw him yesterday," he said, and Process Server Palmedo left the hearing immediately.

"Who is the President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey?" Mr. Hadley asked.

"John D. Rockefeller. He has not, however, taken an active interest in its business affairs for several years. He has an office at 26 Broadway, but is in ill-health and seldom goes there. He retains the Presidency at the desire of the stockholders."

"Who is the active head of the company?"

"There is no master mind in Standard Oil. It is made up of an aggregation of individuals who are experts in the oil business and who work in concert. The term 'committee' as applied to the management of the company is a misnomer."

Mr. Archbold acknowledged that he knew H. M. Tilford, and said he thought Mr. Tilford was in control of the oil trade in the Missouri territory. He said

GIRL HOLDS UP BURGLAR.

With a Sham Pistol Makes Him Yield Plunder—Left 60 Cents, Too.

With a paper weight made in the form of a pistol, Miss Evelyn Dobson brought a burglar to his knees in her home at 135 Remsen Street, Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, last night.

Miss Evelyn and Miss Louise Dobson were left in the house last night, with the maid, Anna McNamara. The maid went downstairs about 10:30 o'clock. She saw a man standing in a doorway.

"Thieves!" she screamed, and kept on screaming.

The Misses Dobson went to the rescue of the maid. On her way Miss Evelyn picked up the imitation pistol. Running to the ground floor she pointed the harmless weapon at the man and said:

"Don't you move an inch. Stand right there."

The man's hands went up, and his knees quaked.

"Don't shoot, lady! Don't shoot!" he begged.

The throwing up of his arms released from beneath one of them an onyx clock. When he saw what he thought was the muzzle of a pistol two feet from his face he produced Miss Evelyn's gold watch from one pocket and other pieces of small jewelry from others.

"Please don't give me up to the police, Ma'am," the burglar begged. "Ive got a starving wife and three sick children, and they're hungry."

The three girls, themselves badly frightened, asked one another what to do. While they were conferring, the burglar saw his chance and darted out of the door. At the corner of Henry Street he disappeared from view. Miss Evelyn and Miss Louise Dobson and the maid found that besides giving back all he had stolen the burglar had left 60 cents of his own.

CARNEGIE BUILD A SUBWAY?

Mr. Coler Thinks He Might If Coney Islanders Asked Him.

Coney Island had a Subway dinner last night at Stauch's in honor of President Hutson of the Coney Island, Bath Beach and Bensonhurst Subway Association. The Rapid Transit Commission has just approved the Coney Island route. Borough President Bird S. Coler said:

"If we cannot get either August Belmont or the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to build the Coney Island subway, I believe we shall still find some one ready to undertake the work for us. I am confident that if he is only properly approached Mr. Andrew Carnegie would build the subway."

After the banquet was over, Mr. Coler was asked if he had seen Mr. Carnegie lately. He replied:

"I have not seen him for four years."

"Well, have you been in communication with him or his secretary lately?"

"I will not be quoted as saying yes or no to that," he answered. Other speakers were Borough Presidents Bermel, Cromwell, and Haffen.

MRS. LONGWORTH IN POLITICS

She Is Scheduled to Aid in Ohio Congressman's Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 26.—Ralph D. Cole of Findlay, member of Congress from the Eighth Ohio District, has given out a statement that Congressman Nicholas Longworth and his wife, the President's daughter, are to participate in the Fall campaign for Mr. Cole's re-election.

At the last banquet which Longworth and Cole attended, the Cincinnati Congressman, it is said, promised Cole that he would assist him in the Fall campaign. Mrs. Longworth then signified her intention of accompanying her husband, and the word was sent broadcast throughout the district. Then the society leaders commenced their active preparations for social functions of all sorts, and it is likely that the campaign will develop into one round of social festivities.

ANOTHER CHATTANOOGA MOB

Threatens to Storm Jail to Lynch Negro—Overawed by Force.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, March 26.—The formation of a mob in South Chattanooga to-night with the avowed intention of storming the county jail and taking out the negro Will Wilson, charged with killing a young white man named Will Edgeman as the result of a dispute over the Johnson lynching, caused the city and county authorities to put forty policemen and Sheriff's Deputies at the jail, every one armed with a Springfield rifle.

The Sheriff says he will fire into any crowd that attempts to invade the prison.

At a late hour it was believed the show of force has been effective and that the would-be lynchers will not make an attack.

Edgeman was trying to argue the case with the crowd of negroes when one of them hit him on the head with a lead pipe. He died after lingering several days.

The feeling between whites and blacks continues very bitter.

METCALFE BARRED OUT.

The Theatrical Critic's Patriotic Funnybone Feels a Jar.

The management of the Liberty Theatre refused last night to admit James S. Metcalfe, the dramatic critic of Life, to the first performance of "Lincoln," in which Benjamin Chapin began his New York engagement. J. W. Mayer, manager of the house, met Mr. Metcalfe at the door and told the critic that he could not pass in, but that the money for his tickets would be refunded at the office.

On his way out of the lobby, Mr. Metcalfe said to a TIMES reporter:

"Here am I, an American critic, refused admission to an American play, entitled 'Lincoln,' at the Liberty Theatre, by a manager named Abraham Lincoln Erlanger."

ULTIMATUM BY MINERS AT COAL CONFERENCE

Restoration of the Wage Scale of 1903 Demanded.

FLAT REFUSAL IS EXPECTED

Leaders of the Men Assure the Operators That the Unions Will Stand Together.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 26.—The United Mine Workers of America, through President John Mitchell, Vice President T. L. Lewis, and Herman C. Perry, President of the Illinois miners, this afternoon presented to the coal operators in the secret session of the Joint Scale Committee of the Central competitive district their ultimatum on the dispute over the wage scale. The demand of the miners is for a restoration of the wage scale of 1903, which is an increase of 5.50 per cent.

Upon receipt of the ultimatum the operators obtained an adjournment of the committee until to-morrow morning, when it is expected a definite answer to the miners will be given. It is anticipated that this reply will be a refusal, and in that event the committee will report a disagreement to the joint conference of miners and operators. In that case the question will be debated before the joint convention. To-night, according to those concerned, there is little prospect of an agreement.

John Mitchell took the floor at the meeting of the committee to-day and said he had been informed on reliable authority that there were rumors in the corridors that the operators believed that if they would stand firmly by their position and prolong the sessions of the Joint Scale Committee the miners would agree to sign the present scale and recede from their demand for an increase in wages. He said he wanted to explain to the operators that under no circumstances would there be an agreement at less than the scale of 1903, unless after a disagreement the operators could enforce lower terms, and he did not believe they could.

Vice President Lewis said:

"I realize fully the present situation. I know what a suspension of work means to our people; I know what it will probably mean to millions of other people who are not directly interested in these questions. I have hopes that we may be able to find a solution of our present difficulties, but that solution will only come when both sides are ready to sign a wage agreement, carrying with it the prices paid in 1903. We believe that the operators can pay the 1903 scale, and there is no reason for our considering anything else."

Herman C. Perry said there would be no division of the Illinois miners and no mine would be allowed to run even with an advance in wages ulees all the union miners in Illinois received the same advance.

In an official statement which was issued yesterday by President David Willcox of the Delaware & Hudson Company, which has the sanction of the other coal Presidents, Mr. Willcox suggests that further agitation of the eight-hour demand by the miners may result in the inside men being called upon by the employers to work a full eight-hour day. Most of these men, he says, work only four or five hours a day.

While the demands submitted to the operators, he points out, provide that the work day shall not exceed eight hours for all persons covered by the agreement, the agreement does not provide that the persons covered by it shall work eight hours per day, this, obviously, because the employes average less than eight hours per day.

The result of the granting of the demand would be, not to shorten the hours of labor, as these do not at present exceed eight hours, but to increase the wages per hour 12.5 per cent. The aggregate wages of the employes affected are not less than $50,000,000 per annum, and 12.5 per cent. thereon would be $6,250,000.

KILLED BY AN ELECTRIC CAR.

Old Man Run Down as He Was Trying to Cross Amsterdam Avenue.

One of the cars that run from 125th Street and Eighth Avenue, by way of Amsterdam Avenue, to 220th Street and Broadway ran into Patrick Shevlin yesterday and killed him. The motorman, John Hackett of 19 East 134th Street, was arrested.

The car was going north on Amsterdam Avenue at a fairly high speed, when the motorman saw Shevlin, who was 60 years old, crossing the tracks at 156th Street. Hackett noticed that the man walked feebly, but thought he would clear the car easily. The motorman miscalculated, for the front of the car struck Shevlin and knocked him several feet. Dr. Neweld, who came from the Washington Heights Hospital in answer to an ambulance call, said that the man had sustained a fractured skull and that he had probably died instantly.

In Shevlin's pocket were a pension ticket, which was the only clue to his identity, and an application to be admitted to the Presbyterian Hospital.

INSURANCE BILLS GO OVER.

Malby and Grady Expected to Fight Them When They Come Up To-morrow

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 26.—There was a big crowd in the galleries of the Senate to-night to hear the debate on the first of the insurance bills, the one relating to the election of new Trustees for all the mutual life insurance companies. The crowd was disappointed, for the bill, as amended, will not come up until Wednesday, when it was expected that a lively debate will take place between Senators Malby and Grady against it and Senators Brackett and Tully for its passage.

Senator Marks's bill, providing that no money shall be paid by insurance or other corporations to persons engaged in promoting legislation unless a separate record is kept thereof, on which a lively debate was also expected, went over, owing to the absence of Senator Marks.

Aldermen's Salary Bill Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 26.—Assemblyman Story's bill increasing the salaries of Aldermen of New York City from $1,000 to $2,000 annually was passed in the House to-night without a dissenting vote.

THE PLYMOUTH BURNED.

Fall River Line Boat Is Destroyed at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Tuesday, March 27.—The steamer Plymouth of the Fall River Line caught fire at her dock at 1:30 A. M. to-day.

At 2 A. M. the flames had communicated to all parts of the structure. A freight steamer nearby was in danger, and it was feared the large freight sheds of the line would catch fire.

The fire was under control at 2:50 A. M. The loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

The fire burned the steamer Plymouth, the North pier of the freight shed and hoisting apparatus, and damaged the steamer City of Lowell. Outside of this property the loss was slight. No lives were lost.

The steamers Puritan, Priscilla, and Naugatuck were moored alongside the north pier but were hauled into the stream damaged only by smoke.

TO OBLIGE MRS. PATTISON

Ohio Legislature Will Adjourn at Request of Governor's Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 26.—While Gov. Pattison's physicians are apparently encouraged by his improvement, they admit to close friends that he cannot recover.

At Mrs. Pattison's request the Legislature will in all probability adjourn next Monday. The House has already passed a resolution to quit at that time.

Mrs. Pattison believes that if the Legislature were to adjourn and her husband to be taken to his home the relief from the worries of the session would enable him to recover.

BERNHARDT ACTS IN A TENT.

Eight Thousand Witness Performance at Dallas—Many Turned Away.

Special to The New York Times.

THE BERNHARDT TENT, DALLAS, Texas, March 26.—Sarah Bernhardt made her first professional appearance under canvas at Dallas to-night. She presented "Camille" to more than 8,000 persons, nearly one-half of whom had to stand up, as the seating capacity of the tent is 4,200. Several thousand persons were turned away. Many women sent her bouquets of violets, and she expressed her thanks.

A telegraph company put a special office in the tent, and Bernhardt sent many messages to friends in this country and Europe. One of them was to her son, Maurice, in Paris, saying she would play in "this magnificent tent to-night, which is amusing and a fairyland."

The sale of seats netted more than $11,000. Bernhardt plays again in the tent at Waco to-morrow night, and at Austin Wednesday night.

Executive Committee of a Gould Railroad Wanted a Younger Man.

Russell Sage was dropped from the Executive Committee of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company at yesterday's meeting of the Directors of the Gould road.

He had served more than twenty-five years on the committee. Although he continues a member of the Directorate, the board decided that the road's interests demanded that he be replaced on the Executive Committee by an active man who could take a fair share of the work. Mr. Sage is in his ninetieth year.

Gen. Thomas T. Eckert was elected in his place. Otherwise the retiring members of the committee were re-elected. F. N. Hickman was elected local Treasurer at St. Louis.

The meeting of the Directors of the Missouri Pacific was adjourned for lack of a quorum.

SMOKE FILLS THE SUBWAY.

Third Rail's Cover Afire as Theatre Crowd Goes Home.

An after-theatre crowd of several hundred was scared a little late last night by a fire in the Subway a few feet north of the Columbus Circle Station.

The wood covering over the third rail was set afire by the electricity from the rail, blazing up and sending a shower of blue sparks to the roof of the Subway. Within a few seconds the woodwork was ablaze and spreading, but employes were quickly on the scene with buckets of water and the flames were extinguished. The smoke was thick, choking and blinding. Little damage was done.

The power was shut off, and there was a delay of fifteen minutes on both tracks.

BALLOON CROSSED BALTIC.

Two German Soldiers Complete Voyage Clinging to the Net.

COPENHAGEN, March 26.—Two German soldiers landed from a balloon on Sunday at Carlskrona. They left Berlin on Saturday and crossed the Baltic in a fierce snowstorm. As they were nearing the Swedish coast the storm caused a rent in the balloon, permitting the gas to escape.

The balloon began to descend, and the men were obliged to cut away the basket and cling to the net. It was two hours before they landed, exhausted.

Tillman Puts Off Amendments.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—In the Senate to-day, Mr. Tillman expressed the opinion that, owing to the absence of many Senators, there should be no vote to-day on any amendment. Mr. Tillman said that he would to-morrow ask the Senate to fix a time to vote, and that when that decree was issued he would prepare an order of proceeding for submission to the Senate. He wants four or five days' debate on amendments alone.

INSURANCE JURY TOLD NOT TO DROP THE CASE

"Demand All the Evidence," Says Judge O'Sullivan.

A SET-BACK FOR MR. JEROME

"Range Is Wide Between Investment and Giving to a Political Party," Supplemental Charge Declares.

Judge O'Sullivan of General Sessions addressed a supplementary charge on insurance matters to the Grand Jury yesterday, in which he directed that body to proceed with its investigation on its own account, taking the law governing its actions from the court and (by implication) not from the District Attorney.

"Refuse to permit this case to be taken from your consideration," said the Judge in conclusion. "Demand all the evidence surrounding it. Investigate completely and fearlessly. If you determine that the law has been violated justice will have its way. I charge you that it is your sworn duty to continue your investigation of this case to an end."

Mr. Jerome was not in the building when the charge was delivered. Assistant District Attorney Nott and several other members of Mr. Jerome's staff were in court, however, when the Grand Jury reported as usual soon after 1 o'clock. They listened to the charge without taking any part in the proceedings.

Demand the Evidence.

Foreman Edward Van Volkenbergh went over to Judge O'Sullivan as soon as the charge had been read and asked what he was expected to do. He was told that it was his duty to demand all the evidence in the matter from the District Attorney at once, and then to go ahead with the examination of the information thus obtained as well as with the calling of witnesses until it had been definitely ascertained whether any crime had been committed.

Mr. Van Volkenbergh called at Mr. Jerome's office without delay, and found that the District Attorney was in the City Court, attending Judge Seabury's investigation of the jury-fixing scandals, and would not be back during the afternoon. The foreman had a talk with Assistant District Attorney Perkins, who is in charge of the Grand Jury, but could not get the material from him in Mr. Jerome's absence. The whole matter was then permitted to go over until this morning.

When Mr. Jerome returned to the Criminal Courts Building last evening, he met Judge O'Sullivan, who was just leaving. The General Sessions Judge and the District Attorney talked together for about twenty minutes in one of the entrances. Judging by appearances, the conversation was friendly. Afterward Mr. Jerome refused to say anything about the charge of Judge O'Sullivan, or about his own plans.

Judge O'Sullivan's Charge.

The charge to the Grand Jury in full is:

"Information has reached me, gentlemen, that, owing to the colloquy between the court and the District Attorney, following the Court's instructions to you last Friday, there exists a doubt among you as to the real meaning of the court's advice on the question discussed and your duty with regard to it.

"A copy of the instructions was handed to your foreman for your guidance. I am of the opinion that if you consult with it you can have no doubt as to its exact meaning, but, to be certain on that point, brief reference to it now may be of advantage.

"Officers of a corporation who are employed to manage and invest corporate funds for the profit of the corporation are limited in that respect to financial investments. So watchful is the law over funds intrusted to such officers that it prohibits, in certain instances, investment even in securities frequently considered in the business world as standard securities. There is a wide range between such investment and the giving away of corporate funds to a political party. If you find that they have been so diverted, you will find that they have been misappropriated, and to that extent a violation of the law. You must find, however, the operation colored with felonious intent before you may call it a crime. Your question, 'Was there felonious intent?' must be answered by yourselves; but the court gave you the law on the subject, and you are bound to take it as the court gave it.

"If corporate funds were diverted from the rightful owner and given away without the slightest expectation of profit or financial return, was any person deprived of his property? Has any citizen a right to expect profit or financial return from such a transaction with a political party?

"If a person was deprived of his property and the transaction was falsely accounted for, or not accounted for at all, or if there were false entries to conceal it, or no entries whatever, have you evidence of intention to defraud?

"It Is Your Duty."

"Gentlemen, the answer is with you under instructions from the court already given, namely, that felonious intent is criminal intent, and criminal intent is to take with the intent to deprive and defraud. If you find that such officers did so misappropriate property, the court charges you that it is your duty to find that the crime of larceny has been committed. It is a duty, the performance of which you cannot avoid even were you so inclined.

"The law is no respecter of persons. It knows the name of no man—rich or poor. It recognizes no class distinctions. In seeking justice its course is straight onward. We are not its masters; we are its servants. In the performance of our duties we may meet with many an unpleasant task, but duty is often meritorious only as its performance is difficult and disagreeable. True, we should not be influenced by public clamor, but let us take care to distinguish between the noise of the rabble and the honest expression of public opinion. Let us take care to stem the rising tide of disrespect for the decisions and verdicts of our courts and juries. You can do much in that direction, gentlemen, by performing your duty now.

"Refuse to permit this case to be taken from your consideration. Demand all the evidence surrounding it. Investigate completely and fearlessly. If you decide that no crime has been committed, no injustice shall be done. If you determine that the law has been violated, justice will have its way. Gentlemen, I charge you that it is your sworn duty to continue your investigation of this case to the end."

It had been understood that Mr. Jerome might place those parts of the Armstrong report referring to the $48,000 given by the New York Life Insurance Company to the Republicans in 1904 through Vice President George W. Perkins, before a Magistrate. Then, it was believed, he would ask that a warrant be issued to have the debated question of criminality taken before a Court of Appeal at once. If such was his programme, it has been prevented by Judge O'Sullivan's action. Nobody would undertake to guess last night what Mr. Jerome might do now.

A NEW INSURANCE LOBBY.

It Has Moved for the Irish Vote and Speaker Wadsworth.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 26.—Old-timers in the ways of Legislatures are chuckling over a lobbying scheme that has come to light. It has for its ostensible object the defeat of the insurance reform bills that the Armstrong Committee has proposed. The plan of these lobbyists seems to be to help the New York Life, if possible.

The new "lobby" has two active workers. One is a man prominent in the local Order of Hibernians, and the other is a former lobbyist at Washington, selected because of a supposed acquaintance with Congressman Wadsworth, the father of the present speaker of the Assembly. To the Albany Hibernian has been intrusted the swinging of the Irish vote in the Legislature, while the Washington expert is charged with the somewhat delicate task of bringing the Speaker around to a proper view of the insurance situation.

The results are awaited with mingled interest and amusement both by the Legislators here who are working for the passage of the bills, and by those of the "Old Guard" who are already committed to an obstructive policy. By both sides it is pronounced the "rawest" amateur attempt to influence legislation that has been made in the memory of the oldest Legislator. The friends of the Armstrong Committee's measures are actually disposed to welcome it for its very freshness.

Chairman Armstrong of the Insurance Investigating Committee, received to-night an interesting telegram from Thomas W. Lawson in which Mr. Lawson warns the committee not to leave a loophole in the general scheme of legislation that will allow the New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies, when the terms of the existing officers expire this Spring, to re-elect them regardless of an election of Trustees, for terms to expire a year from this Spring. Mr. Lawson calls attention to the fact that there is nothing in the pending bills to prevent this. An unpleasant situation might be created for the reorganizers' Boards of Trustees—should the policy holders prevail in next Fall's elections—if they had to deal first of all with staffs of executive officers whose contracts had from six to nine months to run. In the past the section of the insurance law providing that the contracts of all officers and agents must run for a year only has received little attention, according to testimony given to the Armstrong committee, but it is not supposed here that any similar slips will be made in the plans now forming to meet radical legislation.

What Mr. Lawson describes as the companies' "trump card" is explained in this section of his telegram to Senator Armstrong:

> Your bill now passing provides electoral qualifications in the matter of voting for Trustee, minimum amount of insurance, $1,000, and the payment of a full annual premium.
>
> This provision would not only disqualify many Americans, but thousands of foreigners who hold contracts giving them all the rights of policy holders in a mutual company, including the right by a legal implication to vote for Trustees. The New York Life alone has 6,000 policy holders in Japan who hold policies of 1,000 yen each, and in Hindoostan more than 6,000 with policies of 1,000 rupees. Then there are a very large number of Chinese and Australian policies for less than $1,000.
>
> If I understand the wording of your bill, this will render the law unconstitutional, as the Constitution of the United States provides that "no State shall provide any law impairing the obligation of contracts."

CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY AGAINST THE M'CURDYS

The Mutual Life Also Wants to Get Back $750,000,

BUT THERE'LL BE A REPLY

Trustees Knew of Raymond Contract, It Is Declared—The Suits Remind John S. Wise of Col. Sellers.

In two additional complaints served yesterday in the actions which the Mutual Life Insurance Company has started against the McCurdys and Charles H. Raymond & Co., recently the Mutual Life's Metropolitan General Agent, there is charged a conspiracy, from which the Mutual is alleged to have suffered to the extent of $500,000. Over and above this the recovery of $750,000 is sought on account of the contracts which the Mutual had with Charles H. Raymond & Co., running over 1893 to 1905, while Louis A. Thébaud, Richard A. McCurdy's son-in-law, was a member of the firm.

One of these complaints is directed against the elder McCurdy, Thébaud, and Charles H. Raymond, and it is in that one that the conspiracy charge is first set up. The other complaint names Messrs. Raymond and Thébaud and seeks to recover the $500,000 which, it is charged, was paid as gratuities, regardless of contract provisions, and without any consideration running to the company. The complaint does not go into specifications on these payments, but it is understood that it refers to the so-called "collection" charges of 2 per cent. allowed in much of the premium receipts coming into the home office of the Mutual. These charges alone ran into enormous figures in the McCurdy régime.

After the complaints had been served John S. Wise, Jr., of counsel for Messrs. Raymond and Thébaud, announced that his firm would begin suit against the Mutual, as soon as papers could be drawn, on account of the abrogation of the contract which Raymond & Co. had with the Mutual. This contract was abrogated while the investigation by the Armstrong Committee was on and is the basis of the animus felt by the McCurdy and Thébaud party against the Mutual Trustees. Many of the Trustees, according to the assertions certain of the defendants made when the suits were begun, were cognizant of the terms of the Raymond contracts.

It was freely declared yesterday by persons familiar with the McCurdy-Thébaud side of the matter that when the answers in these actions are filed some interesting allegations will be made as to the extent of this knowledge of the contracts. In the action started last week against Richard A. McCurdy, in which the recovery of $3,371,341 was sought, one of the counts enumerated a series of quarterly payments of $25,000 each, covering six years, to maintain a "confidential fund," the use of which has never been made clear. Several of the vouchers for these $25,000 payments were introduced in evidence before the Armstrong Committee on Oct. 10. Robert Olyphant, who, as Chairman of the Expenditures Committee of the Mutual, has passed all of them since 1903, testified that he didn't know in detail about the purposes for which the money went, but supposed it was for "confidential legal services."

"As I understand the situation," Mr. Olyphant said, "large corporations have to maintain a confidential fund for the payment of services in legal matters." Subsequently Mr. Olyphant testified that he had assumed that the Mutual's contributions to the Republican National Committee came out of this fund.

Considering this, the McCurdys will assert, it is understood, that in view of the fact that all these expenditures were passed upon by the Committee on Expenditures as the representatives of the Board empowered to supervise the President and other officers in such matters, it is the Board's duty now to look to this committee for the repayment of the money if the Board considers that it was improperly expended. The vouchers for these "confidential fund" expenditures, as far as introduced in evidence before the Armstrong Committee, bore the initials of either Vice President Granniss or Vice President Gillette, whose resignations are to be presented at the Mutual's meeting to-morrow.

On the same line, it is understood that the sums paid under the various agency contracts will be put up to the Agency Committee, of which H. H. Rogers is ranking member, and to Julien T. Davies, now general solicitor for the Mutual. Davies, it is declared, passed upon many of the contracts when they were made and, as President McCurdy's closest legal adviser for many years, was said to be generally conversant with the terms on which the firm of Raymond & Co. operated.

The first of the complaints filed yesterday recites the formation of the partnership of Louis A. Thébaud and Charles H. Raymond in 1903, and states the alleged conspiracy thus:

> That on or about the date of the formation of said partnership between the defendant Raymond and Thebaud, and from year to year thereafter the defendants McCurdy, Raymond, and Thebaud, for the purpose of enriching the said partnership, and particularly the defendant Thebaud, at the expense and cost of the plaintiff, corruptly and fraudulently conspired and agreed with each other in the following manner, to wit: that in the aforesaid business of the said partnership as the general agent of the plaintiff, the said partnership should be paid compensation out of the funds of the plaintiff at special, exorbitant, unconscionable, and unnecessary rates, and should, in addition, from time to time be paid moneys out of the funds of the plaintiff for which no consideration would move to the plaintiff.

It is further charged that in pursuance of this conspiracy, pretended contracts were made in the name of the Mutual Life Insurance Company with the Raymond firm wherein the commissions, allowances, and extra compensation of the firm were fixed at special, exorbitant, and unnecessary rates, and that through the use by R. A. McCurdy of his power as President and a trustee of the Mutual, commissions at those rates were paid out of the moneys of the company.

The complaint alleges that from 1895 to 1904 Louis A. Thébaud received from the Raymond firm profits of $771,528.35, which were in large part in waste of the assets of the company belonging to the policy holders, and in fraud of these policy holders. The special allowances of $500,000 which, the second complaint asserts, were made without any consideration to the company, bring the total which it is sought to recover up to $1,250,000. These payments, however, are referred to in the eighth section of the complaint served upon Mr. McCurdy last week, which alleged negligence and unfaithfulness and are included in the total sum sought to be recovered in that action.

The second complaint, served yesterday, charges, regarding the $500,000 in gratuities, that the defendants were well aware, or had the means of knowing, and good reason to suspect and believe, that these payments were unauthorized and illegal, and that, nevertheless, they received the same and applied them to their own benefit.

John S. Wise, Jr., made this comment among others on the complaints filed so far:

"There has been nothing like them since the days of the lamented Col. Mulberry Sellers."

President Peabody of the Mutual reiterated yesterday his denial that he was to resign. Trustee Cromwell's friends denied that he was going to quit, and Trustee Adrian Iselin, Jr., declared he had no intention of resigning.

EQUITABLE LEGAL BILLS.

Mr. Hornblower's Claim for $45,000 to be Considered To-morrow.

When the Directors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society meet to-morrow they are expected to receive a report from the special committee to which was referred the bills for legal services rendered in the early days of the Hyde-Alexander controversy by some of the lawyers engaged by the warring elements. These bills were held up at the January meeting of the Equitable's board until it should be seen first whether the society was liable for the expense and then whether the amounts charged by some of the counsel were excessive.

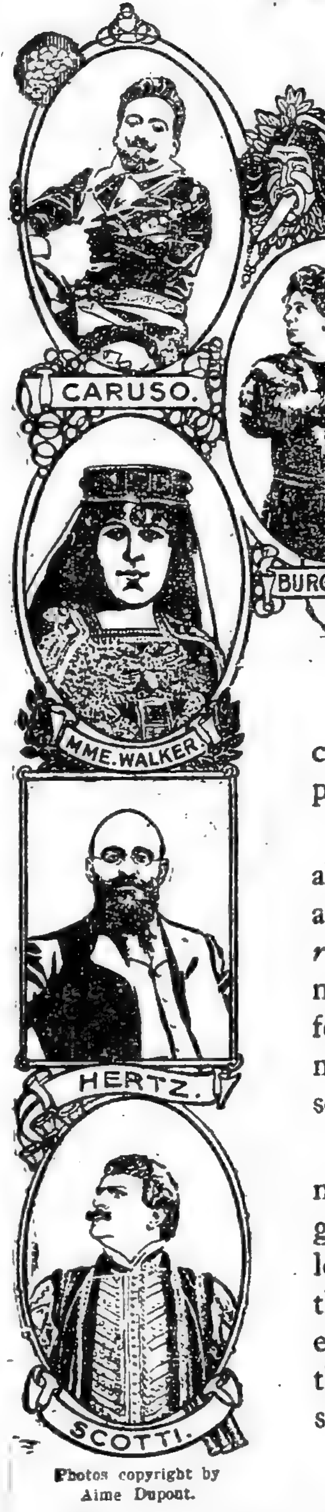
Chief among the bills is one of William B. Hornblower for $45,000 for the services he rendered during the mutualization controversy and in the argument of the Lord suit to restrain the mutualization plan that the Equitable's Directors adopted at one stage as a peace measure.

Elihu Root was one of the lawyers retained as general peacemaker during the earlier stages of the Equitable controversy, although he appeared nominally as counsel for James H. Hyde. He got $25,000 from the Society for his services, according to the testimony taken by the Armstrong Committee.

Other lawyers who were engaged in the controversy and who have not been paid, according to any report that has become public, are ex-Judge William N. Cohen, Frank Platt, Bainbridge Colby, Edward Lauterbach, William Nelson Cromwell, and Adrian H. Joline.

The "OPERA SALE" of WEBER PIANOS

Material Reductions Offered on the Pianos that have been Used This Season by the Great Artists of the Metropolitan Opera House



Photos copyright by Aime Dupont.

THE Weber Piano has for years been the choice of great opera singers—for their private use and in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Over fifty new Weber Pianos were required for the complete equipment of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company this year.

Now that the present opera season is over, all of these intruments have been returned to us and we are offering them for sale at a considerable reduction as used pianos. It should be borne in mind, however, that the use of a piano for a few months by an accomplished musician cannot make it a "used piano" in the ordinary sense of that expression.

Our patrons, therefore, will find here remarkable piano bargains — uprights, small grands, baby grands, concert grands—all selected specimens of the best craftsmanship of the celebrated Weber factories. Although even an expert would be puzzled to distinguish them from entirely new pianos, they are being sold at materially reduced prices.

This is an opportunity which cannot possibly occur again within a year.

ARCHBOLD TELLS FULLY ABOUT STANDARD OIL

that the 2,750 shares of Waters-Pierce stock standing in the name of Mr. Van Beuren were the property of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and were formerly held by the Trustees of the Standard Oil Trust.

"Are you familiar with the product of oil in this country?" he was asked.

"I am."

"What is it?"

"The daily production of crude oil in the United States is about 350,000 gallons, and the Standard Oil Company produces about one-seventh of this amount. It probably sells and markets about 70 per cent. of the refined product. I want to make it plain right here that wherever there is an oil refinery in the United States owned by the Standard there is a competition refinery. There is much more competition in the oil business than outsiders are aware of. It is particularly strong, of course, in the big oil region of Pennsylvania."

The Standard's Vice President insisted that the company was not in control in the new oil fields of Kansas. There were a number of independent producers and refiners there. He was asked about the men at the head of Standard Oil, and said he knew Francis D. Carley, Col. William T. Thompson, Horace D. Hutchins, D. S. Cowles, and H. M. Tilford.

Q.—Who composed the original Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Trust under the agreement? A.—John D. Rockefeller, Charles Pratt, William E. Worden, H. M. Brewster, J. A. Bostwick, O. H. Payne, and myself.

Q.—Did you know a man named H. P. Tinsley? A.—I did.

Q.—Was he connected with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company? A.—He was.

Q.—Did you ever hear him designated as "agent"? A.—I did not.

Q.—Mr. Tinsley left the Waters-Pierce Company and went with the Standard Oil Company, did he not? A.—I believe so.

Q.—Where is he now? A.—He is either now in Japan or on his way to that country.

Q.—He left about the time this suit was instituted? A.—Mr. Tinsley's departure had nothing to do with this suit. Absolutely nothing. He left some time last Summer.

Mr. Archbold said that there were about 125 independent refineries in the United States. He was asked as to the present whereabouts of H. M. Tilford, and said he was in New York.

"I saw him Sunday," he added.

"Where is John D. Rockefeller?" Mr. Hadley demanded.

"He is at Lakewood," calmly replied the witness. "As I explained, his health is not good, and he has had no active connection with the oil buisiness for ten years or more. He is between New York and Lakewood constantly.

"When did you see him last?"

"About two weeks ago in New York; a few days ago in Lakewood. If it is proper for me to say so, he knows nothing about the matters concerned in this suit. His health is such that it imposes quite a care upon him. He has no desire to evade testifying, Mr. Hadley, but he is very much averse to the idea of the notoriety and cartooning which would follow his appearance in public. I am authorized to say for him that if you desire to question him in private he will be very glad to talk to you. I am sure you will find him willing to answer any question you may ask."

"There is only one way and one place to examine witnesses in this hearing," said Mr. Hadley decisively, "I will agree to no other mode of procedure."

"Mr. Rockefeller's health is not what it might be," reiterated the man on the stand.

"Is he confined to his bed?" curtly inquired Mr. Hadley.

"By no means; but his general health is not good and has not been for several years. That is why he takes no active interest in the oil business."

Mr. Hadley inquired if Mr. Archbold was not really the head of the oil end of the Standard and the witness replied that he thought he could say, in all fairness, that he had as much to do with the management as anybody else.

When Mr. Archbold was excused an adjournment was taken for luncheon. When the hearing was resumed Wade Hampton, the general auditor of Standard Oil, was called as a witness. He testified at the hearing in January, and at that time refused to answer several questions on the advice of counsel. He was more obliging yesterday.

He said that while he was the auditor of the Standard Oil Company he did not audit the accounts of the Waters-Pierce Company. He admitted that men had been sent by him to Missouri to audit the Waters-Pierce accounts, but explained that when they were assigned to this duty they were put on the pay rolls of that corporation.

After further questioning he owned up to having misled the Attorney General at his previous appearance. It was unintentional, however.

"I presumed," he said, "when I testified the last time, that I was being asked about the auditing of the accounts of the Waters-Pierce Company as formed prior to 1890."

"Don't you think your answers then were calculated to mislead?" questioned Mr. Hadley.

"I do not," replied Mr. Hampton, and went on to explain what he had endeavored then to convey. He told of auditing the books of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Republic Oil Company.

Mr. Hadley sprung a mine by producing a letter written by Mr. Hampton to H. Clay Pierce, the President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, on July 7, 1899. This letter introduced "our Mr. Hornberger," who came, according to the letter, "at the writer's request to audit the books of that corporation. Mr. Hampton admitted having written the letter. Other letters of similar nature were shown him.

"Do you wish now to correct your former tesimony concerning the auditing of the Waters-Pierce books?" asked Mr. Hadley, significantly.

"I have already corrected it," was the reply.

Further correspondence was introduced in evidence showing that Mr. Hampton, as auditor of the Standard Oil Company, placed men on the rolls of the Waters-Pierce Company from time to time. Some of the letters were used to contradict testimony previously given by Mr. Hampton.

Harry E. Platt, a former employe of the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway, was the last witness examined. He testified as to the supervision exercised by the company over the business of the Waters-Pierce Company, saying that daily reports were made to 26 Broadway as to the cash balances and daily receipts of the Missouri concern. These reports went to the controller. The Standard directed the business of the Waters-Pierce Company in all details. Mr. Platt was still on the stand when an adjournment was taken until this morning.

Mr. Hadley told the Special Commissioner prior to adjournment, that he would probably finish the introduction of testimony to-day.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 26.—Telephone messages and notes sent to John D. Rockefeller's home this evening for the purpose of learning whether Mr. Rockefeller intended to meet Attorney General Hadley and tell about the Standard Oil Company were received by Mr. Rockefeller's secretary. To all the same response was returned: "We have nothing to say."

BRITISH MANAGER QUITS.

Haldeman of the Mutual Life Will Work for the Policy Holders.

LONDON, March 26.—D. C. Haldeman, British manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, has resigned from the company's service on account of differences with the management of the New York office over matters which he considers to be of vital interest to policy holders.

Before resigning Mr. Haldeman consulted many prominent persons, several of whom are insured for large sums in the Mutual Life. He is still prepared to give his services to the British policy holders in advising measures in their interest. It is understood that he has constantly protested against the extravagance of the working of the company as a whole, compared with the London branch, where the expenses are only 14.61 per cent. of the premium income.

The Mutual has 26,000 policies in the United Kingdom, representing more than $75,000,000. Its business here equals that of the largest British companies, and extends from peers and the wealthiest landowners down. Many policies are for more than $500,000, and a few even double that amount. According to The Daily Chronicle Mr. Haldeman resolved to resign some time ago, but deferred action on account of his anxiety concerning the position of the British holders and in the hope that real reforms would be introduced in the management.

"Now," says The Daily Chronicle, "realizing that the head office is doing nothing to prevent holders from surrendering their policies in panic, and foreseeing that it is impossible for him to carry out the new policy of the Directors, which would not insure public confidence, he has resigned."

and his body battered terribly. He had been under the burning débris for half an hour. He was carried across Carmine Street into a plumber's shop, where Father Smith administered extreme unction. Healy died in a few minutes.

While this tragedy was being enacted the fire had spread from the factory building to the adjoining building in Downing Street, another Greenwich landmark, an old-fashioned and stately residence turned into a tenement house. Adjoining this building is a large stable of the Borden Condensed Milk Company.

As fast as the reserves could be brought from the downtown police stations men were sent into the many tenements in reach of the conflagration to drive out the families bent upon saving their household goods at peril of their lives. The danger of the fire getting beyond control was imminent when Fire Chief Croker reached the scene.

Four alarms, one after another, were sent in as the flames leaped across the narrow streets and spread to the adjoining blocks. Two six-story tenement buildings in Downing Street, opposite the Metal Stamping Company's building, blazed forth in every window, their cornices of sheet iron shriveling in the heat. The six-story tenement at the corner of Bedford and Downing Streets also caught fire, and a part of a falling wall crashed across the street and tore a wide gap in its side, destroying the grocery store of John Curtin on the ground floor and ripping another gap in the building opposite it, across Bedford Street.

All the buildings in Bedford Street from Downing to Carmine Street caught fire from the heat, and the little old-fashioned buildings at 60, 62, 64, 66, and 68 Carmine Street were also soon ablaze.

The first companies to face the battle were Engines 24, 30, and 18, and Trucks 5 and 20. The second alarm brought Engines 13, 33, 20, and 72, and Truck 8. The third alarm brought Engines 27, 55, 14, 3, 25, and Truck 9. The fourth alarm brought Engines 17, 29, 11, 7, 9, and 19, and Truck 1. Water Tower No. 2 was also called on.

Nearly 200 men were employed in the fight besides the police of the first eighteen precincts of the city and the harbor police, who were also called in to prevent too great a depletion of the city's protective force.

Deputy Commissioner Waldo was the ranking police officer at the fire. He had under him Inspector Hogan and most of the Captains from the downtown precincts. They had much work to do, for the fire area was closely surrounded by towering tenements, every exposed bit of woodwork of which crackled and blazed, and the roofs of which frequently burst forth into long spouts of flame. The narrow streets were crowded with weeping women and little mothers lugging babies and bundles of clothes, even their broken dollies. In and out of the blistering buildings on Carmine, Downing, and Bedford Streets they swarmed, dodging under the heads of Fire Department horses, stumbling over the web of hose lines, snatching their little possessions from destruction.

A hundred families were forced into the street by the fire, and at Public School No. 113 more than thirty children learned that they had no homes to go to when the school was dismissed. In order to quell the restlessness of the little ones, who sniffed the smoke and heard the distant rumbling of the engines and the resounding crash of falling walls, these children were taken in charge by a teacher and housed in a Downing Street building at a safe distance from the fire, the teacher fearing that they would try to help their parents at the risk of their lives.

In the factory building, which was owned by the Metal Stamping Company, of which John F. Galvin is President, three concerns did business. The metal company occupied the first, second, and third floors; the Standard Thread Company occupied the sixth floor, and the Empire Art Company, which manufactures novelties, occupied the fifth.

A fire was discovered on the third floor, and at first it was considered of little importance. An alarm was sent in, but before the engines arrived a terrific explosion shook the building. In the japanning room, where the metal is polished or lacquered, chemicals had been set off by the heat and flames. Nearly 200 Italians employed by the metal company fought their way, trampling one another, down the stairway leading to Downing Street.

Overhead on the sixth floor fifty women employed by the Standard Thread Company were cut off. Their only way of exit was by the fire escape on the Bedford Street side. Many of the women were overcome with fright and fainted. Policemen John F. McDonald and James Dolan of the Charles Street Station and John J. O'Connell were present when the women began crowding the fire escapes. They clambered through smoke to them, and passed those who had fainted one to the other until they were all on the street.

Other policemen were kept busy getting the frightened women away from the building, which was, in a wonderfully short time, a furnace. It was necessary to carry many of them to streets two and three blocks away before they could be left, so bewildered and panic-stricken were they. In the tenements nearest the factory clubs had to be drawn to drive the occupants to places of safety. It was this anxiety to save property on the part of poor tenants that kept two Italians in the old "morgue" until the wall crashed to earth. Lucurio, who escaped from this building, says that two of his countrymen were within it when he was thrown out through a window. He does not know their names, and they have not been seen since the tragedy.

The fire burned until late last night. Six hours after it began, Chief Croker was still directing men in digging in the burning ruins where Engine Company 14 suffered its disaster. The men were caught under the falling wall about 1:30 o'clock, and when the two living, Cohen and McKeon, were brought out, there was not the remotest hope of saving the lives of any of the others, but all were anxious to save their bodies from the flames. While Chief Croker was at work in the ruins with his men about 4 o'clock a toppling fragment of wall compelled him to call the workers away. He resumed work at 5 o'clock, however, searchlights being turned on the ruins.

After many tons of burning wood, household material, and hot brick and mortar had been removed, the bodies of Foreman Walsh, Halpin, and Christman were found. They were partly burned, but not unrecognizable.

Foreman Walsh was 42 years old. He was appointed to the department March 16, 1891, and assigned to Engine Company No. 5. He was made an engineer in 1896, Assistant Foreman in 1901, and Foreman of Company 14 in 1903. He was married and leaves a family. He was three times on the roll of merit for conspicuous bravery.

Dennis J. Healy was 31 years old. He was born in Ireland. He was appointed in 1903, and had a good record. Christman and Halpin had each been in the department two years, and their records were good.

Company 14 had a roll of fourteen men. Four of them were killed yesterday, a fifth, McKeon, probably fatally hurt; Cohen, disabled by burns and abrasions, although hopeful of getting back to active duty some day, and five others more or less seriously injured.

Foreman Walsh was in charge of a fire company sent to Baltimore to help in the fire which destroyed the business section of that city. Healey was injured in a big Broadway fire Sunday morning about six weeks ago. Out of the fourteen there were only six men who answered roll call after the destruction of the old "Morgue" building.

The widows and children of the dead firemen will be provided for by the half pay pension allowed them when firemen die at their posts of duty. Foreman Walsh drew $2,100 a year, and half this sum will be paid his widow for life.

A policeman's overcoat was found in the ruins of 60 Carmine Street. For a time it was feared that a member of the force had been killed, but no policeman has been reported missing.

At 9 o'clock last night when Patrick Hogan, a 19-year-old boy, whose home is at 13 Carmine Street, walked near the demolished Carmine Street building he was struck by a piece of falling timber. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital with a fractured skull.

DR. BUTTS, WOUNDED, DIES.

Coroner Thinks He Had a Stroke and Fell on Razor.

Hearing groans in the bathroom of the suite at the Hotel Seville, at Madison Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, occupied by Dr. H. Hoyle Butts, a chambermaid opened the door and found the doctor wounded on the floor.

It was about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and Dr. Butts had evidently gone into the bathroom to shave. Below his right ear was a gash three inches long and very deep. Near by lay a razor. The doctor couldn't make himself understood, the chambermaid said later.

The hotel managers summoned Dr. Charles W. Allen of 30 East Thirty-third Street. He could do nothing for Dr. Butts, and some time later the Coroner's office was notified. Coroner Dooley reached the hotel shortly after noon.

Dr. Butts was barely alive then, and he died soon afterward. A burial permit was issued. Coroner Dooley said last night that he could find nothing to point toward suicide. He thought that Dr. Butts had had an apoplectic stroke, and had fallen on the razor. Detectives Raynes and Weil of the Tenderloin Station agreed with Coroner Dooley.

Mrs. Butts had left the hotel early in the morning. She was there in the afternoon and last night, but would not see any one. Dr. Butts and his wife had occupied Rooms 45 and 46 since last September. They had lived there at various times before.

Dr. Butts had an office at 45 East Forty-fourth Street. He was a prominent nose and throat specialist. He was a surgeon at Bellevue, in the Presbyterian Hospital, and in the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, and was an instructor in the New York Post-Graduate Hospital. He was a member of a number of medical societies, and belonged to the Calumet Club and the Strollers.

PUTER, CAUGHT, ESCAPES.

Oregon Land Fraud Fugitive Draws a Pistol in Boston Street.

BOSTON, March 26.—Stephen A. B. Puter of San Francisco, who is wanted by the United States Government as a witness in the land fraud cases in Oregon, was arrested here to-night by United States Marshal W. B. Burns of Washington.

The Oregon State authorities for months have sought Puter, who was formerly a broker, in connection with the forgeries of school land certificates involving $75,000. Marshal Burns was sent here to search for Puter, and learned that he had been calling nightly at the Fenway Branch Post Office, at Massachusetts Avenue and Boylston Street, for mail.

Puter at the office this evening recognized Burns, and agreed to go into a private room in the Post Office. Burns understood that Supt. Swift of the branch office had gone for police officers, and supposing that they were outside the building, he placed Puter under arrest and took him to the sidewalk. Puter drew a pistol, and, pointing it, said:

"I'll kill you, Burns, if you dare to move."

The crowd about a street car transfer station at that corner fell away when the weapon was drawn. Burns, although considerably older than his prisoner, jumped at him and pushed up the gun.

After a hard struggle Puter wrenched himself free and backed away with the pistol pointing at Burns. Then he turned and darted down the street, followed by Burns and many other persons. He soon disappeared, however.

Baltimore Herald's Debts.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—Upon complaint of Wesley M. Oler of Westechester County, New York, President of the American Ice Company, and a former Baltimorean, Judge Morris to-day appointed receivers for The Herald Publishing Company, publishers of The Evening and Sunday Herald. He named as receivers Lynn R. Meekins, President of The Herald Company, and Henry H. Head.

The bill states that the Herald Publishing Company is indebted to Mr. Oler, who is a stockholder, in the sum of $61,866.37, and in addition that Mr. Oler is liable as indorser for $108,311.36, making the aggregate amount owing to Mr. Oler $170,188.73. The entire indebtedness of the company the complainant avers to be upward of $225,000.

Six Laborers Killed in Wyoming Accident Due to Floods.

CASPER, Wyoming, March 26.—Six railroad laborers were killed to-day and a score injured, several probably fatally, when a work train on the Wyoming Division of the Chicago & Northwestern dropped into a swollen stream through an undermined bridge near Natrona. Among the dead is Charles Noll, foreman of the gang. Most of the other men were Austrians and Italians.

The locomotive passed over the bridge, but several cars, including a coach, fell into the flooded river. The coach containing twenty-six men was crushed under [illegible] canyon. GOV. CURRY FOUND; IS CHASING PULAJANES Purposes to Exterminate Them, with Aid of Troops.

TELLS STORY OF TREACHERY

Capt. Jones, with His Constabulary, Gained Victory in Face of Overwhelming Odds.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The official account of the fight with the Pulajanes, on the Island of Samar, Philippines, was received at the War Department to-day from Gov. Gen. Ide, as follows:

"Manila, March 26.

"Secretary of War, Washington:

"Saturday morning, March 24, Gov. Curry had arranged to receive the surrender of the remaining Pulajanes and leaders at Magtaon, Island of Samar. The leaders and 100 Pulajanes with fourteen guns presented themselves.

"Immediately before the surrender was to occur the Pulajanes leader signaled and all made a bolo rush. Judge Lobinger and the district chool inspector escaped in one direction and Curry in another, swimming the river and escaping in the brush. Other Americans safe.

"The constabulary lost sixteen killed, wounded, and missing, and some guns were lost. Thirty Pulajanes were buried. Pulajanes were pursued. Curry was lost thirty-six hours, but presently found in road camp. He withdraws application for leave of absence and proposes to finish the pacification. Reports natives in the province actively assisting him. Each found zealous to exterminate Pulajanes.

"IDE."

MANILA, March 26.—Governor Curry in a report to the Government on the recent engagement with Pulajanes at Magtaon says:

"Had a hard fight in which Capt. Jones of the constabulary lost half of his command, gaining a magnificent victory in the face of overwhelming odds. The Pulajanes under a flag of truce, and while promising to surrender, immediately opened fire, charging the constabulary.

"The leader of the Pulajanes ordered his men to first wipe out the constabulary, and then to capture myself and the other Americans.

"I have requested a company of Federal troops immediately, and later on when joined by this additional force will prepare to wage a war of extermination against the fugitives, which is the only alternative.

"The constabulary did splendidly, though their inferior firearms, which were minus bayonets, placed them at a disadvantage. With the assistance of the Federal troops we will be able to exterminate the fugitives, who are now in the mountains, and will destroy the crops.

"The natives of Samar, with the exception of the Pulajanes, are in sympathy with us, and are assisting us.

"Every town is endeavoring to assist in the extermination of the fugitives.

"Several prominent Filipinos were present and witnessed the treacherous action of the Pulajanes.

"Judge Lobinger and all the other Americans are safe."

Gen. Buchanan, commanding the Department of Viscayas, has left for Catbalogan, the capital of the Island of Samar, to lend the aid of the Federal Government to the insular authorities if desirable.

Small detachments of Federal troops are now assisting the constabulary in the pursuit of the fugitive Pulajanes.

Major-General Wood has loaned the constabulary 500 Krag-Jorgensen rifles, to supplant the single shot Springfields they have been using.

EPIGRAMS BY ODELL.

He Drops Political Wisdom at a Banquet in Binghamton.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 26.—Ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., was the chief speaker at the first annual banquet of the Press Club this evening. He delighted his hearers with a series of political epigrams. Here are some of them:

"Leaders are not all bosses, yet a leader may at times be almost a dictator.

"Organizations are strong because of numbers. Each man is but a unit of the successful aggregate. When division comes there usually follows defeat.

"Envy is unsparing in its abuse and efforts to pull down and destroy. Attacks of this character should be well considered before we give them credence. The motives of such assault, if understood, should strengthen, rather than weaken, those attacked. The timid may lose faith, but the strong become more determined by reason of the efforts of the vicious.

"The desire for party success has overshadowed the evils which follow control by corporatioins of party politics. It is not the destruction of corporations that will bring relief, but rather their divorcement from such participation.

"Corporate wealth makes up the individual wealth of the country. It is the employer of labor; its destruction, therefore, would mean misery, want, and the retarding of progress. But corporations are not the only sinners. Patronage, the meanest and lowest form of bribery, despite civil service restrictions, may often thwart public will.

"Crimination will not work reform, neither will the clamor of the unrepentent hide their own guilt.

"There is no political offense that has not at some time been condoned. That which is legitimate to-day may be outlawed to-morrow."

TO DAM THE PRINTED FLOOD.

House, After an Experience Meeting, Resolves to Check Public Printing.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The plague of public documents and its remedy occupied colloquially the anxious attention of the House for several minutes this afternoon. The calling up by Representative Charles B. Landis, Chairman of the Committee on Printing, of his joint resolution to prevent unnecessary printing and to correct evils in the distribution of public documents, brought from all parts of the Chamber appeals for protection from the flood that flows from the Government Printing Office. It was a unanimous cry for help, and all the House wanted was to have Mr. Landis show how his resolution was to furnish the help in order to vote for it.

Victor Murdock, the curly-headed Kansan, was concerned about one form of annoyance. "Have you ever seen a hydrographic report?" he asked Landis.

"I never did," answered Landis, "and I hope I never may."

"They come all the time," explained Murdock, "and they are so full of polysyllables that they sound like a foreign language. No man not a post-graduate of seventeen scientific schools can tell whether they are talking about icebergs or orange blossoms, and I don't want 'em bothering me any more."

That brought out Mr. Cooper, the tall Wisconsin man who knows all about the Philippines and needs no more documents. "Somebody has been busy lately," he said with bitterness, "sending me three-volume sets of a heavy, bulky document which I can understand how he should want to get rid of. The last set came only last Saturday. It treats of the triacic cephalopod genera of America, whatever that is. Is there no protection?"

"There are now stored," said Mr. Landis, "in the basement of the Capitol, in the old street car barn, in the old Government Printing Office, and in two warehouses more than 9,500 tons of obsolete documents. At 20 tons to a car it would make a train two and a half miles long to haul them away from Washington. We have either got to have relief of some sort or hire more warehouses to store the undisposed-of surplus. We paid $14,000 last year for the rental of the storage rooms."

"In the Fifty-third Congress," put in Champ Clark, "a resolution was passed distributing the old documents pro rata. They sent me two carloads, and half of them were so milldewed and rat-eaten and the other half so antiquated that no one would or could read them."

"We are now accumulating 70,000 volumes of the Congressional Record annually," continued Landis, "and storing them up because nobody wants them."

The resolution was passed unanimously. It will empower the printing committees of the two houses to fix the number of documents to be printed, and, should the demand arise for additional copies of a publication, then to have authority to order another edition. It is said this action will result in saving the Government upward of $1,000,000 annually.

ENTERPRISE BANK ARRESTS.

W. H. Andrews's Confidential Man Among the Five Prisoners.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 26.—Five arrests were made to-day by the United States authorities in connection with the failure of the Enterprise National Bank. It is alleged by Special Examiner Moxey, who swore out the warrants, that those caught in to-day's dragnet were associated in wrecking the bank with Cashier T. Lee Clark, who killed himself Oct. 18 last, the day of the exposure.

Those placed under arrest were Forest R. Nichols, private secretary and confidential clerk to W. H. (Bull) Andrews, representative of the Territory of New Mexico at Washington; Lambert S. Cook, said to have been a business partner of Cashier Clark, and Charles Menzemer, George R. Ralston, and Elward P. McMillan, employes of the Enterprise Bank.

Late to-night information was made against another official of the Enterprise Bank, but he has not yet been found. Sixty-eight informations have been made in all, 22 against Nichols, 11 against Cook, 17 against Ralston, 11 against McMillan, 6 against Menzemer, and 1 against the missing man.

Those arrested were each placed under $5,000 bail for hearing before the United States Commissioner next Monday, but Cook, Menzemer, and McMillan, not being able to obtain bail, were committed.

All the informations are based on the alleged conspiracy of Nichols to use the funds of the Enterprise National Bank in the interest of the Santa Fé Railroad Company and the Pennsylvania Construction Company.

The arrest of Nichols is considered most significant here, as he is and has been for years the expert financial man of Representative "Bull" Andrews in all of his moves, and it is asserted that he engineered the deals which turned out so badly and resulted in the wreck of the Enterprise National Bank.

It also develops to-day that the informations were made six weeks ago against the five men arrested to-day, but for some reason not yet made public the warrants were not served until to-day.

RECTOR TUCKERMAN QUITS.

Fears He Talked Too Plainly for the Holy Faith Congregation.

Trouble which has been brewing in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Faith, at 166th Street and Trinity Avenue, for many months was brought to a climax on Sunday morning when the Rev. Gustavus Tuckerman tendered his resignation as rector of the parish. Mr. Tuckerman says he talked too plainly for some of his congregation.

Four years ago the Rev. Mr. Tuckerman was called to the pulpit made vacant by the death of the Rev. Victor Smith. For two years church affairs ran smoothly, the congregation grew, and a parish house was built. Then there came trouble, and last October Mr. Tuckerman tendered his resignation, but it was withdrawn. He will leave his charge on May 1.

$3,600 GIVEN TO WOOD TO CIRCLE THE EARTH

Secretary Taft Explains How the General Got the Allowance.

PRESIDENT'S SECRET ORDER

"Confidential Business" Carried Wood to London, Where His Head, Hurt Against Chandelier, Was Treated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Secretary Taft admitted to-day that the Government had paid $3,600 for the trip around the world last Summer of Gen. Leonard Wood and his aide. The Secretary appeared before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs to talk about the President's plan for the distribution of officers among army posts, but Senator Overman insisted on asking about the Wood incident.

Mr. Taft said the first information he had that Gen. Wood desired to go to Boston for an operation was received in May in a cablegram from Gen. Corbin, who said that Gen. Wood was suffering from an injury received seven years before in the line of duty, and he asked secrecy because he did not want to alarm Gen. Wood's mother.

The injury was received by Gen. Wood while in Cuba. He struck his head against a chandelier. No bad effects were felt until the service in the Philippines began. He was then attacked by severe cramps and the surgeons attributed the difficulty to pressure on the brain. They declined to undertake the operation and issued a certificate recommending his return to the United States to have his skull trephined. Gen. Wood got leave of absence and went to Hong Kong on a transport and home on a liner.

"I met General Wood in Chicago," went on Mr. Taft. "He explained the circumstances and in accordance with the custom in the army I ordered him to Boston as the proper place for the performance of the operation."

Gen. Wood explained that he had no means except his salary and suggested that he be put on duty status, which the Secretary told him could be done, his aide, Capt. Dorey, being permitted to accompany him. Vouchers for mileage were issued for the transportation of the two officers from Manila to Boston.

The Boston operation was not entirely satisfactory to the General's friends in the United States, including the President. Accordingly the General remained in this country from July 7, when the operation was performed, until Aug. 24, when, at the suggestion of the surgeon, the President issued an order directing Gen. Wood to return to the Philippines via London for the purpose of consulting a specialist there.

Military Secretary Ainsworth issued an order directing Gen. Wood to proceed to London on confidential service, which, the order said, had been explained to the General by the President.

Mr. Taft said the allowance came under the regulation for payments for public duty. He contended that an officer was as much on public duty when protecting his health as at other times.

"Do you know of any other officer who has traveled on a liner and had his expenses paid instead of using a transport?" asked Senator Overman.

Senator Taft laughed loudly.

Mr. Overman asked whether Gen. Corbin had done so.

"He applied for an order, but I did not give it," said Mr. Taft.

He referred to his last Summer's trip to the Orient, saying that he had told the army officers that on that trip they would be allowed their expenses, but not mileage.

"When we got to Hongkong," he said, "I received an order from the President to go to Canton to interview the Viceroy on the boycott, and the officers accompanied me in uniform. Subsequently, I gave them an order for the pay of their mileage on that trip, supposing that it covered only their expenses to Canton, but I found afterward that it had been construed as covering the entire trip to San Francisco. When this was explained to me, I made a new order, which was exactly the same as the order made in the Wood case. Gen. Corbin came on a liner and paid his own expenses."

WARNING TO HOSPITALS.

Bill Punishing Officials Who Transfer Dying Patients to Bellevue.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 26.—Senator Fitzgerald took a rap to-night at the practice prevalent in New York hospitals of transferring ill and dying patients to Bellevue so as to keep down the death roll in the transferring institutions and make a good showing on the general health of the institutions.

The Senator introduced a bill which provides that any hospital official who shall transfer a patient to another institution while such patient is ill, shall be fined $5,000 on conviction or suffer imprisonment for five years.

MORE DIAMONDS IN PARKS.

Committee of Inter-City Association to Visit Mayor for That Purpose.

The Intercity Baseball Association held its regular meeting at Lyric Hall, Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, last night and admitted a number of new members to its roll, which includes now over 160 amateur and semi-professional clubs in the neighborhood of New York. Interest was attached to the meeting by reason of a plan advanced by President Baldwin for the advancement of the league interests.

It is proposed at the next meeting to appoint a committee of managers of clubs enrolled in the association to meet with a committee of prominent men interested in furthering baseball and to jointly visit Mayor McClellan for the purpose of securing his influence to a plan to provide suitable playing grounds for the clubs within the park systems of the city.

In the Bronx there are already laid out some fifteen diamonds, which may be used by amateur and semi-professional clubs for their games. It is desired that another tract in Bronx Park may be set aside for the same purpose, doubling the facilities. It is also desired that permission be secured to play in Central Park on various fields that might be made available, and the effort will be made to have them all placed at the disposal of the association for the use of its teams.

It is expected that before the end of the Summer there will be 500 clubs enrolled in the association, all subject to its jurisdiction and subscribing to its tenets. Its main purpose will be to foster and develop the sport, to extend it, and secure further advantages to those playing it, and to enforce the fulfillment of all agreements.

PRODUCE BROKERS TO VOTE

On Whether or Not to Lease the Little Exchange Some Floor Space.

A postal ballot of the members of the Produce Exchange is under way to determine their attitude toward the proposed lease of a part of the Exchange floor to the Consolidated Exchange, whose property at Broadway and Exchange Place is under negotiation for lease to a real estate syndicate, which has planned the erection of a modern office building on the site.

The Board of Managers of the Consolidated Exchange has been dickering for floor privileges in the big Produce Exchange Building for months. When the proposal to sell the leasehold of their property was approved a few weeks ago, the officials of the little exchange acceded informally to the grain brokers' terms, $30,000 a year for the use of one-third of the floor.

In his circular to the members sent out yesterday, President Grenville Perrin, besides setting forth the offer of the Consolidated Exchange, called attention to the provision of the by-laws of the Stock Exchange which prohibits any of its members maintaining a private wire to any building occupied by the Consolidated Exchange.

More than seventy Stock Exchange brokers at present hold membership in the Produce Exchange, and if the Consolidated Exchange moves into the big Beaver Street building, Stock Exchange houses will be cut off from all direct connection.

Both the Consolidated and the Produce Exchange are split up into factions just now. A minority of the former's members, composed chiefly of commission houses as opposed to floor traders, are bitterly opposed to any connection with the Produce Exchange, which has been declining in membership and importance for a number of years.

The latter is in the midst of a fight growing out of dissatisfaction with the present management. A petition signed by 276 members has been sent out asking everybody to get together in support of the reforms proposed by the Ways and Means Committee, which recently reported, and to support the candidates the petitioners will put forward at the June election. The Ways and Means Committee found fault with the administration of the Exchange's building and, among other reforms, proposed the sale of the property.

RAILROADS FIGHT RATE CUT.

Say Proposed Action by Minnesota Board Would Cost $15,000,000.

ST. PAUL, March 26.—The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission gave a hearing to-day on the schedule of rates recently reported in conformity with a resolution passed by the last Legislature ordering reductions on ten classes of commodities.

Most of the railroads centring in St. Paul were represented at the hearing to-day. Attorney C. A. Severance asserted that the railroads, of their own motion, had from time to time reduced the rates on wheat, lumber, and coal.

"Basing the issues on the schedules as lowered," he continued, "this inquiry involves more money than any case ever tried before the commission or a local court. If the reduction is made in conformity with the tentative suggestion it means a reduction of 5 per cent. in the capital or a total in money of more than $15,000,000."

WOMAN IN TRUNK MURDER.

She Confesses to Having Helped Dispose of McVicar's Body.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 26.—Mrs. Emma Le Doux, or Mrs. O. McVicar, as she called herself here, was arrested at Antioch to-day charged with complicity in the murder of Albert N. McVicar, whose body was found in a trunk among some baggage at the Southern Pacific depot here on Saturday night.

Mrs. Le Doux, when arrested, said carbolic acid had been administered to McVicar on Saturday morning by Joseph Miller, but that she had nothing to do with the case aside from assisting in putting the body into the trunk. She gave no reason for the killing.

Dr. Hull, who helped perform the autopsy, says that blows on the head caused death, and that there was no evidence of poison.

WORK OF CIVIC FEDERATION.

Its Success in Preventing Strikes Told at Annual Meeting.

Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation, reported at the annual meeting of that body at the Park Avenue Hotel yesterday that success attended the efforts of the Conciliation Department in three-fourths of the cases that came before it. Last month the Federation prevented the threatened tie-up on a large electric railway in a nearby city. The employes allowed only twenty-four hours in which to bring about a conference, but the Federation managed to reach both the Chairman of the Executive Board and the President of the railway within that time. Both expressed surprise that matters had gone so far without their hearing of them. A conference was granted, and the difficulties were adjusted.

These officers were elected: August Belmont, President; Samuel Gompers and Oscar S. Straus, Vice Presidents; Isaac Seligman, Treasurer; Seth Low, Chairman of the Conciliation Department; Charles A. Moore, Chairman of the Welfare Department; Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Committee, and Samuel B. Donnelly, Secretary. Isaac Seligman takes the place of Cornelius N. Bliss and Charles A. Moore of H. H. Vreeland, resigned.

TWO SUICIDES ON SLAVONIA.

Steward Jumps Overboard, Passenger Hangs Himself—Girl's Death.

When the Cunard line steamship Slavonia, in yesterday from Mediterranean ports, anchored in Quarantine last night her officers reported to the medical inspectors who boarded the liner that there had been three deaths on the voyage, two suicides and one due to natural causes. The suicides were a steerage passenger, Frank Svet, and a steward named Edelstein. Edelstein is supposed to have jumped overboard, while Svet hanged himself in the ship's hospital.

On the 17th of this month, when the Slavonia was in mid-ocean, Svet and Edelstein ended their lives. Edelstein had been brooding over imaginary troubles during the voyage, and although no one saw him jump overboard, there is little reason to doubt but that he did do so. The ship's officers were still searching for Edelstein when Svet killed himself. Svet boarded the ship at Fiume and from the day that the liner passed into the Atlantic he exhibited unmistakable signs of insanity.

His condition at length became so serious that it was decided to confine him in the hospital. During the absence of the hospital steward the patient managed to get a piece of rope, which he made fast to a hook on the wall. When the steward got back Svet was dead. His body was buried at sea on the day he died.

The third death on the ship was that of Anna Spear, a four-year-old girl. Her body was also buried at sea.

DEFENDS DR. WOODBURY.

But Citizens' Union Sees Faults in the Manner of Keeping His Accounts.

An elaborate defense of the administration of the Department of Street Cleaning under Commissioner Woodbury was issued last night by Henry Bruere, Secretary of the Citizens' Union Bureau of City Betterment.

It says that a house to house canvas of typical districts in Manhattan and Brooklyn was made by members of the bureau's staff, and that it "revealed little or no complaint concerning the removal of garbage or ashes, and but slight evidences of petty grafting on the part of the Street Cleaning employes."

The report goes on to say that, in regard to the frequent complaints that the streets are not properly cleaned, "there are, unfortunately, no statistics to show the actual amount of labor performed on the streets, but it is apparent that Commissioner Woodbury does not enjoy the co-operation of citizens which helped to make Commissioner Waring's fight against dirty streets so successful."

"Piles of waste paper, garbage, and store refuse are found everywhere on the public highways," reports Mr. Bruere. "The ordinance forbidding the sweeping of litter from the sidewalks into the streets after an early hour in the morning is notoriously ignored."

The report finds fault with the lack of detail in Commissioner Woodbury's report, especially with the manner of accounting, which, it states, does not explain why the cost of final disposition of material should have increased 5 per cent. per carload in five years, nor why the receipts from trimming should have decreased. Complaint is made also that the equipment of the department is not properly accounted for, and that the expenditure account does not show the nature of the disbursements. It is promised that the bureau's pamphlet, when published, will contain a criticism of the Commissioner's report.

NO TARIFF REVISION NOW.

Mr. Payne Would Wait Until the House Is Calm and Judicial in Temper.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—What may be regarded as the final pronouncement against tariff revision at the present session of Congress is contained in a letter from Chairman Payne of the House Ways and Means Committee in reply to a communication sent him by Representative McCall on behalf of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress. The Massachusetts view, as presented by Mr. McCall, is that conditions have so changed as to demand change from the Dingley rates, which have served nine years.

Mr. Payne says tariff legislation can be brought about only by the concurrent view of the majority of the party in power. He declares that this conourrent view does not exist. The house, he asserts, is divided into groups of members, each group favoring the modification of different schedules, while a majority of the Republicans do not believe that there should be any change at all. He adds:

"While it is true that some improvement could well be made in the rates under the Dingley bill, it was probably as free from defect at the time of its passage as any new law which could now be enacted. During the nine years of its operation the country has enjoyed prosperity unparalleled, a prosperity which at the present time is simply marvelous.

"We may well hesitate to take any chance of interrupting the business of the country by a general revision of the tariff, and we should never enter upon it until we are satisfied that such a revision will accomplish results far outweighing any well grounded apprehension of business depression, and consequent evil results which would come even temporarily from such revision."

THIRTEENTH'S BOYS WIN MILITARY MEDLEY RACE

Co. F Captures Two Trophies at Twenty-second's Games.

MEDALS FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

Crack Mile Runner Melvin Sheppard Fails to Beat Time for His Favorite Distance.

Speedy running in the final of the round robin medley relay race, which was won by the Thirteenth Regiment team; the one-mile championship Military Athletic League relay race in which the Seventy-first Regiment captured the title, and an attempt of Melvin W. Sheppard to create a new indoor figure for the mile, kept athletic followers keyed up with enthusiasm last night at the Twenty-second Regiment games. The events on the well-balanced programme resulted in excellent contests on the track of the armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway.

Eleven of the American Olympic team were on hand, and they were presented with the souvenir medals contributed by Lieut. Charles J. Dieges of the Twenty-second. President John H. Van Wormer of the New York Athletic Club handed the suberb gold medallions swung to bits of blue and white ribbon to the men. As each stepped forward the crowd cheered in a way that indicated its interest in the work it hopes the athletes to accomplish in the games at Athens, Greece.

The men of the team who received medals last night were: Howard Valentine, George V. Bonhag, W. G. Frank, Meyer Prinstein, James S. Mitchel, J. P. Sullivan, Lawson Robertson, Charles Bacon, Martin Sheridan, Harvey Cohn, and Harry L. Hillman, Jr.

The Thirteenth Regiment team of Brooklyn, which won the medley race, included Lawson Robertson, Harry L. Hillman, Jr., and Harvey Cohn of the Olympic team, and William Van Thun. They received the cups offered by Gen. George W. Wingate, President of the Public Schools Athletic League, for the event.

In the final race of this series last night the Thirteenth Regiment runners met those of the Twenty-third Regiment, as the team of the Twenty-second Regiment had previously been defeated. The lead alternated among the teams until Harvey Cohn and Charles Bacon started out on the last relay. Bacon led for the first half mile, with Cohn right at his heels. Then Cohn footed to the front, with Bacon racing behind him. On the last lap Bacon made a fine spurt, but he could not catch Cohn, who finished at the tape by five yards. Cohn's time for his mile was 4:50 1-5, while the time for the entire race was 7:53 4-5.

Sheppard made a fine attempt to run a fast mile without pace. He circled the track at a lively gait, but finished in 4 minutes 31 seconds. His former time on the same track was 4 minutes 26 3-5 seconds.

Company F won the point trophy and also the O'Brien bronze for the inter-company relay race. Summary:

One-Mile Bicycle Race, Handicap.—Won by W. Van Den Dries, Company A, (10 yards;) F. E. Adams, Company I, (scratch,) second; H. V. Read, Company A, (30 yards,) third. Time—2:34 4-5.

Flood, (83 yards;) Company F, second team, Meyer Prinstein, J. McLaughlin, R. S. Shaefer, A. T. Boston, and H. S. Shapin, (81 yards,) second; Company A team, D. Frank, A. J. Crockett, W. F. Daly, W. Grady, J. J. Danaher, (37 yards,) third. Time—3:23 1-5.

12-Pound Shot-Put, Handicap.—Won by E. G. Woolfolk, Company I, (10 feet,) put 36 feet 9 inches; John Ellingwood, Company A, (12 feet,) put 33 feet 4 inches, second; J. C. Spraker, Company H, (9 feet,) put 35 feet 8 inches.

"The Coal Trust The Labor Trust and the People Who Pay"

The Coal Trust controls the coal-carrying railroad and 98 per cent of the anthracite coal-supply. Competition is absolutely impossible.

Against this "perfect and secure" monopoly, the Labor Trust—a giant of unknown power—is waging warfare. The battle is imminent.

GALLOPS AT GRAVESEND.

Ormondale, Futurity Winner, Out—Welsh's Youngsters Move Well.

With the rising temperature yesterday the Long Island race tracks improved greatly. All the snow had left the Gravesend course, where most of the training is being done, and Sheepshead Bay shows that it is rapidly coming to a condition when it will be possible to work over the main track.

At Gravesend, Tom Welsh was on hand early with his two-year-olds. They were sent along in a long gallop, and at the end were permitted to step along smartly. For the most part it was only three furlongs, and of those shown the most impressive ones were Conjecture, Encore, Gladsome, and Dixie Jane. This quartet went three furlongs in 0:44. Those of the older division that were brought out by Trainer Welsh were: Inquisitor, Bull's Eye, Merry Lark, and Duenna. They were galloped strongly, and after being well limbered up were permitted to go along for a half mile in 0:57½.

Ormondale, winner of the Futurity of last season, was under saddle, but he was not asked to go at speed. Though he has gone along smartly on occasions this Spring, there has been no unseemly hurry to fit him for the races, and he is evidently not destined for an early start.

Several of Newton Bennington's two-year-olds were brought out, but no speed was shown, though all of the youngsters went along nicely, and there are many in the big string that have undoubted quality. A half in 0:58 was all that was asked after the galloping had been completed. Those that appeared most prominent in this breezing were Royal Breeze, Charada, Russell T., Banosa, and Clare Duncan. Edna Jackson, the stable dependence in the filly stakes of the year, is progressing nicely in her work. Yesterday she was only galloped, but she had a bold, resolute way of going that indicated an ambition that should make her well worth remembering when the season opens about the New York tracks.

Tim Gaynor brought out three smart-looking two-year-olds and permitted them to go along for three furlongs in 0:42⅘. They were Fickle Dame, Morti Boy, and Sandy Creeker.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

The horses of J. L. Holland arrived at Sheepshead Bay yesterday from Los Angeles, Cal. They made the long trip in charge of Frank Regan, and he reported that all the horses had stood the trip well. There came in the lot Masterson, winner of the Los Angeles Derby. He has grown into a colt of size and substance, and it should not take long to fit him for his campaign in the East. Confessor and Hester W., also of the lot, showed no evil effects of the trip. Oarsman and Kehallan, a pair of the Holland horses that were wintered at Gravesend, in charge of Trainer Hueston, were turned over to Regan and hereafter he will handle them.

News reached Sheepshead Bay yesterday of the death of Joseph R. Graham, a short time ago a most popular horse owner. Mr. Graham, among others, owned the good horse Traverser, that was handled and raced by Bradley. He had several other good ones, though most of them raced in the name of his trainer. At one time Mr. Graham was Mayor of Paterson, N. J., and ever since his earliest connection with the turf he was much liked.

With the coming of Spring owners are beginning to make regular visits to the training stables to look over their horses. Stables at Gravesend have been singularly free from sickness this year, and never did horses come out of a long season of idleness in better health. Among the visitors Sunday were E. R. Thomas, who was looking over the two-year-olds he has in the care of A. J. Joyner. Others who were on hand to see the Sunday gallops were August Belmont and Sydney Paget.

JUNIOR A. A. U. BASKET BALL.

Three Games Decided in the Round Robin Championship Tourney.

The round robin tournament for the Amateur Athletic Union junior championship was continued last night on the courts of the Young Men's Hebrew Association and University Settlement. On the former the Central Young Men's Hebrew Association defeated the Bryant High School handily, and the Calvary Athletic Club won from the St. George Athletic Club by a one-sided score. The Xavier Athletic Association juniors failed to put in an appearance and forfeited to Company K, Fourth Regiment of Hoboken. Two games were played on the University Settlement, Christ Church House defeating Maxwell House and University Settlement overwhelming Union Settlement.

The game between the Young Men's Hebrew Association and Bryant High School was well contested in the first half, but the former scored almost at will in the second half, and won by the score of 28 to 12. The line-up:

Y. M. H. A., 28.	Position.	Bryant H. S., 12.
Gutter, Gut'n'stein	Forward	Story
Cohen	Forward	Smith
Ehrlich	Centre	Leith
Schwartz	Guard	Brundin
Kaplan	Guard	Allen

Goals from field—Schwartz, (2,) Cohen, (7,) Ehrlich, (3,) Kaplan, Smith, (2,) Story. Goals from foul—Smith, (3,) Story, (3,) Schwartz, (2.) Referee—Charles Peiffer, New York. Umpire—Charles Krug, St. George A. C. Time of game—Two twenty-minute halves.

The Calvary Athletic Club five had no difficulty in winning from the St. George Athletic Club team. Schoenhen was the star of the game, shooting six field and one foul goal. Line-up:

Calvary A. C., 28.	Position.	St. George, 13.
Proctor	Forward	Koechlein
Spain, Schoehen	Forward	Spigler
Moloney	Centre	Newman
Murray, Kirk	Guard	Adams, Nelson
McGowan	Guard	Koolen

Goals from field—Proctor, (3,) Schoehen, (6,) Spain, (8,) Spigler, Nelson, Koechlein, (4.) Goals from foul—Schoehen, Spain. Referee—George W. Schoening, New York. Umpire—N. Newman, St. George Athletic Club. Time of game—Two twenty-minute halves.

Maxwell House was outclassed by Christ Church on the University Settlement court and suffered defeat. The Haafis brothers played a good combination game for the Christ Church team, which won by the score of 16 to 6. Line-up:

Christ Church, 16.	Position.	Maxwell H., 6.
P. Haafis	Forward	Chance
L. Haafis	Forward	Smith
Reinhardt	Centre	Kenneck
Murray	Guard	C. Schultz, Jr.
H. Cohen	Guard	McEntee

Referee—Charles Jardine, New York. Umpire—T. W. Smith, New York. Time of game—Twenty-minute halves.

TO-NIGHT'S BILLIARD MATCH.

Hoppe and Slosson Clash Over Details—Youngster Is Favorite.

Ever since George Slosson, the veteran billiard player, told Willie Hoppe to "go and get a reputation," which the younger expert did by journeying to Paris and defeating Maurice Vignaux for the billiard championship of the world, the feeling of animosity between the two players has been somewhat bitter, and it is likely to be perceptible in their 500-point 18-inch balk line match, one count in balk, for $500 a side, at the Grand Central Palace, Forty-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue, to-night.

The ill feeling between the players was made plainly manifest when Slosson challenged Hoppe to play for the championship upon the latter's return from Paris. The defi was at once accepted, but Hoppe wanted it a 600-point affair. Yesterday Hoppe wished to arrange for the cleaning of the table and balls from chalk in the long contest. Slosson refused to meet the champion or his representative to discuss the subject. They even failed to agree on the selection of a referee, but left it to a third party, and Edward McLaughlin was appointed.

Hoppe is the favorite in the match to-night at odds of 2 to 1, and wagers have been recorded that he will finish with an average of twenty or better. Many of the professionals favor Hoppe, declaring that in all of his recent practice he has demonstrated that he was not to be stopped by the hardest sort of safety play. On the other hand the ardent supporters of Slosson believe that he will be able to show Hoppe that experience counts for considerable in a billiard match. Slosson has run his averages up to fifty in his practice, and probably has never been in such perfect trim for a match as at the present time.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

Owing to the temporary illness of Jefferson De Mont Thompson, Chairman of the A. A. A. Racing Board, no date has been set for the initial meeting. It will, however, undoubtedly be held this week—probably immedately after the return to the city from Chicago of Sidney S. Gorham, the A. A. A. Secretary.

Automobilists yesterday deplored the recital of old difficulties that have long been disposed of in the American Automobile Association regarding the actions of last year's Racing Board. President Samuel T. Davis of the Locomobile Company stated that Robert Lee Morrell had never been a stockholder in the company. Mr. Morrell himself was called upon to make a similar statement some time ago, and the recent revival of the subject was condemned by many members of the Automobile Club of America.

A meeting of the Directors and committee of the New York Motor Club will be held in a short time to compile details regarding the coming economy run which will be held in June. A number of requests have already been made by manufacturers and owners who are anxious to compete.

Early in April the officers of the Aero Club of America intend to hold a general club meeting in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America. Topics of general balloon interest will be discussed. Invitations are now being extended to a number of investigators and practical students of aeronautic matters, and Count de la Vaulx will probably relate some of his experiences in ballooning in France.

St. Francis Xavier scored 8; St. Cecilia, Cathedral, and St. Ann's, 5 each; St. Ignatius, 4; St. Matthew, St. Jerome, and St. Dominican, [illegible] each, and Holy Cross 1.

Favor Vanderbilt Cup Race.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 26.—A petition which had received the signatures of about 1,500 residents of Nassau County, who are in favor of having an automobile race on the public roads of the county this year, was presented to-day to the Board of Supervisors. The petition is as follows:

"To the Board of Supervisors:

"We, the undersigned residents and citizens of the County of Nassau, do hereby respectfully petition your board to request the Automobile Association of America to hold its automobile test and race for the year 1906 over the course laid out by your board within the county in the year 1905."

Among the signers are Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad; Walter J. Travis of the Garden City Golf Club, C. F. Norton, George T. Brokaw, W. P. Platt, and many ministers, Postmasters, and other well-known residents of Mineola, Hempstead, Garden City, Old Westbury, East Williston, Jericho, Oyster Bay, and other places in the county.

It is rumored that a counter petition will be got up by the People's Protective Association, which is opposed to having the Vanderbilt Cup race on the public highways.

Of the three members of the Nassau Board of Supervisors, Messrs. Jones and Willets are in favor of the race, while Supervisor Seabury is opposed to racing on the highways.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

Some New Arrivals Among These Handsome Suiting Fabrics.

NOT ONLY HAS THE LOESER SHOWING of the new and immensely popular Suitings been broad and fine all season, but even now almost every day brings new arrivals.

ONE JUST BROUGHT TO THE COUNTERS is a superb plaid formed of cluster lines of white, blue and gray, or gray, green and white. It is 56 inches wide, shown exclusively here and priced at..$1.98 a yard

ANOTHER NEW SUITING is checked, white, black and gray, a 3x3 inch block being formed by hair lines of black. In London this particular Suiting is very popular, 56 inches wide..............$1.98 a yard

A FINE CHIFFON PANAMA, gray mixture Suiting, is also new. It shows alternating hair lines of white and green, making a quiet and refined effect. Full 56 inches wide......................$1.98 a yard

These are hints of the extremely new Suitings. But in the stock you will find an immense showing of correct fabrics, most of them shown here exclusively and all of them very reasonably priced. The best that England, France and Germany have produced is here—grays, checks, overplaids, stripes and mixtures. Prices are $1, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $1.98, and $2.25 a yard.

THE BEST PIANOS, Whether You Have $200 or $1,000 to Spend.

THIS PIANO TALK IS INTENDED especially for those who mean to buy a Piano and who are investigating now the question as to which Piano to buy.

In the Loeser Piano business we have endeavored to do two things:

FIRST—To assemble here Pianos of high grade, Pianos back of which we can stand with as strong a guarantee as it is possible to make; Pianos which in years of use will cause those who buy them to think well of the Loeser Store.

SECOND—To sell these Pianos at a fair profit and no more; to make the prices as low as it is possible to sell Pianos of equal grade.

We have done those two things successfully. We have also arranged the easiest terms of payment for those who prefer not to pay cash. We have arranged to take any used Piano in part payment for an instrument bought here—allowing a full fair price for the Piano so turned in. We keep every Piano we sell in tune for a year and our guarantee of good service from every Piano we sell extends over ten years.

The people who buy Pianos here are the same people to whom we sell and have sold other things for many years. They know all about this Store and whether its word and guarantee are to be depended on or not. And this Piano business, based on the principles we have here set forth, has grown in the past few years as perhaps no other Piano business in the whole country has grown.

You can buy your Piano here with safety and with surety of satisfaction. You can buy it with the practical certainty of paying a lower price than a Piano equally good will cost in other places, and sometimes these savings mount up to $200 or $250. We have for sale here

The Reiman Piano at $225 and $250.
The Heller Piano at $250, $275 and $300.
The Loeser Upright Piano at $400 to $850.
The Loeser Grand Piano at $600 to $1,200.

Test these Pianos for yourself or with the aid of the most critical musical judgment at your command. Expect to find them as handsome and as musically fine as any Pianos that are sold anywhere. And for the permanent satisfaction that they will give, depend on the Loeser guarantee.

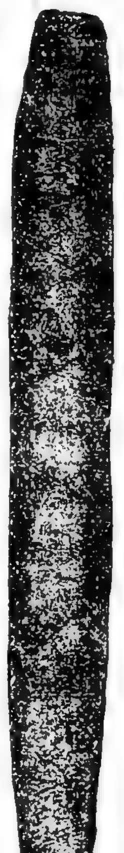
What is your share of your cigar dealer's expenses?

Suppose your cigar dealer has a hundred customers. Each one of those customers besides actually paying for the cigars that he smokes must pay a hundredth of the dealer's operating expenses — rent, clerk hire, light and so on. That is what the man who buys his cigars of a retailer must calculate upon. But the man who buys his cigars of me pays for nothing but the cigars that he smokes. His money, in consequence, goes twice as far, buys twice as many cigars, as though he spent it with the retailer.

I manufacture all the cigars I sell, and I sell them all direct to the consumer. I cut out all selling expenses—not only the retailers, but the jobbers as well.

My Panatelas at $5.00 a hundred are equal to the retailers' 10c. straight. You can prove them for yourself.

MY OFFER IS: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of The Times, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.



Shivers' Panatela
Exact size and shape

The fillers of these cigars are Clear Havana of good quality—not only clear, but long, clean Havana—no shorts or cuttings are used. They are hand made, by the best of workmen. The making has much to do with the smoking qualities of a cigar. The wrappers are genuine Sumatra.

In ordering please enclose business card or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium or strong cigars are desired.

JEROME AND SEABURY HAVE A TIFF IN COURT

And District Attorney Quits the Jury-Fixing Inquiry.

DISPUTE ON LOST VOUCHERS

Jerome Sides with Metropolitan's Counsel, Who Fail to Produce Them—Judge Skeptical.

The inquiry into "jury fixing" which has been going on for several weeks was continued before Judge Seabury, sitting as a Magistrate in Part II. of the City Court, yesterday. Toward the end of the afternoon District Attorney Jerome withdrew in anger from the case. With him went Assistant District Attorney Kresel. The latter came back for a moment to get a typewritten statement which Stanley S. Bagg made to Assistant District Attorney Smyth, but which Bagg repudiated on the witness stand as false.

Before the final break came between Judge Seabury and Mr. Jerome, there had been slight indications that the case was not going to suit the District Attorney. He smiled in a conciliatory way during the greater part of the afternoon. When he occasionally arose to speak, his manner was almost benign. "Why, that's easy," he said in one instance when a knotty point in law arose. In another instance, when trying to explain to Judge Seabury the difference between sitting as a Magistrate and as a Judge in Chambers, he suddenly stopped, as though he considered it hopeless, and, making a slight upward movement with his hands, blurted out:

"I give it up. I don't know where I'm at."

When the final break came, Stanley S. Bagg was on the stand. He is the witness in the case who could not be located by the process servers for several days. On the stand he explained that he had been at Mount Vernon all the time. But he made a more startling announcement than that. Apparently without much discomfiture he admitted that the statements he had made to Assistant District Attorney Smyth were false. Judge Seabury finally asked with a rising inflection in his voice:

"Are you sure that you are telling the truth now?"

The break between District Attorney Jerome and Judge Seabury came when Lawyer Quackenbos, counsel for the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, jumped to his feet. Once before he had broken into the proceedings. This was when the witness Bagg was being questioned about his relations with Lawyer Patterson. "I object," broke in Lawyer Quackenbos. "I object to this line of questioning. I am not retained by Mr. Patterson, but if he is to be accused he should have the benefit of counsel."

The court explained that no accusation was being made against Mr. Patterson.

A few minutes later Lawyer Quackenbos was on his feet again. A question arose as to how far the inquiry might extend. Judge Seabury remarked that he would confine the testimony to the single charge before him for the present, and would reserve his decision as to the other charges.

"I desire to intervene now on behalf of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company," said Mr. Quackenbos. "I wish to state that you have no right to bring my client here on a criminal charge."

"I disallow your motion," said the Judge.

"Will you stop the proceedings so that I can get a writ from the Supreme Court, so that I can prevent your going on?" persisted Mr. Quackenbos.

"I deny your motion," repeated Judge Seabury. "You have no jurisdiction in this case; you have no standing here."

"Perhaps I can straighten out this matter," interposed Mr. Jerome. "The information was furnished in my office, and we are here to try this case."

"If the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was concerned in this bribery it ought to come out," remarked Judge Seabury. Then, turning to Mr. Quackenbos, he said:

"You seem to desire to assist in this case. You can assist by producing the individual vouchers here."

"And your Honor makes that assertion well knowing that I cannot produce them?" suggested Mr. Quackenbos.

At this point Mr. Jerome grabbed his overcoat hanging over the railing before the jury box, and with an apparent effort to keep down his voice, said:

"The District Attorney withdraws from this case."

"I have heretofore tried to take the proper steps toward getting the proper evidence," he added. "Your Honor knows that the vouchers cannot be produced, that they have been lost."

"Do you know, Mr. District Attorney, that no evidence has been produced before me to show what has become of the vouchers?" asked Judge Seabury.

"But you have the word of a gentleman," retorted Jerome, "and Mr. Quackenbos is a gentleman. His word may be taken."

"I don't care to be lectured by you," said Judge Seabury, his voice going up a little.

Mr. Jerome said something under his breath that sounded like, "Nor I by you." He added, clearly enough:

"Very well. I will go."

"It is perhaps just as well that you should," added Judge Seabury calmly. The examination of Bagg was then continued.

The session of yesterday was called ostensibly for the examination of Lawyer Ambrose B. McCabe, in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. District Attorney Jerome, who was accompanied by Assistant District Attorney Kresel, appeared as the prosecuting attorney, while ex-Justice Hatch appeared for the defendant. When the proceedings opened Mr. Hatch moved for a dismissal of the case on the ground of a lack of jurisdiction. The motion was denied and an exception was taken. Mr. Jerome placed Louis E. Julian on the stand. He showed the witness an affidavit in which he accused McCabe of the alleged crime of bribery, and the witness identified it as his.

When ex-Justice Hatch took the witness in hand on cross-examination he elicited the fact from Julian that he lived when in town at 76 West Eighty-fifth Street, but that his regular abode was in East Orange. He said that up to December last he had conducted a detective agency, but that since that time he had assisted a reporter in investigating the Tillinghast case. He explained that he had received $50 for a few days' work. It was brought out that Lawyer Stevenson, who took an active part in the case, represented him.

Mr. Julian said further that he was first employed by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company on Jan. 12, 1894, to look up accident cases. He testified that he resigned on May 31, 1904, but had not severed his connection with the company until August of that year. He admitted that he had conducted a handbook in connection with another man, and that he had frequented the races during the last fifteen years. Refreshing his memory from a memorandum, Julian read a number of cases tried against the Metropolitan Company on which Tillinghast had served as juror, and which had resulted either in a verdict for the company, or in a disagreement. He said he got his information from Stanley S. Bagg.

Bagg was still on the stand when the hearing closed. It will be continued at 10 o'clock this morning.

Because Tillinghast was a juror in the first trial of Mrs. Ettie Eichner against the Metropolitan, her counsel asked Supreme Court Justice Clinch yesterday to grant a motion for a new trial. Judge Clinch said he did not think the motion could be sustained, but consented to take the papers and look over them before announcing a positive decision.

FOOD.

A TROUBLE MAKER.

Coffee Poison Breeds Variety of Ills.

A California woman who didn't know for twenty years what kept her ill, writes to tell how she won back health by quitting coffee:

"I am 54 years old," she says, "have used coffee all my life, and for 20 years suffered from indigestion and insomnia. Life was a burden and a drag to me all the time, and about once a year my ailments got such hold upon me that I was regularly 'sick in bed' for several weeks each time.

"I was reluctant to conclude that coffee was the cause of my trouble, but I am thankful that I found out the truth.

"Then I determined to use Postum Food Coffee exclusively—for a week at first—for I doubted my ability to do without the old kind of coffee for any length of time. I made the Postum carefully, as directed, and before the week expired had my reward in a perceptible increase in strength and spirits.

"Seeing the good that my short experiment had accomplished, I resolved to continue the use of Postum Food Coffee, cutting out the old kind of coffee entirely. This I did for nine months, finding daily increased cause for gratification at my steadily improving health. My indigestion gradually left me, my sleep returned, I gained 26 pounds in weight, my color changed from sallow to a fresh, rosy hue, and life became a blessing.

"Then I thought I would try the old kind of coffee again, and did so for a few weeks. The punishment for deserting my good friend Postum was a return of my old troubles.

"That taught me wisdom, and I am now, and shall be all my life hereafter, using Postum Food Coffee exclusively and enjoying the benefits it brings me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

RUSSIAN STRIKE TALK AGAIN.

Revolution's Coffers Replenished by Bank Robberies, It Is Said.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST PETERSBURG, March 26.—There are rumors of another vast political strike, of which Moscow would be the centre. It is plausibly stated that the recent bank robberies have replenished the strike fund, thus removing the chief obstacle to a renewal of revolutionary activity.

Certainly all thinking Russia is in a state of exasperation which will be intensified if it turns out, as predicted, that the Douma will be composed of the utterly unenlightened elements.

The intentions of the Government toward Finland remain a puzzle. It looks as though there was to be coercion, but it is difficult to believe that the Government will stultify itself merely to please the promoters of race jealousy and hatred.

TORTURED, DEFIED JUDGES.

Mlle. Spiridonovo Told Them Death Would Be Welcome.

MOSCOW, March 26.—M. Teslinko, counsel for Mlle. Spiridonovo, the 17-year-old girl who shot M. Luzhenoffsky, Chief of the Secret Police at Tamboff, has returned here from Tamboff, where his client was found guilty of the charges brought against her.

He declares that the tortures of the Spanish Inquisition were tame when compared with the cruelty Mlle. Spiridonovo has been subjected to. He gives a thrilling account of her proud and spirited speech to the Judges who condemned her, telling them that the victory of the oppressors of the people would be short-lived. She added:

"You can kill me; but death will be welcome after what I have suffered."

The prosecution of Abramoff and Zhdanoff, the officers charged with maltreating Mlle. Spiridonovo, commenced here to-day.

Vienna Hears of Impending Change in German Chancellorship.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

VIENNA, March 26.—Not rumors only, but positive statements, are current here to-night concerning an imminent change in the German Imperial Chancellorship. Serious politicians in constant contact with Berlin are of the opinion that the days of Bülow's Chancellorship are numbered.

An obscure element in the situation is thought to be the influence of von Holstein, who has so often played at cross purposes with his hierarchical chief. The defeat of Bülow and the victory of von Holstein would be regarded here as an unmixed blessing for Europe, though it is considered by no means impossible that the crisis announced as impending may dispose of both Bülow and von Holstein.

FIGHTS FOR MORTGAGE TAX.

Assemblyman Wade Says He Will Expose Advocates of Repeal.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 26.—Chairman Wade of the Committee of Taxation and Retrenchment to-night served notice when the Dowling Mortgage Tax Repeal bill came up in the House that he would fight the measure to the end. The bill then was put over to Wednesday by general consent.

"The methods of the opponents of mortgage taxation will be described by me when the fight comes," said Mr. Wade in his speech. "I shall tell this house something about the origin of this bill. I shall tell this house something about those earnest 'friends of the borrower.' We shall see what there is to all this hue and cry against mortgage taxation. The law of 1905 protected the borrower within the legal rate of interest. Yet some of those advocates of repeal stand here defying the power of the State to tax."

BRITISH OFFICERS ARRESTED.

War Secretary Probing "Ragging" of a Scots Guards Lieutenant.

LONDON, March 26.—War Secretary Haldane has taken prompt steps for an exhaustive investigation into the "ragging" of Second Lieut. Clark Kennedy, because he was unable, owing to his limited means, to meet certain regimental expenses.

Four officers of the First Battalion of the Scots Guards, to which the Lieutenant belongs, have been arrested and all the other officers of the regiment have been ordered to return to Aldershot immediately. A full court of inquiry has been ordered to assemble and all concerned will be given an opportunity to explain their share in the scandal.

Clark Kennedy, after a mock court-martial, was stripped and bathed with motor oil, covered with feathers, and his hair smeared with jam. He escaped to his room, and jumping from a window, sought refuge in a hotel.

As High as 30 to 1 Laid Against Winner—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth on Clubhouse Balcony.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The Eastern season, beginning the turf year for thoroughbred racing under the rules of The Jockey Club, opened to-day on the Benning race track with a fairly even distribution of the prizes among the owners of the East, South, and West. The big event went to a novice of the turf when David Dunlap's horse Duke of Kendal won the first part of the Benning Spring Handicap double event. A crowd of 5,000 visitors witnessed the running of the race, which was Mr. Dunlap's introduction to the sport.

The weather was chilly and gloomy, but the fashionable people of Washington were out in large numbers, and women guests filled the club stand, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth being a conspicuous figure in the clubhouse balcony.

Though Duke of Kendal was the big surprise of the day, the victory was an immensely popular one for Baltimore and Washington, where his owner, the newcomer on the turf, is well known. Duke of Kendal started at 20 to 1, and in spite of the excellent record of the horse, now six years old, made at three and four years old on the New York tracks, odds of 30 to 1 were laid against him at periods. The professional betting men of New York made up a big proportion of the first day's attendance, and these, with full knowledge of the precarious condition in which Duke of Kendal closed his racing career on the New York tracks last season, when he was said to have broken down hopelessly, refused to heed the Baltimore and Washington tips that were distributed concerning the Benning Handicap winner.

The better-known horses Race King, distinguished for the fact of his having run a dead heat with the champion race horse Sysonby in the Metropolitan Handicap last year; the mud-running sprinter Paul Clifford, and the fast colt Bellsnicker, carrying the colors of the Brooklyn politician, P. H. McCarren, were the choices for the race and closed equal favorites at 5 to 1 each, in a field of thirteen starters for the six-furlong contest, the first important race of the new turf season.

Famous jockeys, riders who have been successful on courses from New York to New Orleans and out to the Pacific Coast, had the mounts on the better-backed horses. Redfern on Race King, Knapp on Bellsnicker, and Miller on Pater having their effect on the betting, while Duke of Kendal was ridden by Helgesen, a Western boy who failed utterly in the East two seasons ago. It helped to make a long price against the horse, which for several seasons was a good winner in New York for James McLaughlin and Thomas & Shields, having been sold for breeding purposes last Fall to Mr. Dunlap, son of a wealthy tobacco grower, who proposed to breed hunters. The insistence of his negro trainer that Duke of Kendal could be brought back to racing led Mr. Dunlap to take the chance of training a supposedly broken down horse, and the victory in the Benning Handicap gives every promise of bringing to the Eastern turf a most desirable recruit in the now enthusiastic young owner.

Duke of Kendal, carrying 106 pounds, broke abreast of his field, and in the opening strides took fourth place to Right and True, Bellsnicker, and Pater, in that order. Bellsnicker led on the turn, giving way to Warning at the head of the stretch, with Duke of Kendal always close up to that point, where Duke of Kendal went on and, hard ridden through the stretch, won a commanding race on a deep and bad track by three lengths, Pater easily being the best of the others and beating Bellsnicker by two lengths. The winner was an added starter, but the fact that he would be added to run was well known to the Baltimore patrons of the meeting.

Only one post favorite was successful in the course of the day. The longest-chance winners, aside from Duke of Kendal, were Lackey at 10 to 1 in the first race and Nancy, at 10 to 1, in the second, both horses being the product of August Belmont's stallion Hastings, and both running in Mr. Belmont's colors, and being trained by John Whelon, the all-round horseman who handled the early section of the Belmont stable a year ago.

Another feature of the day's racing was the two-mile steeplechase, for which six horses started, five of the number falling. Glengarter and Dr. Swartz were equal favorites. The imported English jumper Tibo was the first to fall, others going down in quick succession on the last round of the course, the last horse to come to grief being Dr. Swartz, which fell at the very last jump, where he had a commanding lead. That left Follow On, the only horse still standing, to win alone, while Bob Murphy was remounted and finished second. Castor and Merlingo cleverly won the other races.

Among well-known New Yorkers who witnessed the racing were Perry Belmont, Pierre Lorillard, and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., all of whom have horses to race here. Something of an innovation was made in the management of the clubhouse betting commissioners, who formerly had full swing at Benning. About forty men who have been employed as clubhouse commissioners applied for the usual privilege, but the manager of the track police rejected all but six, that number being permitted to accept employment with the understanding that they were responsible individuals. It was said that a five-thousand-dollar bond or guarantee will be required from each of these men in future. More than sixty bookmakers had places in the ring, eighteen of these being members of the Metropolitan Turf Association. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Three-year-olds and upward, six furlongs, Columbia course. Lackey, 91 pounds, (McDaniels,) 10 to 1 and 4 to 1, won; Fancy Bird, 95, (Kent,) 8 to 5, and 2 to 5, second; T. S. ANOTHER AUTO CLASS OPENED Prospective Chauffeurs Will Be Compelled to Pass Rigid Examination.

A new automobile class has just been started in the school conducted by the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, making the fourth that has been organized since the opening of the session last September. The new class has 140 members, about the average of the preceding ones, and before the close of the season it is expected that a fifth class will be formed, toward the end of April.

On account of the poor condition of the streets, the road work of the school has been delayed, but two or there cars were sent out from the Y. M. C. A. garage, Broadway and Sixty-second Street, yesterday. An effort was made last week to give the members of the third class their quota of road instruction, but the snow obliged Clarence B. Brokaw, Principal of the school, to postpone this work. Mr. Brokaw said yesterday that the road work would now go on until the close of the season.

The members of the various classes receive one month's instruction in automobile driving. Runs are made up Riverside Drive, climbing the hills in the Manhattanville district, and later, when touring conditions are better, short trips will be made to New Jersey suburbs. Three students are usually taken in a car, and each man has half an hour's instruction on the trip. The same men go out twice a week, and before the school issues certificates to the graduates, they are required to pass a thorough examination in the handling of a car. A knowledge of the rules of the road is also required, as well as the legal regulations.

Three or four new cars have recently been added to the Y. M. C. A. garage, including a handsome electric brougham, a gift of Jefferson Seligman, one of the Governors of the Automobile Club of America. This is the third car given to the school by Mr. Seligman.

Mr. Brokaw has been invited by the Automobile Club of America to give the members a practical talk this evening on the subject of dynamos, dry batteries, and the different systems of ignition. Mr. Brokaw will show how many difficulties that fall to the lot of every automobilist may be obviated with a little information

Daly Beats French Billiardist Cure.

Maurice Daly and Louis Cure, the latter the French entrant for the international billiard tournament, began last night a series of matches at the 18-inch balk line game, two counts allowed in balk. Playing in his own academy Daly last night defeated the Frenchman by the score of 400 points to 324, with both contestants playing fast and close billiards. This is the style at which the coming tournament in the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall will be decided.

From the beginning Daly worked the balls through all the mazes of intricate shots, the while holding perfect position. His highest run was a cluster of 85 and his average for his string of 400 points was 15 10-26. Cure's average was 12 24-25, and his best run was 47. Before the big tournament is played Cure will meet McLaughlin and Gallagher in practice matches.

German Cycling Champion Here.

Edwin Koenemann, champion bicyclist, of Bremen, arrived yesterday on the Red Star Line steamship Finland from Antwerp. Koenemann holds the North German bicycle record for 69 kilometers and 736 meters. He is also the winner of the Hansa Prize for 100 kilometers. He also defeated Von der Tromp, the amateur champion of Holland.

Gray Beats Schoenweg at Pool.

E. Gray (100) and H. Schoenweg (100) played one of the most closely contested games in the pool tournament now in progress at the Broadway Billiard Academy last night. Up to the last frame not more than five balls separated the players, and it was only by a well-directed kiss shot that Gray was enabled to win by 100 to 88. The winner's best run was 23, and no scratches were charged against him. Schoenweg's best contribution was 19, and he had two scratches. In to-night's game R. Hirsch (100) will meet J. Bartels, who has 90 to make.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

SICKLEY BROTHERS.—Cyrus W. Sickley and William P. Sickley, who composed the firm of Sickley Brothers, bakers, of Yonkers, have filed a petition in bankruptcy here as poor persons, with liabilities of $8,139, contracted in 1904, and no assets. William P. Sickley has individual debts of $245. Among the creditors are Lang & Co., New York, $550; John J. Devitt, Yonkers, $1,200, and Stephen W. Bull, Newburg, $2,462.

NEW YORK CARBON AND TRANSFER PAPER COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the New York Carbon and Transfer Paper Company of 82 John Street, show liabilities of $16,525, and nominal assets of $22,780, consisting of machinery, $7,949; materials, $1,000; accounts, $2,107, mostly uncollectible; recipes, formulas, &c., $11,724 book value, but actual value unknown. Among the creditors are Herman F. Lee, Treasurer, $12,822, for advances and salary; Sherman Bank, [illegible]; Hudson Trust Company, [illegible]; Hamilton Bank, $1,132, and William A. Fowler, Poughkeepsie, $1,300.

LEONARD HYAMS.—Leonard Hyams, manufacturer of artificial flowers at 878 Broadway, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Saturday, had judgments entered against him yesterday for $3,028 in favor of Jacques Kahn, and another judgment for $528 in favor of the same creditor. [illegible] in favor of Mr. Kahn for $528 on a check dated Jan. 20, which was not paid, and Mr. Hyams on Dec. 26 last bought the business at 878 Broadway from Mr. Kahn for $3,500, of which $500 was to be paid in January, 1906, and the balance on notes on March 1, April 1, and May 1. The note which fell due on March 1 was not paid, and therefore all the notes became due. Mr. Hyams has been in this line of business for twelve years, and succeeded Elias Hyams, who founded the business in 1870. Elias Hyams died in March, 1893.

Out of Town.

WATERVILLE, Me.—Charles F. Johnson of Waterville, Me., was appointed receiver of the Riverview Worsted Mills at Waterville by Justice William P. Whitehouse of Augusta yesterday. The receiver was named on the petition of the shareholders. The nominal assets are placed at $240,000 and liabilities $210,000.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Holt of the United States District Court has granted a discharge from bankruptsy to Moritz Latzko, who did business as the National Liquor Supply Company, at 1,698 Third Avenue, to whom a discharge was refused a few weeks ago. The Judge in his decision said that he thinks the vouchers now produced satisfactorily account for the amount ($7,000) which on the original evidence seemed not accounted for.

Discharges were also granted to the following:

CHARLES H. JONES, stock broker, 20 Broad Street, formerly of Sperry, Jones & Co., Baltimore; liabilities, $77,796.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—The wheat market had a stronger opening, but was weakened by liquidation and favorable weather and crop news. Although steadier again at the close on export talk, final prices were nevertheless ⅛c under the previous night. The foreign news practically accounted for whatever of early firmness the market showed. Liverpool came ⅛ to ¼d higher in response to small Argentine and Pacific Coast offerings, while Broomhall reported world's shipments at 9,362,000 bushels, or nearly 400,000 bushels less than the previous week. Liverpool turned weaker near the close, and was finally ¼d net lower. Paris closed partly 15 points down. Berlin was ¼ mark [illegible]

CORN.—Except right at the opening, when the market felt the influence of the wheat decline, corn was generally well [illegible] 1,737,000 bushels. It closed partly ⅛c net lower. The interior receipts were [illegible] but carlot estimates for Tuesday were considerably higher than usual, while Liverpool came ¼d lower. In answer to a moderate export inquiry 10 loads were worked at all ports. Elevator interests in Chicago sold May. The cash market in New York closed easy on the basis of 54c for No. 2 in elevator and 51c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 52c, and No. 2 yellow, 52c, free on board, afloat.

REVOLUTION AND REACTION.

The Associated Press dispatch from St. Petersburg, published yesterday, bears internal evidence alike of its authenticity and of its importance. The gist of it is that the Russian reform has little to fear from the avowed enemies of public order, from the Revolutionists, but that it has much to fear from the partisans and beneficiaries of the old order, the Reactionaries.

If the Czar were a strong man, and knew his own mind, he could not be long in choosing. He would of course choose the course which Count WITTE has marked out for him. It is really a very conservative course. At any rate, it is the most conservative course of which the conditions admit. Nobody can blame the Czar for disliking to abdicate; and for disliking that course on account of his children even more than on his own account. To give up the autocracy would be a virtual abdication, in the eyes of all Russia, and indeed of all the world. He might as well realize at once on the possessions of the Russian Crown, and betake himself to some foreign clime, there to live, so long as he lived, under the contempt of mankind as a man who had held the integrity of his own skin as more valuable and more urgent than any of the duties devolved upon him by the fact of his position. He really must take up the theory that any Douma to which he consents must be a consultative body, instituted for the purpose not at all of supplanting him, but only of supplying him with information the better and more wisely to govern the Russian people. On the other hand, he must be practically aware that the ring which has really governed Russia has governed it very badly, and that drastic reforms of administration are of urgent necessity. Russia has been made a show of before the world for the pecuniary benefit of the Reactionary ring. And Russia at last knows it. Moreover, the brains are out of the Reactionary ring. SERGIUS is dead. POBIEDONOSTSEFF is in a state of doddering senility, and has, moreover, withdrawn. A "new man" has come in, in the person of Count WITTE, who knows and sympathizes with the real desires of Russia. He "sings the many long-dumb voices." The device of the Douma, from the point of view of the Russian people, opens the way to the gradual modernization of political Russia. From the point of view of an intelligent Czar, it offers him the least invidious way of reforming Russia, and of relieving himself from the intolerable grasp of the Reactionaries.

Of course the Reactionaries are the objectors. "They are proud and high, these men: they are not wise to consider." If they were wise to consider, they would perceive that the Czar's sanction of the moderate and conservative proposals of Count WITTE was the best thing that could happen to themselves. If they succeed in defeating those proposals, they will be teaching Russia the dreadful lesson that its "absolutism" must continue to be "tempered with assassination," and with assassination only; that there is need for Russia of still more killing of Grand Dukes and Governors General. That is the last lesson it is to their interest to inculcate. But it is the lesson they are evidently inculcating in resisting the efforts of Count WITTE for reform.

"UNFAIR" COMPETITION.

In our report of the testimony describing the "unfair" advantage taken of trade associates by shippers demeaning themselves to falsify bills of lading occurs this passage:

> "What can be done to prevent these irregularities?" asked Chairman KNAPP.
>
> "There is a law by which offenders may be prosecuted."

There is indeed law enough. There is the specific provision of the Elkins act, and there is an alternative procedure for indictment for plain larceny. The mere publication of the names in connection with the offenses will go far to remedy the wrong. What man aiming at a decent reputation wants his name printed in connection with the class which shipped four tons of freight at four times first-class rates and billed none, which shipped fourteen tons at three times first-class rates and billed none, which shipped 237 tons at twice first-class rates and billed two tons, and so on. It needs only exposure of such knavery to check it, and only one or two convictions to confine it to the criminal class.

In his address Friday night Attorney General HADLEY remarked: "The explanation of the unfair railroad freight rate, the midnight tariff, the drawback or rebate, is that some commercial interest represents a power and an influence in our industrial life strong enough to demand and secure such unlawful privileges." If he had only added, "and mean enough to steal them," he would have described the situation as inclusive of last week's disclosures. Is this any argument for the pending railway legislation? Not at all. If it included such acts the new law would be broken as well as the old, but the fact is the old law includes the acts and the new law does not pretend to cover them. It is no reply to say that the new law was not intended to cover such acts, for they are precisely the acts described by President ROOSEVELT as necessitating the new legislation. The fault is traced directly to the Inter-State Commerce Commission's neglecting to execute the law, and to the Administration's neglecting to see that the Commission did its duty. The great question is not whether more laws can be enacted, but whether existing laws can be defied?

LARCENY, AND OTHER QUESTIONS.

Upon the legal aspects of what Judge O'SULLIVAN calls the "colloquy" between himself and District Attorney JEROME lay comment would be superfluous and lay intervention would be officious and futile. In making out of the funds of the company contributions to the political expense of the Republican Presidential campaign did the officers of the New York Life Insurance Company—and, for that matter, of the other two companies—commit the crime of larceny? Or was the felonious intent to deprive the company and its policy holders of money belonging to them absent from the act? Judge O'SULLIVAN says that "contributing to a political party is not necessarily a crime: in fact, it may be so free from the taint of crime as to be not only plainly honest but eminently patriotic." But he tells the Grand Jury that it must answer for itself this question: "If corporate funds were diverted from the rightful owner and given away without the slightest expectation of profit or financial return, was any person deprived of his property?"

"If you find that they did take with the intent to deprive and defraud, you find felonious intent and the crime defined as larceny," he said. From this view of the Grand Jury's duty Mr. JEROME dissents, citing his reasons and his authority for holding the belief that it cannot be established that the money used for campaign contributions was taken with felonious intent.

There will be trouble in getting a trial jury if indictments are found. Will Republicans be excluded because of the fear that party bias would incline them to take the patriotic view of campaign contributions to their party? Will Democrats be excluded because no sane Democrat could be expected to admit that any contribution from any source made to a Republican campaign fund was proper or permissible? Where will they find jurors? And how would the minds of the jurymen be affected by the testimony given and the arguments made? It would not be larceny to take the funds of a life insurance company and hand them over to a fire insurance company in payment of the annual premium for fire insurance upon the home office or other buildings of the company. The justifying argument will of course be made—it has been made—that in 1896, for instance, contributions were made to the campaign fund of Mr. MCKINLEY, not with intent to deprive or defraud the policy holders, but to safeguard and protect their accumulations against the loss and diminishment which it was felt would be the result of the election of Mr. BRYAN. Many trust institutions made contributions of that kind. They were made professedly in the interest of the depositors, policy holders, and other beneficiaries of the trusts. They were made by Democrats and by Republicans. The avowed intent was that of protecting the interests of policy holders; that is, the money was spent for their benefit. Judge O'SULLIVAN says the jury must pass upon the question whether the intent was not that of defrauding and depriving the policy holders of their money.

We suppose there is no man in this community—no man with a conscience, that is, and with a mind capable of straight thinking—who would defend the making of campaign contributions out of insurance money. The practice is bad, corrupting, and in a hundred ways abhorrent to the moral sense. Public morality and private morality must condemn it. All that is aside from the larceny question, however. And the larceny question is probably not the most important of the insurance questions to which answers have not yet been found. Whether there be larceny trials or not, a stop has been put to the political contribution evil. Officers of corporations are going to be mighty careful in future about handing over their money for campaign use. Legislation, too, will forbid it, and provide appropriate penalties. The public gain from following the somewhat uncertain larceny trail would not be great. For even if conviction should be had, the spectacle of certain eminent citizens in jail for doing precisely what had been done by many other eminent citizens not under indictment and very much at large would hardly be exemplary.

But these are the public, not the legal aspects of the matter at issue. The weighty insurance problems as yet unsolved are: What further reforms are to be effected in the great life insurance companies? What further guarantees will the safety of the funds and the public interest demand? Who are to be the officers? Who the Directors? What legislation is called for, what restraints must be imposed? These questions are important. They relate to the future. They have to do with evils not yet certainly cured, but curable. They arise from no vindictive impulse, from no spirit of savagery, from no ruthless desire to see all possible punishment inflicted and the maximum damage done regardless of equal and exact justice and of consequences. The answers to these questions will be wholesome and remedial. We do not know that sober-minded men would expect so much unmixed benefit from the answer to the larceny question.

TO LONDON BY RAIL.

It is interesting to hear that the Czar and the Russian imperial family "sympathize with" the project of connecting the Russian possessions in Siberia and what were the Russian possessions in America, but are now the possessions of the United States, by means of a tunnel under Bering Strait.

From an engineering point of view the project presents no terrors whatever. The shortest distance across the strait, from East Cape, in Asia, to Prince of Wales Cape, in Alaska, is about thirty-six miles, the latter promontory being almost precisely on the Arctic Circle, the former less than a degree within it. The depth of water varies from 23 to 30 fathoms. These figures present to modern engineers only what is vulgarly known as a cinch. It is true that the labor problem would undoubtedly become urgent when the project took practical shape, and that the conditions of it would be quite opposed to those which prevail on the Isthmus, the problem in the case of Bering Strait being to attract and subsist laborers inured not to tropic heat but to polar cold. But working in a tunnel under the strait would be more endurable, climatically speaking, than working on the surface. It is to be noted that there are several small islands in the strait. It is possible, considering the advantages of these as sites for piers, that the better engineering opinion might be that a bridge was more practicable than a tunnel.

But, as we of Greater New York have found to our cost, the tunnel, or the bridge, is by no means the whole proposition. You must provide it with approaches and "feeders." On the Asiatic side, the Russian estimate is that about 3,000 miles of trackage will be required to connect the tunnel with the Siberian Central. But it is also estimated that the boom in Siberian real estate would compensate the expenditure. On the American side the distance, starting from Vancouver, is much less, being only some fifteen degrees of latitude. The "way business" for the Canadian provinces and for the American Klondike would of course be greatly developed by the coast line continuing that from Southern California to the Canadian border.

It is possibly fair to assume that, by the time the connection across Bering Strait is completed, the Channel tunnel between France and England will be in full operation, and the "silver streak," associated with so much misery in the remembrance of so many generations, a thing of the hateful past, so far as passenger traffic is concerned. It may be a rash prediction to say that before the President makes the dirt fly the Czar will make the ice fly. But it looks to be a fairly conservative estimate that the tunnel will be open for business as soon as the canal.

THE GOVERNOR OF SAMAR.

Everybody will rejoice at the escape of the Governor of Samar, who was reported to have fallen a victim to the ambush and treachery of the outlaws of his island. Everybody, that is to say, excepting the anti-imperialists of Boston, who would apparently have regarded his killing as the just expiation of his crime in attempting to bring a free people beneath the yoke of American servitude. The anti-imperialists learned with shame and grief that only a score of American casualties offset the violent deaths of some hundreds of the beleaguered bandits in the late fight in Mindanao. They will probably be proportionately grieved and shocked to learn that in the fight brought on in Samar by the treachery of the band of Pulajanes, in spite of the advantages which their treachery gave the strugglers for freedom, there were some seventy casualties among them to sixteen among the American forces. Possibly a reversal of these figures would satisfy the anti-imperialists that the fight was fair on the part of the Americans.

The fact clearly is that when a mad dog or a mad man, running amuck, insists upon being killed, the friends of order have no choice but to oblige him. That was the case in Mindanao the other day. It is the case in Samar now, just as truly as it was the case in Lord KITCHENER's famous battle, in which there was no alternative left to the British but with deep regret to massacre the hordes of the Mad Mullah which could be quieted in no other manner. A barbarian who is also a fanatic is a person very difficult to be dealt with in a parliamentary manner. And, since the days of "Hell-Roaring JAKE," Samar has been specially given over to barbarian fanatics, and barbarian fanatics who have no scruples on their own side. One has to go back, in the history of Europe, to the days of LOUIS XI. and CHARLES the Bold to find a precedent for the shameless treachery of these Pulajanes. Gov. CURRY, it seems, undertook to convince them by candid argument of the beneficent intentions of the United States, and has all but forfeited his life to his confidence in that policy of dealing with them. It is quite plain that the conflict from which he so narrowly escaped was forced upon the Americans. That will be a very unwise member of the Opposition in Congress who attempts to make any political capital out of it.

A "HORSESHEDDING" REFORMER.

The lawyers are now "saying things in the horsesheds" regarding the Judges who have rendered opinions in the several conspicuous cases decided within the past few days. Everything is for the best in the best of all possible worlds, according to those who have won their cases. It must be admitted that some of those aggrieved by the "immunity bath" decision would stop one stage short of actual rebellion. A mere amendment of the Constitution would satisfy them as an instalment. Is it to be endured that Federal control of corporations, advocated by the President for years and in repeated messages, shall be "scrapped" merely because there is no constitutional warrant for such a law? And if the Administration, having demanded a Bureau of Corporations, finds it the best servant of the trusts, is there not urgent need for use in the Congressional campaign of some other new thing to distract attention from the flat failure of the previous new thing? A constitutional amendment is about the last thing left upon the shelves, and it is necessary to bring up the reserves unless critical people shall come to make disturbing comparisons between promise and performance, and between fussy meddling and workmanlike execution. Was there ever before an Administration which meddled with so many things, and accomplished so few?

How different are the remarks by Mr. HADLEY. Only last week he was ridiculed as a David about to be devoured by the mighty lawyers retained by the Goliath of trusts. Once more it was to be demonstrated how futile was the attempt to bind Standard Oil with the withes of the law, and Socialism was the cry. But the court gives its ruling, the recalcitrant magnates surrender at discretion, and the invincible trust is now in danger of confiscation of all its property within the Missouri jurisdiction, or of ouster, or of fine to any amount Judges care to levy. Says Mr. HADLEY—and he is entitled to be heard—"Existing laws are ample to safeguard the country so far as trusts are concerned. It seems mere folly to be shouting continually for more laws for the government of concerns that tend toward the restraint of trade. The whole trouble is that the laws are not enforced, and that monopolies take advantage of this condition. Socialism, Government ownership, and such remedies are neither wise nor necessary."

Even though the remark may seem trite to readers of THE TIMES, it is worth while to repeat it upon such authority. And as for corruption upon the bench and venality among lawyers, it is refreshing to quote the same gentleman from Missouri, who is being "shown," and who incidentally is showing us. Never has there been a higher standard of honor than to-day, says Mr. HADLEY. Integrity and intelligence were never higher among lawyers on or off the bench. We gather that Mr. HADLEY is not running for Congress this Fall, and is looking forward to more professional accomplishments, rather than backward upon a dreary waste of failures and mistakes. The interviews in the horsesheds are instructive as well as amusing.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Conservatives Who Are Overtimed.

That was indeed an able defense of "silent letters" in the letter from W. E. BYLES which we printed yesterday. Not only was it able, but it had passion and pathos on its side. What particularly interested us in this argument of the spelling reform opponent was his entirely logical suggestion that, instead of adapting letters to words, words should be adapted to letters. We cordially admit that it would be just as well to pronounce all words as they are spelled as it would be to spell them as they are pronounced, and we venture to say that the same admission would be made by Mr. CARNEGIE and all the members of his simplification board. He, they, and we, however, would have to hint, very gently, that the linguistic world never has been run that way and that it is at least improbable that it ever will be. And, while Mr. BYLES was entirely logical as far as he went, he went by no means far enough to make his position thoroughly consistent and therefore thoroughly admirable. Let the dear silent letters alone, he said; they have a right to be there, for they tell of the past and are lessons in history—occasionally in the history of things that really were. They do, they do! But why be content with merely letting alone the silent letters that have escaped suppression during the process of so-called reform that has been going on ever since men began to write English? Why not put back the vastly more numerous letters that were cruelly "fired," some of them, and not a few, well along in the century that so recently closed? Those letters, too, had their rights—they, too, taught history lessons. If we are not to reform forward, do let us reform backward; let us discover—or guess at—the way each English word was first set down and make everybody pronounce every letter in the oldest form. Would Mr. BYLES be satisfied if the spelling of CHAUCER were revived, or would he insist on going still further into the abysm of time and foregathering with CAEDMON? That is, we really believe, the safest course—the only course by which the iconoclastic CARNEGIE and those whom he is "backing" can be prevented from putting out of sight as well as out of hearing the letters of which Mr. BYLES is so fond. The dreadful truth is that they purpose doing something that has innumerable precedents, and that after they have done the worst they think of doing they will only have slightly hastened a change which would indubitably take place if they did nothing at all. We cannot understand, however, why Mr. BYLES or any other opponent of spelling reform is weak enough to view with affection word-forms that were "abhorrent barbarisms" only forty or fifty years ago.

Problems In Coal Cost.

After laborious study of the figures presented by the coal operators to show what would happen to the consumer of anthracite if the demand of the miners for higher wages were granted, one at last seizes upon two comparatively simple statements: The labor cost of each ton of anthracite would be increased 51.8 cents, and it would be necessary to advance the retail price $1.20. We have called these statements simple, but that is not to say that they are comprehensible—not easily comprehensible, that is, by any mind not that of an "operator." The mere ignorant man with a furnace and a wife and a few children to keep warm therewith feels a shamefaced inclination to wonder why an increase of cost amounting to 51.8 cents at one end of the coal business should necessitate an advance so much greater at the other, which happens to be his end. Remembering that the famine prices fixed during the last strike have been pretty firmly maintained ever since, he almost wonders why, in case of another strike settlement, he should have to pay what seems to him more than twice its expense to the owners of the mines. These, however, are problems in high finance, and they cannot be expected to work out according to the ordinary rules of arithmetic. The difference is all beautifully explained in the proclamation of the operators, and it would be too much to ask them to supply both the explanation and the intelligence to comprehend it. That "the consumer always pays" is a law of nature, and nobody thinks of finding fault with it; in time, presumably, the consumer will get used to paying twice, and he ought to be happy over the general admission in the upper circles that it is not well to exact "more than the traffic will bear." To be sure, more often is exacted, for awhile, but such unpleasant things usually happen when that is done that it is considered bad form and unwise policy, even by "operators."

Treachery That Was Humorous.

An extremely interesting feature of the episode in which Gov. CURRY increased his knowledge of the Pulajanes is the device by which these coy natives lulled the American officials into a delusive security and so made the successful attack upon them possible. According to the dispatches, four chiefs and a hundred well-armed warriors appeared in fulfillment of a promise to surrender, and then asked to be photographed in the act of handing over their weapons. So strange was that request, so out of harmony with human nature, at least as it is understood on this side of the world, that one wonders why the Americans were not made suspicious by it. Apparently they were not. They got out their cameras, posed the picturesque company, pressed the button, and—the Pulajanes did the rest. The picture was "developed" with great rapidity, but it was the Americans who found themselves very much "overexposed." The Governor, the Judge, and the Superintendent of Schools, who were chased across the Magtaon River, will hereafter remember betimes, perhaps, that the desire to be photographed in the act of surrendering to a foreign foe is neither common nor deep, and that it will be well for them to watch out with some keenness whenever it is expressed, even in the Philippines.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Senator Burton has no seat in the body to which the Kansas Legislature elected him. Of course, if he came back to the Senate, Mr. Clapp would have to vacate the seat once occupied by the Kansas Senator, but the fact remains that in the perpetual scramble for choice seats, advantage has been taken of the absent one, and he has been rooted out. Burton's seat was more desirable than the one occupied by Senator Clapp, and the Minnesota Senator moved into it, explaining to the Sergeant at Arms that his move was only temporary. Clapp's old seat was more desirable than the one which Senator Dryden occupied, so he concluded he would move into it.

"When Senator Clapp asks for his old seat I'll move back to my old one," Mr. Dryden explained to Col. Ransdell, the Sergeant at Arms. Senator Hemenway of Indiana had a seat in the rear row on the Republican side, and when he heard that Dryden had left his old seat promptly seized upon it. Senator Warner of Missouri, who had been uncomfortable in a rear row on the Democratic side, saw the vacant seat once occupied by Hemenway in the rear of the Republican row, and began to make inquiries.

"Several Senators have moved temporarily," explained Col. Ransdell.

"All right," said Warner. "I'll move temporarily myself." And he did.

Senator La Follette to-day took the place of Senator Bailey, whose father's death has called him to Texas, as general counsel to Mr. Tillman, the custodian of the Rate bill. Mr. La Follette moved into Mr. Bailey's seat, alongside Tillman, and there gave him advice about the management of the bill during the debate to-day.

This combination between a Republican and a Democrat is a curious illustration of the extent to which party lines have disappeared in the debate. It attracted no comment, and it seemed perfectly natural that a Republican Senator should take the place of a Democrat as counsel to another Democrat. The whole discussion to-day was strikingly illustrative of the changed conditions. No one listening to the discussion could have had any way of telling which were the Republicans and which the Democrats.

From the beginning of the session the progress toward this remarkable state of affairs has been continuous. The Statehood bill, sent over by the House as a party measure and dragooned through that body by appeals to stand by the organization, was disposed of in the Senate without the slightest attention to partisanship. There was no party division in the disposition of the Philippine Tariff bill. There had been lingering traces of party division, however, prior to the advent of the Rate bill. What finally broke it up was the sensational performance of Mr. Aldrich in placing Tillman, a Democrat, in charge of President Roosevelt's interests.

TRUST FUNDS AND LARCENY.

An Analysis of the Problem That Confronted Mr. Perkins and Mr. Bliss.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The confusion which has overtaken the prosecution of certain Directors of the New York Life Insurance Company for misuse of its funds in political contributions is due to the failure to observe the distinction between the intent with which and the purpose for which they were taken. The law as to larceny has to do only with the intent, and nothing whatever with the purpose. The intent is subjective, the purpose is objective.

Take Mr. Perkins. He gave Mr. Bliss his own check for campaign expenses, and received his company's money in reimbursement. Now if he really supposed, or was advised by counsel in good faith, that such use of the company's funds was lawful; that, although it would not be lawful to give them to the Salvation Army to aid its campaign against sin, it was lawful to give them to Mr. Bliss to aid his campaign against silver, then he was not guilty of larceny. But if he did not so suppose, or was not so advised, then he was guilty. That is the plain, square issue of fact. No amount of legal technicalities should be allowed to cloud it.

The general custom in the community has a legitimate bearing upon that issue. Silver is so generally considered among financial men as being so much more dangerous to the nation than sin that it may well be that a petit jury may acquit Mr. Perkins of any felonious intent, upon proof by Directors of various corporations that they are in the habit of thus using their companies' funds, and that he supposed the custom was proper.

On the other hand, the fact that no reputable lawyer can be found who will testify that he advised Mr. Perkins that such use of his company's funds was lawful, and the other facts, showing the secrecy with which it was done, the furtiveness with which its traces were hid, the strenuosity with which that very thing was denied by those very men when the charge was publicly made, all this is relevant to show that in fact Mr. Perkins did not believe that such use of his company's funds was proper, and so tends to disprove his defense of absence of criminal intent.

Hence a prima facie case appears against him, and it is the plain duty of the Grand Jury to find a true bill, leaving to a petit jury to pass upon the issue of fact.

As to Mr. Bliss, it is impossible to see how he can be charged with larceny. The check he received from his co-Director, Perkins, was the latter's personal check. Even if he knew that it was merely an advance, and that his co-Director was to be reimbursed by the company's check, this would not make him guilty of larceny of the company's funds. Of course, if that was a mere trick to conceal an illegal contribution, he could be indicted with Perkins for conspiracy; or, if he had a hand as a Director in the reimbursement, then Bliss would be guilty of larceny, always assuming in his case, as in Perkin's, that he "did not know any better" than to suppose that such use of a company's funds was within the power of a Director. IF THE AUTOMOBILE KILLS.

Case of the Street Car Conductor Applied to the Automobile Owner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with much interest on the first page of THE NEW YORK TIMES of Saturday, March 24, the item about a conductor getting ten years in Sing Sing for causing the death of a man through his running of the car instead of the motorman.

This certainly is no easy penalty and I don't think that a matter of this kind ought to be passed so readily without comment. The Judge probably was justified in handing out such heavy punishment. But let us go a little further. I was thinking of the case where the owner of an automobile knows as much of running his machine as the conductor of running the car. I wonder if in such a case the owner would receive a similar penalty for killing a person.

Judge Foster, it seems, has imposed such a severe punishment in the hope, as he says, that "it will serve as a deterrent to others of your kind." It wouldn't be a bad plan to treat the careless automobile owner in the same strain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Gœthe, in his "Faust," interprets "Measure for Measure," II., 2. He knew Shakespeare too well to do it unconsciously. Apes roll a glass globe, repeating: "This is the world; it rises and falls, and tinkles like glass. How soon it bursts!" Man's physical existence ("essence") is frail as glass. His beastly passions drive it until it breaks.

From The Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bear in mind that the meat packers were not acquitted of conspiring to violate the law. Their escape was purely on a technical law point. They may be guilty of the foulest sort of foul conspiracy, but they are not to be tried for it, just because they allowed Commissioner Garfield to get information from their books and documents. They took great pains to prevent a trial of the charges on their merits. So, fix the facts firmly in your head and steer clear of the impression that the magnates have been given a certificate of character and virtue.

STAMPS THAT STICK NOT.

More Complaints from Victims of Government Bungling.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the past fortnight I have had to pay the Government 28 cents for "insufficient postage" on letters received. The point of my communication to you on the matter is that there was sufficient postage on the letters when mailed, but owing to the thin and weak gum on the stamps they dropped off before they reached me. An Admirer of Foley's Poetry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I doff my hat to him. Few men can move to smiles and tears as does J. W. Foley. His schoolboy poems are not only original, but have heart in them.

His serious poem, "Night," printed a few months ago in THE TIMES, is one of the gems of English poetry. When Crabb Robinson, the diarist, took Mrs. Barbauld's lines commencing "Life, we have been long together" to Wordsworth, the poet bade Robinson repeat them over and over till he had them by heart, and then exclaimed, "I do not often envy other people their good things, but I would gladly give half that I have written to have been the author of those lines." I fancy some of the foremost English-speaking poets of to-day would say the same thing of Foley's stanza, commencing:

> "The warrior Night hath harried me,
> A foeman pitiless is he," &c.

Stefan Bresczttranskuperczatmantzansky, whom THE NEW YORK TIMES's Kent (Ohio) correspondent says (in a dispatch printed in yesterday's issue) that the Post Office authorities are seeking in order to deliver a letter addressed to him, was, if I am not mistaken, the alias adopted, when traveling incognito in America, by Baron Hans Ergoetzttranszweisteinmitlimbsedorff, whose present address is, I believe, Swinemuende, Deutschland. The Post Office authorities at Kent, Ohio, at least would lose nothing by acting on the above suggestion, for Bresczttranskuperczatmantzansky will never call for that letter—nay, not even the trumpet of the Angel Gabriel will rouse him on the day of judgment. RICHARD MANSFIELD IN "THE SCARLET LETTER"

An Impressive Picture of Sorrow and Mental Anguish

IN A CRUDELY MADE PLAY

The Best of Hawthorne's Psychologic Tale Is Too Elusive for Translation to the Stage.

Governor Bellingham	Clarence Handyside
Rev. John Wilson	Sheridan Block
Roger Chillingworth	A. G. Andrews
Rev. Arthur Dimmesdale	Richard Mansfield
Captain Hiram Weeks	Leslie Kenyon
Master Brackett, jailer	Henry Wenman
Hester Prynne	Miss Florence Rockwell
Dame Hartley	Miss Vivian Bernard
Mistress Barlow	Miss Alma Hathaway
Mary Willis	Miss Irene Prahar
Little Pearl	Ory Dimond

It is usually painful to see one's favorite book friends translated into theatric action, and converted from their comfortable silence into characterization of startling brevity and curtailment, but in the case of Mr. Mansfield's production of "The Scarlet Letter," seen again after the lapse of a dozen years, the familiar experience is qualified in a degree proportionate to the actor's consummate skill.

In the range of his repertoire there is hardly a character in which the actor sounds notes of deeper, more impressive, and more poignant suffering, nor is there one in which the cumulative effects of sorrow and mental anguish are set forth with a more convincing semblance of reality. From Arthur Dimmesdale's powerful exhortation to the pitiless mob clamoring for vengeance upon Hester Prynne, through the scene of his repentant midnight revelation, and on to the ultimate avowal of his own shame and guilt from the pillory where Hester seven years before had stood a victim, Mr. Mansfield's acting in this play presents an affecting, eventually, a most stirring, exhibition of dramatic expressiveness.

The dramatization is, intrinsically, most inefficient, and, in any case, a dramatization of Hawthorne's introspective matter is artistically impossible. His thought was of so lofty and psychologic an order, and, in "The Scarlet Letter" particularly, the dramatic action of the characters is so subordinate to their reasoning, self-search, and suffering, that the result is an unfaithful following of the course of the plot, interspersed with certain necessarily unnatural revelations of emotional sensibility cried to heaven—for the benefit of the audience—which mar the purely psychic qualities of the tale.

Transgressors of a hard and fast regulation of morality—harder and faster in those days of puritanic concept than in our own somewhat negligent day—but with sensibility of perception and a fine spiritual intuition to complete their wretchedness and self-torture, two such beings as Hester Prynne and Arthur Dimmesdale can never be adequately depicted in an atmosphere which to be properly effective must, from the very nature of it, suffer overemphasis for the sake of carrying power.

But there is no doubt that the work of dramatization could have been better done. Hawthorne was sombre, philosophic, minute, rich in subtleties of tale-unfolding, almost devoid of humorous conception or execution. Mr. Hatton felt it necessary to improve upon Hawthorne, and to that end he infused certain comedy effects into a fabric whose warp and woof is pure soul-tragedy, and cut and slashed it to suit his own, and—we may assume—the actor's idea of the public requirements.

In brief, in the translation from library to stage, Mr. Hatton has so mangled and distorted the dignity of Hawthorne's text that an unversed spectator, judging of the book by the calibre of the acted story, might well question the value of American classics in general, and this one in particular.

The play's only value then as a play lies in the opportunities which it affords Mr. Mansfield, and possibly in what it might afford an actress cast for Hester, Miss Rockwell, the present performer of the rôle, being addicted to an artificiality of method that neither carries conviction nor creates sympathy. Of Roger Chillingworth, the best of which in the book is chiefly introspective, Mr. Andrews seems to make as much as is possible under the circumstances.

A STAGE LINCOLN.

Benjamin Chapin Weaves a Drama Around the Great War President.

Abraham Lincoln	Benjamin Chapin
Edwin M. Stanton	Francis McGinn
Joseph Hooker	David R. Young
Walter E. Flood	W. H. Pascoe
Ralph Bixby	Malcolm Duncan
Edward	Julien Barton
Uncle Joe	J. H. Lewis
Thomas	Master George Clarke
Mary Tod Lincoln	Maude Granger
Kate Morris	Daisy Lovering

"Lincoln," a character play in which the author, Benjamin Chapin, portrays as his dominant figure the great war President, opened at the Liberty Theatre last night. The name of the playhouse and the attitude of the first-night audience seemed to be about equally auspicious for a patriotic drama.

Mr. Chapin's play has, of course, sprung into being around his impersonation of Abraham Lincoln, which has been of some years' growth. His striking make-up and his physical realization of the character are already more or less familiar in New England and elsewhere.

As a dramatic background for his characterization he has brought together various people and events between the firing on Fort Sumter in '61 and the tragedy of Ford's Theatre in '65. Secretary of War Stanton and Major Gen. Hooker provide appropriate political setting and moments of humor. The Cabinet meetings are picturesque and strenuous.

Mrs. Lincoln and Tad furnish the domestic sides of the frame. At the opening of the play the President studies out the appointment of Stanton as Secretary of War, and at the same time strategically wins Mrs. Lincoln's unwilling consent to some risky excursion for Tad. His story-telling habit, both in private and public, is much in evidence.

As a kind of garland for the picture there is a love story. A young Union Captain, in love with Mrs. Lincoln's niece, is wrongfully accused by his rival of being a spy. The President's patience and insight finally establish the young man's innocence.

From the happy ending of the love story and the great peace of the Emancipation Proclamation Lincoln quietly leaves his sitting room for Ford's Theatre on the fatal evening. There the play ends.

From the moment Mr. Chapin appeared on the stage in his really notable make-up he had his audience with him through the somewhat deliberately commingled smiles and tears of his piece. When the curtain fell on the third act the telegrams from Gettysburg were just in. The orchestra played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The audience rose in a body and demanded a speech. Mr. Chapin, however, found he could not say any more than "thank you."

People who like to see their historical heroes for a couple of hours from the point of view of an orchestra chair are likely to find much to interest them in Mr. Chapin's portrait of the martyred President. For those who shrink from the possible indiscretions of such attempts, Mr. Chapin's impersonation contains, after all, little to offend.

The members of the supporting cast, including Francis McGinn as Secretary Stanton, W. H. Pascoe as Major Flood, Maude Granger as Mrs. Lincoln, and Daisy Lovering as the President's niece, were all well received.

Several military and naval officers, including Admiral Coghlan and Gen. Wade, were in the audience.

DRAMA FOR NEW CITIZENS.

Much Praise for the Work of the Educational Alliance.

The managers of the Educational Alliance received many commendations yesterday for the third entertainment of the season, given on Sunday evening at the Alliance. These entertainments are given to teach recently landed immigrants by simple means the true spirit of American drama.

So far only simple sketches and musical entertainments of familiar character have been presented, in addition to single acts of certain of the successful plays of the Alliance's répertoire. But one interesting and singular feature about these entertainments is that they are not presented by professionals and hired performers from other parts of the city, who suddenly come down to audiences of the very existence of which they were hitherto ignorant. These entertainments have been exclusively given by the sons and daughters of immigrants themselves. The second generation seems to be repaying what was done for their fathers and mothers. They gladly and willingly enter into the spirit of this educational work, for they feel that they are doing to others as was done to theirs.

The Sunday programme included several recitations and songs, selections by the Alliance orchestra class, directed by Sam Franko; a one-act play, and the first act of "The Little Princess."

"ARREST THE PERFORMERS."

Court's Instructions to the Police on Sunday Theatre Violations.

Two detectives applied for a summons for William Hammerstein, manager of the Victoria Theatre, in the West Side Court yesterday for alleged violations of the Sunday law. They said they were sent to the theatre on Sunday night by Capt. Zimmerman of the West Forty-seventh Street Station. The detectives handed Magistrate Wahle a programme and pointed out several acts they thought were violations of the law.

"Was the manager of the theatre present?" asked the Magistrate.

"Not that we were aware of," replied one of the detectives.

"Then I'll give you summonses for the performers," said Magistrate Wahle.

"They have left the city."

"Well, the next time you see any violations of the Sunday law," said the court, "go on the stage, stop the performance, and arrest the performers. They are the offenders, not the managers."

"Shall we arrest them without warrants?" asked the detectives.

"Of course, arrest them. If you see a crime committed it is your duty to make arrests."

Magistrate Wahle's decision is believed to be the most sweeping yet made by a Police Magistrate in this matter.

SOUSA'S NEW COMIC OPERA.

"The Free Lance" Has Its First Production in Springfield, Mass.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 26.—The comic opera "The Free Lance," by John Philip Sousa, with book and lyrics by Harry B. Smith, had its first production on any stage in the Court Square Theatre this evening.

There are twenty-two musical numbers. "On to Victory," a battle song, closes both acts. A topical song, "It Was His Hair," was sung by Joseph Cawthorn, in the leading rôle of Siegmund Lump. Nella Bergen, as Yolande, sang "The Carrier Pigeon." There are two or three quartets and a trio.

The plot is the usual comic opera one of a senile potentate, a scheming Duke, mistaken identity, and love. The book has many hits on current events.

TESTIMONIAL TO WALDEN.

Herr Conried's Leading Man Honored at the Irving Place.

"Die Nacht der Liebe, ("The Night of Love,") a comedy in four acts by M. Baumfeld, was presented last night at the Irving Place Theatre as a testimonial to Harry Walden, the leading man of Mr. Conried's forces. Mr. Walden appeared in the principal rôle of Mascavallo, and was supported in the leading woman's part by Marie Reisenhofer as Roda Lamberton.

The plot has to do with the complications that Mascavallo gets into by becoming Director of a National Conservatory for Women. His greatest difficulty is his inability to resist the charms of one of the teachers in the institution, Roda Lamberton, who breaks all the rules and regulations in the conservatory, much to the annoyance of the other teachers and pupils. Through Blanche Knickerbocker, a young woman who possesses all the virtues, Mascavallo is eventually reclaimed, and all ends happily.

The lobby was filled with floral tributes to Mr. Walden. The audience was large.

AT THE THEATRES YESTERDAY

"Young Buffalo, King of the Wild West," was the attraction at the Fourteenth Street.

At Proctor's 125th Street Theatre "Mlle. Marni" was revived by the stock company.

"'Way Down East," with a new scenic setting, was the offering at the West End.

"In New York Town" began a week's engagement at the American last evening.

"Chinatown Charlie" was the melodrama performed at the Metropolis.

At the Murray Hill "More to be Pitied Than Scorned" was the attraction.

"My Tomboy Girl," with Lottie Williams, was the melodrama at the New Star.

Frank Daniels returned to the city in "Sergeant Brue" at the Grand Oepra House.

"Rupert of Hentzau" was the weekly revival of the all-star company at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Robert Mantell was seen in "King Lear" at the Harlem Opera House.

William J. Kelly and his stock company presented "Rip Van Winkle" at the Yorkville.

The leading attractions at Huber's Fourteenth Street Museum were Mlle. Morellos, the Three Claytons, and Minnie Dreher.

The World in Wax, the Hungarian Orchestra, and the cinematograph were the features at the Eden Musee.

At Hurtig & Seamon's, "The Girl in the Red Domino" was the top-liner. Other leading acts were given by the Waterbury Brothers, Duryea and Mortimer, Wilton Brothers, and the Shetlands.

Henri de Vries presented "A Case of Arson" at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre. Kitty Traney, S. Miller Kent, the Dollar Troupe, and Emma Francis also appeared.

The Kilties were the big features at the Alhambra. Other acts were given by Rice and Prevost, Edmund Day, Mayme Remington, Melville Ellis, and the Milano Trio.

Harry Tate's "Motoring" was first on the bill at Keith's. Will Cressy and Blanche Dayne, Duffin and Redclay, Willie Eckstein, Leone and Dale, and Lina Pantzer were other entertainers.

At Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre the bill included Grace Van Studdiford, Joe Welch, May Boley, E. F. Reynard, the Four Lukens, Charles Leonard Fletcher, and Ray and Cox.

At the Victoria Fred Walton was seen in "Cissie's Dream." The remainder of the entertainment was given by Frank Bush, Daisy Harcourt, the Hungarian Boys' Band, Cabaret's Dogs, and Wood and Ray.

Horace Goldin was the head-liner at the Colonial. Others were Vesta Victoria, Ryan and Richfield, the Jackson Family, Thorne and Carleton, Murray and Lane, and Black and Jones.

The attractions that remain are: "A Society Circus" at the Hippodrome, "His Majesty" at the Majestic, "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum, "Humpty Dumpty" at the New York, Francis Wilson in "The Mountain Climber" at the Criterion, Otis Skinner in "The Duel" at the Hudson, Blanche Bates in "The Girl of the Golden West" at the Belasco, "Mexicana" at the Lyric, Louis Mann and Clara Lipman in "Julie Bon Bon" at the Fields, Elsie Janis in "The Vanderbilt Cup" at the Broadway, Maude Adams in "Peter Pan" at the Empire, De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland" at the Casino, Fritzi Scheff in "Mlle. Modiste" at the Knickerbocker, "Gallops" at the Garrick, George M. Cohan in "George Washington, Jr.," at the Herald Square, "Charley's Aunt" at the Manhattan, "Mr. Hopkinson" at the Savoy, David Warfield in "The Music Master" at the Bijou, William Faversham in "The Squaw Man" at Wallack's, "Twiddle Twaddle" and "The Squaw Man's Girl of the Golden West" at the Weber Music Hall, Lawrance d'Orsay in "The Embassy Ball" at Daly's, "The Greater Love" at the Madison Square, and Raymond Hitchcock in "Galloper" at the Garden.

SERGEANT, AS SOLOMON, HOLDS DOG IN DISPUTE

Brindle Puppy Causes a Visit to Police Station.

CLAIMANTS ARGUE THERE

Official Locks Up the Animal at Last and Refers Disputants to a Police Court.

Dr. Russell H. Root and Mrs. Root turned east from Eighth Avenue into 125th Street at 8:30 o'clock last night. Mrs. Root led a tiny brindled puppy by a string. The puppy was stretching its short legs to keep up with the string.

Joseph F. McKane, who spends his working hours instructing Metropolitan Street Railway motormen, walked up and seized the string that went from Mrs. Root's hand to the brindled pup's collar.

"Let go that string, please," said Mrs. Root, gently enough. She thought it was some mistake.

"Aha!" exclaimed McKane, triumphantly. "You have my dog, have you? But now I have him again."

"What do you mean?" broke in Dr. Root.

"That's my dog, and I can prove it!" said McKane.

"Your dog, indeed," said Mr. Root. "Why, that's absurd. He's our dog."

The inevitable crowd gathered. Then the policeman, equally inevitable when there's a dog fight or a fight over a dog, appeared. He was asked to be the judge. He modestly suggested that the Sergeant at the station was a man of much greater discernment.

"Just a little way up the street here," he said, painting, "is the station. You'd better go there."

So away went Dr. and Mrs. Root, the brindle puppy, Joseph F. McKane, Policeman Shenn, and the crowd. In five minutes the police station had become a tribunal. The argument waxed hot. Sergeant Fitzgerald was more puzzled every minute. First it looked as if the dog couldn't be anybody's but Mrs. Root's, and then Kane put up a strong plea.

"I got that dog in Schoharie County," said Mrs. Root, "and can show its pedigree."

"I had a photograph taken of that pup," said Kane, positively, "and I can show it to you. Why, I'll bet that dog 'll come to me in a minute. Here, Nellie, here! Come here!"

The puppy wagged its tail delightedly and went as far toward Kane as the string allowed. Kane's face took on a smile of victory, and he looked hopefully at the Sergeant.

"That's nothing," put in Mrs. Root. "Any dog'll do that if you speak to it kindly. Here, Trixie, here! Come here!"

"Trixie" tumbled and made haste to reach Mrs. Root.

Fitzgerald was in despair. The argument had lasted half an hour.

"I'll keep the dog!" he announced abruptly. "John!" (this to the doorman,) "Take that dog back!"

Mrs. Root didn't like that at all. She caressed the puppy and commiserated it for the treatment it was going to get.

"I'll give the dog good beafsteak and a soft pillow to lie on, Madam," promised the Sergeant. "You can go to the Harlem Court to-morrow, all of you, and whichever gets the decision from the Judge can come here for the dog. Goodnight."

That closed the first chapter of the story. The second comes to-day.

SCISSORED THE SAFE OPEN.

Can Mr. Snipe Peters Explain How the Bottom Fell Out of the Strong Box?

Like many others who buy safes Sigmund Leinhardt of 244 East Broadway, when he bought his eight years ago, was content with the four-inch steel thickness of the top and four sides of it, and never looked at the bottom.

For eight years nobody ever thought of looking at the bottom of that formidable looking safe until the burglar came along. Mr. Leinhardt had family jewelry worth $5,000 in that safe.

A few nights ago a sad-eyed youth with a melancholy cough came along and asked Mr. Leinhardt, who is in the Parisian dresmaking business, if he could give the young man a job. Mr. Leinhardt couldn't. The young man went out. Then he came back. Might there not be a job next week? No. The sad-eyed youth lingered a minute, then went away.

On Sunday night two of Mr. Leinhardt's nephews went to a ball. They should have returned to the store after the ball to sleep, but they were tired and decided to go home. Next morning Mr. Leinhardt discovered that his great thick safe had been rifled of $100 and the family jewels.

The safe had been wheeled into another room than that which it had occupied, had been turned upside down and opened with a screw-driver and a pair of heavy shears. Those tools sufficed, for the bottom was made of sheet iron.

The plain clothes man who came from Police Headquarters scratched his head and said:

"It's funny you never thought of looking at the bottom of that safe."

That didn't help the conversation along. Mr. Reinhardt then happened to mention the sad-eyed young man.

"Did he happen to have a sad cough?" asked the detective.

"Why, yes."

"Thank you. Snipe Peters for a nickel."

Saying no more, the plain-clothes man departed. Yesterday Mr. Leinhardt was summoned to Brooklyn Headquarters, where he was asked to look over a line-up of persons various. He picked out a sad-eyed youth who coughed hesitatingly, and said:

"I have never been introduced to Mr. Leinhardt, as I remember."

But Snipe Peters was held pending investigation of his movements.

"The Darling of the Gods" Again.

"The Darling of the Gods" began a return engagement of one week at the Academy of Music last evening before a large house. Percy Haswell appeared as the Japanese Princess Yo San, while Robert Haines played his original rôle of Kara. The original scenic production was used and was as effective as ever.

WANT AND NEED.

There's a big difference between what a baby wants and what he needs. Deny him the one, give him the other. Most babies need Scott's Emulsion—it's the right thing for a baby. It contains a lot of strength-building qualities that their food may not contain. After a while they get to want it. Why? Because it makes them comfortable. Those dimples and round cheeks mean health and ease. Scott's Emulsion makes children easy; keeps them so, too.

MANY MOTHERS TO HIRE.

English Comedienne, a Stage Orphan, Advertised, and Was Deluged.

MOTHER.—Wanted, to hire, a mother; must be respectable, elderly person, with good references. Apply at the stage door, Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre, Monday morning.

This advertisement appeared in Saturday's morning papers. Yesterday morning hundreds of women appeared at the stage door at the Victoria. In her dressing room Daisy Harcourt, who had put in the advertisement, was in terror because of the unexpected deluge.

Miss Harcourt is an English character comedienne. She says she is all alone in the world, and is anxious to have some one shield her from the hardships of a theatrical career. In this emergency she thought of the newspapers to get her out of the difficulty.

Women of all kinds and descriptions streamed up with the hope of becoming a "mother" to Miss Daisy. There were nurses and actresses, women with diamonds, and women with children. There was even one who had "danced the light fantastic" in "The Black Crook." But there were too many, and Miss Harcourt could not decide. Maybe she will choose a "mother" to-day.

BROOKLYN'S SEWER FRAUDS.

Lawyer William O. Miles and His Agents Placed on Trial.

The trials in connection with the Brooklyn fraud cases were begun yesterday afternoon, when Lawyer William O. Miles and five others were arraigned on a charge of conspiracy. The other defendants were Martin J. McMahon, chief of the Division of Sewer Claims in the office of the Controller of the city; John B. Scanlon, an Inspector under McMahon; Charles M. Wells, Frank Mandell, and Daniel Casey, all of whom are employed by Miles.

The day was taken up with selection of a jury and presentation of the case by the District Attorney.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Katharine Corse Ingersoll, widow of Charles D. Ingersoll, and a niece of the late Israel Corse, to Robert Taylor Varnum, brother of Gen. James Varnum, who married Miss Mary Dickey. The wedding of Mr. Varnum and Mrs. Ingersoll will take place on April 19, and the immediate families only will be asked, as Mrs. Ingersoll is in deep mourning for her mother. The bride and bridegroom will sail immediately for Europe, to remain until next Autumn.

⁂

The announcement in Sunday's TIMES of the engagement of Miss Jean Hancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hancy, to William Keyser of Baltimore, has been much talked over by the younger set. Miss Hancy, who made her début two years ago, went abroad with her parents in the early Autumn, and has spent the Winter traveling on the Continent. It was while traveling that she met her fiancé, who was traveling with his mother, Mrs. William Keyser, his sister, Mrs. William Manly, and the latter's husband. It is expected that the wedding will take place in town in the late Spring or early Autumn. Mrs. Keyser and Mrs. Manly are now at Genoa, having left Mr. Keyser in Egypt with his fiancée and her parents.

⁂

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett has gone to Washington to spend ten days, and on her return next month will sail for England, where she will spend the Summer at her country place, Maytham Hall, near London.

⁂

Miss Alice Lee Thomas, who had been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Rieman Duval, and her cousin, Miss Nannie Gordon Duval, has returned to Baltimore.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Carter, who have been spending some months in England, near Rugby, will return in the early part of May to their Bryn Mawr residence.

⁂

Miss Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Winthrop Folsom, is visiting in Baltimore. Several dinners and luncheons have been given there for her.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. George Brewster (Miss Bosher), who were married last week at Richmond, Va., will, while on their European tour, make an automobile trip through the south of France.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Guest (Mrs. Flora Bigelow Dodge) have arrived from England, whither they sailed in February, and will soon leave for their home near Montreal.

⁂

Mrs. John H. Hall (Miss Ward) of 559 Fifth Avenue is booked to sail on Tuesday next for Japan. She will be accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hall, and by her daughter, Miss Martha Hall.

Mustn't Use the Title "Buster Brown."

A preliminary injunction restraining the Star Company, which publishes the New York American and Journal from further use of the words "Buster Brown" as the heading of a comic section in its Sunday paper, was issued yesterday by Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court. This is the first step in litigation between the Herald and the American. The injunction is held to apply to the title only.

NEVER TOO ILL FOR A STORY.

"Mark Twain's" Only Comment on Brooklyn's Edict Against His Works.

There is a letter over in Brooklyn signed by Samuel L. Clemens, a sad man living at 21 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, has been ill for a week with a cold which threatened him with pneumonia. Yesterday he was said to be better, but he did not feel well enough to receive interviewers and explain to them how it had happened that the Brooklyn Public Libraries, through Librarian Frank P. Hill, had put on the "restricted list" both "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," and what he had said to them in the letter he wrote on the subject.

Mr. Clemens's secretary told the reporters that the humorist had thrown away Dante's "Inferno," which he had been reading, when he learned of the ban on his books in Brooklyn. Then he proceeded to tell a story he knew of an Englishman who "bettered a story." Here is the story as the secretary told it:

"There was once a wicked man who stayed late at his club. His wife had a cuckoo clock. As he entered the door he heard it sound twice, and on his own account added more 'cuckoos.' When he awoke in the morning he was happy in the belief that his wife had been deceived into thinking he had got home by 12 o'clock.

"Now this story was told by an American to an Englishman, who, lacking a sense of humor, insisted on telling the sequel. It was to the effect that the too lively gentleman learned from his spouse when he complained about not being wakened in time that she had been out on an errand. During the night she had heard the clock 'co-co' and decided that it had the hiccoughs, so she had taken it to the clockmaker."

The doctor who was summoned after this story said that his patient was doing very well, indeed. The fact that Mr. Hill had refused to give out the letter in regard to the edict against "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer" made it impossible for Mr. Clemmens's secretary to make it public, the communication being personal.

NORVAL E. FOARD DEAD.

Veteran Editor of The Baltimore Sun—Reported Fort Sumter's Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—Norval E. Foard, for nearly forty years associated with the Baltimore Sun, and for many years holding a leading editorial position on that paper, died to-day of pneumonia. He was 69 years old.

Mr. Foard was born in 1837, in Alexandria, Va., and was educated in private schools of Charleston, S. C., and at St. John's College. At 20 he began newspaper work as a reporter for The Baltimore Republican. In 1858 he went to the Baltimore Exchange, and later became a member of the editorial staff of The American. He was present at the South Carolina State Convention when the ordinance of secession was passed Dec. 20, 1860.

He sent to the North the first news of the failure of the steamer Star of the West to relieve the garrison of Fort Sumter after the United States troops had been withdrawn from Fort Moultrie. Foard witnessed and wrote of the bombardment and surrender of Fort Sumter. He was present at the signing of the ordinance of secession of Alabama, reported the doings of the Provisional Congress of the Confederacy, the inauguration of Jefferson Davis, and went to Richmond when the capital was moved to that city.

Foard enlisted and participated in the first Battle of Bull Run. He afterward served in the commissary department. Foard returned to Baltimore in 1865 and was employed on The Sun, which employment he had until his death, occupying positions of city editor, State editor, &c. Mr. Foard is survived by a widow, two daughters, and one brother.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox's Mother Dead.

BRANFORD, Conn., March 26.—Mrs. Sarah J. Wheeler, mother of Mrs. Robert Wilcox, (Ella Wheeler Wilcox,) died to-night at The Barracks, Short Beach, at the age of 92. Mrs. Wheeler suffered a slight stroke of paralysis a week ago. She leaves four children. The funeral will take place Thursday in Brooklyn.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The western disturbance has reached the southern portion of the lake region, and caused general rains in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys and the lake region. It has also caused a general rise in temperature throughout the interior valleys and in the Atlantic Coast States.

Rain is indicated for Tuesday in Atlantic Coast States north of Florida, also in the Upper Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be fresh, possibly brisk southerly; South Atlantic Coast fresh southwest to south.

Steamers departing Tuesday for European ports will have brisk south winds and rainy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York and New England, rain and somewhat warmer Tuesday; Wednesday fair and colder, brisk south winds, shifting to west.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware, rain and somewhat colder Tuesday; Wednesday fair, colder, brisk south winds, shifting to west.

Western New York, rain Tuesday, colder in extreme west portion; Wednesday snow flurries and colder.

Western Pennsylvania, rain and colder Tuesday; Wednesday snow flurries and colder, fresh northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1905.	1906.		1905.	1906.
3 A. M.	44	32	4 P. M.	53	43
6 A. M.	46	32	6 P. M.	52	45
9 A. M.	48	37	9 P. M.	51	45
12 M.	55	40	12 P. M.	49	45

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 38; for the corresponding date last year it was 50; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 39.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 36; at 8 P. M. it was 44. Maximum temperature 45 degrees at 5 P. M.; minimum 32 degrees at 3 A. M. Humidity, 88 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 93 per cent. at 8 P. M.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Nathan Solomon Cohen.

Nathan Solomon Cohen, publisher of Das Morgen Journal, died yesterday at his home, 117 West 136th Street, after three weeks' illness. Typhoid fever was the cause of death.

He was born in this city forty-six years ago, and was educated in the public schools. As a boy he evinced a great liking for newspaper work, and began by carrying copy for his father, the late Solomon Nathan Cohen, who was on the staff of the Staats-Zeitung for forty years. In 1881 he became a reporter at Police Headquarters for The Star. Later he was employed on The Herald and The World, and was night editor of the old Morning Journal in the last days of the Pulitzer ownership. He then became advertising manager of The Journal, and about ten years ago took charge of Das Morgen Journal as publisher.

At that time the sheet was being published by Mr. Hearst at a heavy loss, and he had about determined to dispose of it. Mr. Cohen, however, prevailed on him to retain the paper, promising to make it pay. This he did in two years.

Mr. Cohen was well known and popular. He was a member of the Hardware, Sphinx, and German Press Clubs. His wife and two children survive him. Funeral services will be held at his late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in Woodlawn.

John M. Kirk.

John M. Kirk, Manager of the Cabin Passenger Department of the International Mercantile Marine Company, died at his home, 112 West Seventy-second Street, yesterday, after an illness of three days. Mr. Kirk, who was about 62 years old, was one of the best-known steamship men in the United States. He had served forty years altogether with the Inman, the American Line, and the International Mercantile Marine. Mr. Kirk was born in Ballymena, County Antrim, Ireland, came to the United States when he was 20 years old, and settled in Charleston, S. C. A year later he came to New York and from that time to his death was closely identified with the steamship business in this city. Mr. Kirk was a widower. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. M. Belding and Mrs. F. G. Dollner, both of this city.

Walter R. T. Jones.

Walter R. T. Jones, a lawyer, died at his home, 181 Madison Avenue, yesterday. He was 76 years old. In his practice he made a specialty of Admiralty law. He was a member of the Bar Association, the Union League Club, the Downtown Association, the University Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Naval Architects, the Marine Engineers, the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, the St. Nicholas Society, and the American Geographical Society. He leaves a widow.

Jean Baptiste Millet.

PARIS, March 26.—Jean Baptiste Millet, the artist, brother of Jean François Millet, the famous painter, is dead.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. ARCHIBALD PARKHURST died yesterday at 1,004 Broad Street, Newark, N. J. She was 73 years old, and for many years had been at the head of a sanitarium for young women. She was a Miss Magie of Elizabeth, N. J., and was related to Chancellor W. J. Magie.

Col. H. K. Shackelford, better known as "Hal Standish," under which nom de plume he wrote many detective stories, died yesterday at Bainbridge, Ga. Besides being a prolific writer of detective stories for thirty-five years, he was at various times a Baptist preacher, Democratic campaign speaker and lecturer. He was 65 years old.

CHARLES G. HOLLAND, for forty years an employe of The Associated Press and formerly manager of the New York office of that organization, died yesterday at his home, 235 West 108th Street. He was 60 years old and began his newspaper career in the Washington office of The Associated Press as messenger. He came to New York in 1860.

Dr. GEORGE S. DEARBORN, 71 years old, died yesterday at his residence in Rockaway from pneumonia after a short illness. Dr. Dearborn was born in Winthrop, Me., and was a graduate of the Albany (N. Y.) Medical College. He served as a surgeon in the civil war. At the close of the war he practiced medicine at Oxford for twenty-five years and in Rockaway since 1880. A widow, a son, and a daughter survive him.

BENJAMIN F. BIRNBAUM died on Saturday night at the Hotel Premier of heart disease. He was 47 years old, and for many years had been the proprietor of a haberdashery at Third Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. He was a member of the Washington Irving Union, Hamilton Lodge No. 100, Free Sons of Israel, Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society, and the Wyandot Club, and was Treasurer Empire City Lodge No. 206, F. and A. M.

DENNIS O'CONNOR, who served in the late Nineteenth Massachusetts Infantry in the civil war, was Past Commander of the John A. Rawlings Post No. 1, Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic; Past Colonel of Encampment No. 69; Past Adjutant General of the Union Veteran Legion, and Commander of Gen. William F. Barry Garrison No. 26, Army and Navy Union, died in Washington on Sunday. He was a native of Vermont.

WERE YOU SURPRISED?

That 6,000 to 7,000 do the bulk of charitable giving in New York? Is this because the already-givers are bombarded with appeals while the not-yet-givers receive few or none?

The newspapers tell of individual cases of suffering. We want you to know that through A. I. C. P. you can promptly and sympathetically help children and parents in distress because of accident, sickness, or death of wage-earner. Robert Shaw Minturn, Treas., 105 East 22d Street, will send information or acknowledge gifts.

CHATWIT:
The Man-Talk Bird

Philip Verrill Mighels has a way of writing about the West that is all his own. The success of "Bruvver Jim's Baby" attested this delightful originality. This time the author has written of the Western land that he knows so well, and has given the wild animals the leading parts in the story.

Chatwit is a magpie who learns "man-talk" while in captivity and escapes to the wilds to astonish bird and beast alike with his weird accomplishment. Mr. Mighels has given a human touch to Chatwit that is inimitable and truly humorous. Chatwit leads a chequered life, matching his wit and cunning against the forest creatures who take league against him because of his "supernatural" powers. There are exciting times in the woods, and the plots and counterplots of the animals assume a strangely human interest.

CIRCUS "DIP" HALTED.

Fault in the Mechanism Scared Woman Rider for the First Time.

The mechanism that releases the automobile in the "Dip of Death" at the Garden failed to work yesterday afternoon, and left the auto car stationary on the runway.

Slowly and with the greatest care the machine was drawn back to the platform, the releasing mchanism readjusted, and the car once more dropped back to the starting point. This time there was no hitch, and auto and autoist shot through the air, upside down, a distance of forty feet, and safely alighted on the platform.

"It was the most thrilling moment of my life," said Miss Butler, discussing the incident. "It was the only time since I have ben doin gthe act that I really felt afraid."

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise; Call Money Rates, 3½@4¾ Per Cent.

Prospect of More Gold from Berlin—Algeciras News Better.

While much of yesterday's sharp upturn in stocks seemed due to a concerted movement against the short interest in certain stocks, particularly in Reading, which rose some 4½ points on excited trading, there were a number of developments favorable to financial markets which, if they served no other purpose, were at least useful in the day's demonstration. Our State Department received advices from Algeciras that a plan for the policing of Morocco acceptable to all the interests concerned has been devised and would undoubtedly be formally approved within a day or so; the deadlock between a section of the bituminous operators on one hand and certain important operators and miners on the other hand continued, indicating a determined effort to avert a strike, or, at least, to confine it to the Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio fields; word was received in Wall Street late in the day that the anthracite leaders had asked the anthracite operators for an extension of the old agreement for sixty days, and, while this was wholly unconfirmed, it strengthened the belief that the miners' association is unwilling to bring about a strike in both regions simultaneously; demand sterling rates fell sharply, and negotiations were once more actively entered into for further importation of gold from Berlin to this city, and, finally, there were submitted during the day the February earnings statements of several railroads, which revealed the altogether unparalleled prosperity, not only of these railroads themselves, but of those sections of the country which they serve. These various matters in combination were, of course, sufficient to lend vigor to the movement toward higher prices, which after a momentary hesitation at the opening, ran with increasing power to the closing of the session.

Aside from the sharp rise in Reading, there were such advances as 2½ points in Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting, 2¼ points in Consolidated Gas, 2½ points in United States Leather, 1¼ points in Union Pacific, 1 point in Atchison, 1½ points in Missouri Pacific, 1¾ points in Northern Pacific, and 3⅞ points in Great Northern. Speculative opinion regarding the bearing, in a market sense, of the proposed additional stock issue by the New York Central, underwent, to all appearances, a rather decided reversal, since that stock rose 2¼ points. The advance here was accompanied by a rise of 4¼ points in Chicago & Northwestern, which at yesterday's price is some 10 points above its quotation when the New York Central stock issue was announced. Reports that a part of this new stock was for the purpose of taking over the Chicago & Northwestern shares met with denials. A further report regarding this matter yesterday was that there would come into the New York Central's possession, either directly or indirectly, large holdings of Chicago & Northwestern belonging to the estate of a Western financier who died recently. The holdings of this financier, it is understood, were increased by 5,000 shares so shortly as one week before his death.

A decline of some 20 points in the rates for demand sterling brought the foreign exchange market to a basis very close to that upon which it rested when the last engagement of gold from London was announced, while an advance in the Berlin check on London was understood to indicate a renewal of engagements at Berlin on the part of local bankers. The rates yesterday were such as to render possible engagements upon much more favorable terms than those prevailing when the recent importation from Berlin was negotiated. Call money rates were easy, the bulk of the day's loans being made at 4 per cent., a figure well below the average rate prevailing for some time. The banks increased their loss to the Sub-Treasury, the drain to that institution since the appearance of the bank statement having been $936,000, against a gain of $1,272,000 in the same period of the previous week. The loss to the Government comes at a moment when preparations must be made for heavy April dividend and interest disbursements, a matter which may very naturally lead to some activity in money later in the week.

CAPITAL STOCK DOUBLED.

Westinghouse Stockholders Authorize Increase to $50,000,000.

PITTSBURG, March 26.—The stockholders of the Westinghouse Electric Company, at a special meeting at East Pittsburg to-day, voted unanimously to increase the capital stock from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000.

The recent action of the board of directors, by which the company issued $15,000,000 convertible gold bonds of $1,000 each was also ratified.

The attendance of stockholders was large, 389,543 shares being represented. The next annual meeting will be held in July, when a full financial statement of the company's business will be made.

MORE GOLD IMPORTS SOON.

But National City Bank Engagement Abroad Is Denied.

Reports were current yesterday that the National City Bank had engaged $4,000,000 in gold abroad for import to this country. The report, however, was authoritatively denied. Negotiations were under way, it was generally understood, for further engagements of gold abroad, but these were not completed at the close of business yesterday.

The probability of further gold imports was increased by the fact that demand sterling declined yesterday to 4.8530, a net fall for the day of about 10 points. The gold obtained in Berlin last week was part of a consignment which reached that market from St. Petersburg and it is possible that New York may get further amounts of the precious metal from the same source.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call on Stock Exchange collateral loaned at 3½@4¾ per cent., with the last loan at 3½ per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 4 per cent.

Mercantile paper rates, 5@5¼ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsed bills receivable, 5@5½ per cent. for choice four to six months' single names, and 6 per cent. for others.

Time money, 5¼ per cent. for sixty days to ninety days, and 5@5¼ per cent. for four to six months.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $155,573,110; balances, $5,724,867. The Sub-Treasury credit balance was $822,930.

Sterling exchange was weak. Nominal rates were $4.83 for sixty days and $4.86½ for demand. Actual business was done at $4.8240 for sixty days, $4.8530 for demand, and $4.8580 for cables. Commercial bills were quoted at $4.81¾@$4.82¼.

Continental exchanges were quoted: Francs, 5.20½ and 5.17⅛; reichsmarks, 94 3-16@94¼ and 94 13-16; guilders, 39 13-16 and 40.

Exchange on New York at domestic centres: Boston—15@12½c discount. Chicago—Par. New Orleans—Commercial, 25c discount; bank, $1 premium. Savannah—Buying, 50c discount; selling, 75c premium. San Francisco—Sight, 2½c; telegraphic, 5c. Cincinnati—25c discount. St. Louis—20@30c premium. Charleston—Buying, par; selling, 1-10 premium.

THE COTTON MARKET.

After a Lively Opening It Subsides to Below Saturday's Close.

After a strong and lively opening in the face of disappointing Liverpool cables, large receipts, and warmer weather over the South, the New York cotton market yesterday gradually subsided, ending 5 to 6 points under Saturday's close. On the call May was bid up from 11.11 to 11.16. July traded at 11.17. Liverpool was about one point up at the opening here, whereas that market was due to come about 4 higher to meet the advance here Saturday of 12 points. The early strength in this market was attributed entirely to bull support, that being withdrawn, prices gradually eased off, closing at the lowest point of the day—May and July at 11.10.

Liverpool was a heavy seller in this market, and New Orleans was credited with considerable selling here. During the first hour May was advanced to 11.22 and July to 11.20. Those not in sympathy with the movement assert that the interests in control are merely trying to arouse the public to come into the market so they can unload. It is generally believed that the short interest has been pretty well eliminated by the recent rise, which has been about three-quarters of a cent within a week. Without this to fall back on and failing to stimulate outside speculation, the conservative element say, it is only a question of how long the supporters of the market can hold on.

Those identified with the movement, however, express great confidence in the situation.

Liverpool spot sales were 12,000 bales yesterday, of which 11,000 were American cotton. It is argued that the increased receipts only serve to show the demand and that exporters South are scouring the country for what remnants of the crop they can pick up, and these are being rushed to the ports. Advices from Alabama state that plantation receipts were insignificant during March, denoting exhaustion. The same dispatch said that stocks in interior uncounted towns were greatly diminished.

A representative of New England cotton interests is authority for the statement that the mills are not overburdened with supplies. They require, to buy, he says, about 30 per cent. of this year's consumption.

The estimated sales of futures dwindled to about 125,000 bales, against about 150,000 bales for the Saturday two-hour session. Spot cotton in New York declined 5 points, to 11.70 for middling and 11.95 for Gulf, against 8.05 and 8.30 last year. The port receipts were 15,170 bales, against 14,313 bales last week and 24.166 bales last year. Exports were 11,764 bales. Receipts at the thirteen principal interior towns were 10,895 bales, against 6,042 bales last week, and 16,155 bales last year. Shipments 13,675 bales, against 7,827 bales last week and 16,478 bales last year. Estimated receipts for to-day are: Houston, 9,000 to 10,000 bales, against 7,750 bales last week and 9,032 bales last year; Galveston, 12,000 bales to 13,000 bales, against 10,004 bales last week and 13,609 bales last year; New Orleans, 10,500 bales to 11,500 bales, against 7,474 bales last week and 13,114 bales last year.

Cotton Opinions.

HUBBARD BROTHERS—It is thought that the May position will be firmly held for some time longer. For new factors the traders will look to the new crop conditions, as a large crop will be required next season.

ATWOOD VIOLETT—Now that the public is beginning to believe in a bull market, in addition to bullish conditions, the disposition to buy is increasing, and around 11 cents it is probable the buying power will develop more strength.

Theodore Price received the following telegraphic advices yesterday from the South:

BOWERSVILLE, Ga.—Extremely cold ground; wet; mail agents ransacking country for cotton.

COOPER, Texas—Farm preparations two weeks later than normal; farmers much discouraged.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Spot buyers offering full quotations December deliveries; planters not inclined to sell.

BONHAM, Texas—Thirty days late; floods continue; condition worst yet; cotton exhausted.

TIMPSON, Texas—Conditions not near so favorable as expected; fifteen days late.

LOUISBURG, N. C.—Raining, sleeting, snowing since Saturday morning; farmers behind; labor scarce.

COLEMAN, Texas—Unfavorable for early planting; dry, late Spring; no increase.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Crop preparations now thirty days late; freeze and heavy rains last week destroyed all previous work.

RIDGE SPRINGS, S. C.—This weather will greatly retard crop preparations; there will be no increased acreage through this section on account of scarcity of labor.

A letter from Austin, Texas, says spot cotton is very scarce all through this country, especially strict low middling and above. You can find plenty of low middling and below, but the better grades are hard to find. There is a great deal of talk about increase in acreage, but we do not believe the increase will amount to anything through the old part of the State, but the western part and the border counties are likely to increase. Some damage has been caused by the freeze to the cotton planted but not up.

It is plain that Mr. Price is still a good bull.

Following are the opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

	Open.	High. Low.	Close.	Sat. Close.
May	11.10	11.22@11.10	11.10	11.15
July	11.17	11.20@11.10	11.10	11.16
August	11.03	11.03@10.96	10.95	11.03

December	10.51	10.50@10.43	10.43	10.51

The market closed steady.

At New Orleans May closed at 11.18, against 11.23 Saturday, and July at 11.29, against 11.35 Saturday.

RAIL AND LUMBER MERGER.

Norfolk & Southern and Virginia-Carolina Interests Combine.

NORFOLK, Va., March 26.—The entire properties of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad, running from Norfolk through Eastern North Carolina, and the Virginia-Carolina Coast Railroad, which recently began the construction of a new railway line from Norfolk to Beaufort, N. C., and their lumber interests, are to be merged with an authorized capital of $25,000,000 in bonds and $25,000,000 in stock.

The railroad merger will give a total trackage of 600 miles and the lumber merger will make a total of eighteen mills with an output of 150,000,000 feet annually. There will be 600,000 acres of timber land owned in fee and a timber stumpage of 4,000,000,000.

Grading is now complete for a new line from Mackey's Ferry to Columbia, N. C. The road will be extended to Newbern, opening up vast timber lands.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The stockholders of the Greene Cold-Silver Company have ratified the proposed increase of capital stock from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000.

The retiring Directors of the Consolidated Traction Company of New Jersey and its subsidiary, the North Jersey Street Railway Company, were re-elected at the annual meeting in Newark yesterday.

The merger of the Monroe and Jefferson Banks, both on Canal Street east of the Bowery, has been opposed by the stockholders of each institution.

C. Regenhardt's Agency has received the 1906 edition of "C. Regenhardt's Guide for Merchants, Manufacturers, and Exporters." The little book gives in convenient form the leading banks, law firms, commission and forwarding agents, &c., of every town or city of any business importance on the globe, and includes information of shipping routes, consular and customs service. The agency has also received an English translation of "Henselin's Ready Reckoner."

A special meeting of the stockholders of the United Copper Company has been called for April 26 in Hoboken to authorize the sale for $3,500,000 and interest of $1,000,000 of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company's bonds and $2,500,000 of the Nipper Consolidated Copper Company's bonds in the treasury of the United Copper Company.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, March 24, averaged 7.23 cents per pound.—Adv.

Meetings and Elections.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Notice of Annual Election of Directors.

Notice is hereby given that the annual election of Directors of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for the year 1906 will be held at the home office of the Company, No. 1 Madison Av., New York City, at 12 o'clock noon, on the 10th day of April, 1906.

Notice is also given that the charter of the Company permits the Board of Directors to extend the right of voting at elections for members of the Board of Directors to any class or classes of its policy holders, under such regulations as the Board may prescribe, upon obtaining the approval of the Superintendent of Insurance thereto in writing, and that pursuant to this amendment the Board of Directors on April 22, 1902, passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, Section 1. That every policy holder in this Company whose policy shall have been in force for the full term of one year before, and shall be in force at the time of any annual meeting for the election of Directors, shall have the right of voting for members of the Board of Directors, provided that such policy holder or proxy shall, not more than twenty nor less than ten days before the day of such election, file with the Secretary of this Company a written notice of intention to so vote at such annual election, and if by proxy a copy thereof."

This resolution has been approved in writing by the Superintendent of Insurance, and all policy holders of the Company who come within the class designated in said resolution will therefore be entitled to vote at said election upon complying with the conditions of said resolution.

JAMES S. ROBERTS, Secretary.
Dated March 21, 1906.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.

New York, February 2, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that a general meeting of the stockholders of Southern Railway Company has been called by the Board of Directors, and will be held at the principal office of the company in the City of Richmond, Virginia, on WEDNESDAY, the eighteenth day of April, 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of considering an issue and sale of development and general mortgage bonds by Southern Railway Company, and the creation of a mortgage upon the property of the company to secure the same, all as proposed in the communication of Samuel Spencer, President, to the Voting Trustees, dated February 1, 1906, and of acting on such other business as may be lawfully brought before the meeting.

The transfer books of both preferred and common stock of this company will be closed on April 7, 1906, and opened again on April 19, 1906.

By order of the Board of Directors.
R. D. LANKFORD, Secretary.

ADD TO THEIR DIVIDEND.

Associated Merchants' Increase on Both First and Second Preferred.

Additional quarterly dividends of ¼ per cent. have been declared on the first preferred and second preferred stock of the Associated Merchants' Company, which is a holding company for the stock of the John Claflin Company, the Adams Dry Goods Company, and James McCreery & Co. The regular quarterly dividends of 1¼ per cent. on the first preferred, and of 1½ per cent. on the second preferred, were declared at the same time.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

In a professional market such as this, the kind of feeling which can be influenced by fluctuations is mercurial to an extreme degree. Yesterday happened to be a day of "better feeling." Wasserman and Jacob Field were upholding American securities, especially Reading, which enjoyed a maximum advance of 4⅝ per cent., and the trading element seemed disposed to seek its profits on the bull side. Impatient advocates of higher prices were heard to assert that the Spring boom for which most people are hoping had definitely started, which was merely their opinion. The trading was quite as professional as it has been. Commission houses had very little part in it. Some very prominent Stock Exchange firms did less than 3,000 shares of business. If there shall be the traditional Spring rise it will probably reach a fairly advanced stage before commission houses begin to trade on it freely. Many will wait to be sure that it is the real movement, then wait for a two-point reaction on which to get in and lose perhaps half the advance. Conservative observers hold that the present would be a premature time for starting a Spring rise, with a period of uncertain money just ahead. Besides, the leadership yesterday was not so very impressive, being largely professional. It is argued that when conditions are right the big interests will show their hands in the market. Traders, doubtless, will seek to anticipate their movements.

⁂

On transactions of only 800 shares, Tennessee Coal and Iron declined 3½ points yesterday in a strong market.

⁂

Reading has advance about 10 points since Wasserman's return from Europe.

⁂

The more aggressive traders were bullish yesterday on the technical aspects of the market, notably the absence of selling pressure and the limited supply of stocks. The ease with which prices were advanced by professional effort fully bore out the assertions recently made concerning the relative scarcity of floating stocks. The volume of trading was not large, the total of transactions approximating only three-quarters of a million shares, but the improvement in prices was fairly general. Fifty of the more active stocks showed advances running from small fractions to more than 4 per cent., the extreme being in Reading, with not a solitary decline. The market evidently has reached a point where prices cannot be put down and kept down with short selling alone, and in the absence of real selling it is easier for the professional contingent to bid prices up and get their profits on the bull side, than to put them down and cover short contracts at a profit. But this is no insurance against alternating days of weakness so long as the market is left to professional leadership.

⁂

It was understood before the opening that the attractions for the day would be Reading, Amalgamated Copper, and Union Pacific, and the bull crowd addressed itself intently to the advancement of those stocks. Reading was the leader of the market in point of activity, and because it afforded opportunities for professional trading not elsewhere available, interest largely converged upon its movements. The buying was not particularly impressive, but the facility with which the price was advanced seemed to denote a change in the market position of the stock. On the decline from above 160, liquidation by pools and large holders so increased the floating supply that the market for Reading became once more free and open, and on discovering this to be the case, many traders sold it persistently, regarding it as vulnerable because of the extremes to which the bull speculation had been carried. The stock appeared to find its point of ultimate resistance on the level of 125, beyond which price the bear crowd was apparently unable to make further headway. Doubtless the advance of the last few days has been engineered largely at the expense of the short interest, but it seems probable, besides, that some of the large holders who sold a lot of stock above 150 were willing below 130 to take some of it back.

⁂

The shorts in Consolidated Gas were made uneasy by an abrupt reversal of form in that stock yesterday.

⁂

It is very persistently rumored that the dividend rate on Atchison common will be increased at the next meeting, which will be held in the first week of April. The stock has been very strong of late. A little while ago it had a very rapid advance from around 90 to 95, accomplishing the whole of that movement within one Stock Exchange session, and most of it in the space of two hours, but it has held the greater part of the advance ever since, selling yesterday above 94. It has not the behavior, however, of a stock whose dividend is likely to be increased within a fortnight from 4 to the rate of 5 per cent. Such a matter could legitimately be made the basis of an aggressive bull campaign in the stock, and one should suppose that it would be selling around 110 or higher instead of under 95, if the dividend were going to be raised two weeks hence. It is understood that certain interests in the property are strong for an increase of the dividend, and that other more conservative interests are unalterably opposed to the idea. From the actions of the stock it would be inferred that the conservatives were likely to prevail. Atchison preferred has never sold as high as a trusted 5 per cent. stock should sell.

⁂

While Amalgamated Copper was advancing 2⅝ points and Anaconda 7¼ points yesterday, United Copper, the Heinze stock, declined. It closed at a loss of 2⅛ points. Hitherto those handling the market for United Copper have kept it in line with other "coppers." This is perhaps the first time that it has gone contrary to the leadership of Amalgamated. The rise in Amalgamated and Anaconda was accompanied by hints of a probable increase of the Anaconda dividend at the next meeting. Bullish activity was further stimulated by a sharp advance in the price of copper metal abroad. Reports from the other side suggested that the advance in the metal was an unfortunate incident for the shorts in that market. It seems to be pretty generally known that the old Broadway crowd is bullish on Amalgamated Copper. Its initiative was supposed to be responsible largely for the activity yesterday. Apparently this crowd has taken control of the market again, and is running it in the old way, without the let or hindrance of the Butte contingent. When the story is quite stale the true account of Mr. Heinze's exploit in Amalgamated and Anaconda will doubtless be forthcoming. A little of it is beginning to leak out. One version is that Heinze was led to believe that he had control of the market when he hadn't, and that he was compelled to cut his campaign short. He and his following doubtless made a good deal of money, but not nearly so much as they expected to make.

⁂

United States Steel stocks took a turn for the better in the late trading yesterday, notwithstanding some rather discouraging comment from the Pittsburg district on the state of business in the future tense. The common stock, which had been hanging around 40 all day, advanced in the last hour to 40⅝. The preferred stock made a corresponding advance. A distinct improvement in the market appearance of the Steel stocks would benefit speculative sentiment greatly. Trade correspondents at Pittsburg attribute the lull in demand to fear of a coal strike. It is difficult for a layman to understand why fear of a coal strike should lead consumers of finished steel to hold off their orders. One should suppose that they would be all the keener to get them in and let the Steel Corporation take the risk.

⁂

Although Union Pacific was a prominent feature of the market yesterday, showing considerable strength and animation, it did not move with such vigor as would indicate that those controlling its movements had turned it to the bull side for general effect. Its advance seemed more the result of professional operations. The leadership of Union Pacific on the bull side is invariably signified by heavier trading and more enthusiasm than characterized yesterday's trading. There appeared to be a good deal of stock over the market at 154. The highest quotation made was 153⅞, where the stock closed, showing an advance of 1¼ per cent.

⁂

The fear of money flurries incident to preparations for financing the quarterly disbursements on April 1 is a restraint upon bullish activity in conservative quarters. Most commission houses, however, especially those of the first class, are well provided with time money, besides which their loans have been steadily decreasing, this scaling down having continued right up to the close of last week's business. Bad money flurries are rare when everybody is forewarned, as is the case at present, and, moreover, the Street is looking for easier money in April.

ATCHISON'S GOOD MONTH.

February Earnings Much Greater Than for Same Month Last Year.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé published yesterday its statement of earnings for the month of February, showing heavy increases both in gross and in net. The gross earnings showed an increase of $1,818,250 over the corresponding month in 1905. Over two-thirds of this increase in gross was added to the month's net. The earnings for February compared with those for the previous year are as follows:

	1906.	1905.	Increase.
Gross earnings	$6,487,556	$4,669,306	$1,818,250
Oper. expenses	3,914,393	3,562,117	352,276
Net earnings	$2,573,163	$1,107,189	$1,465,974
Taxes and rentals	194,584	186,660	7,924
Total income	$2,378,579	$920,529	$1,458,050

This very favorable showing was due partly to the fact that February, 1905, was an exceptionally bad month for the Atchison. Yesterday's statement, however, is favorable, even when compared with other months last year. Compared with February, 1904, the statement issued yesterday shows an increase in net amounting to over $600,00.

The showing for the eight months ended with February, compared with last year's figures is as follows:

	1906.	1905.	Increase.
Gross earnings	$51,625,334	$44,692,134	$6,933,200
Oper. expenses	31,857,365	29,436,173	2,421,192
Net earn.	$19,767,969	$15,255,961	$4,512,008
Taxes and rent.	1,583,505	1,474,577	108,928
Total inc.	$18,184,464	$13,781,384	$4,403,080

Last year the Atchison suffered very heavily from floods, which for the fiscal year ended June 30 last entailed on the road's expenses of about $2,000,000 in addition to the loss in traffic, which reduced the road's gross income. Conditions have been much more favorable this year.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 26.—While further selling in Diamond Match of an apparent investment character depressed prices on the local Exchange to-day, from 131 to 126, a new low record since 1903, there were suggestions of support ere long. General Manager W. M. Graves was in the city yesterday, especially to formulate measures to check the flood of bearish gossip on the stock. He returned to New York after stating that a statement will be issued shortly by the management of the company.

It is assumed that the statement will have something to say on the proposed new issue of $1,000,000 of stock. It is known that the Directors of the company are not wholly of one mind concerning the wisdom of President Barber's policy in paying 10 per cent. dividends when the company has earned only a little over 11 per cent. on the stock. Still the Directors feel that the increase in the value of the California lands purchased some years ago warrants the recent high selling price of the stock. In fact, one of the Directors personally refused to sell any of his stock at 147 the day before the last annual meeting.

Other business on the Exchange was moderate, but was done at easy prices. Later trading brought a rally in Union Traction preferred to 20⅜, and the common sold at 6½. Money, 5½@6 per cent. New York exchange at par.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Pig Iron Demand Stronger—Raw Steel Supply Running Short.

According to trade reports there has been a noticeable improvement in the demand for iron in the Pittsburg district. A fair tonnage of sales is recorded both for immediate delivery and for the second quarter. Advices to Rogers, Brown & Company say: "We expect prices to be firmer, as the advance in ores, coke, and labor will increase the cost of the furnace, and in view of the large consumption we look for a large demand."

Raw steel is becoming embarassingly short. A representative of the Steel Corporation is reported as saying that their mills are sold for a long time ahead, and are out of the market.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal made a jump of £1 in the London market yesterday, closing at £83 5s. for spot, which, however, was only 15s. over the last quotations in Friday's market. Futures lost 5s. from Friday's closing, standing at £79 5s. when the market closed.

The closing quotations of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Friday:

VAN NORDEN TRUST ADMITTED

Company Now a Non-Member of the Clearing House.

The Van Norden Trust Company was admitted yesterday to the privileges of the New York Clearing House as a non-member. The checks of the trust company on and after April 2 will be cleared through the Fourth National Bank. Before making the application to the Clearing House, the Van Norden Trust Company was obliged to increase its cash reserve from 7½ to 10 per cent., the latter amount being required by the Clearing House of all trust companies which profit by the privileges of the association. The only other trust companies in Manhattan which now clear through the Clearing House are the Knickerbocker Trust and the Manhattan Trust.

A bank or trust company is admitted to the Clearing House only after examinations of its condition have been made by another bank which is a member of the Clearing House, and by the association's Committee on Admissions. Trust companies which profit by the privileges of the Clearing House in addition to maintaining a 10 per cent. cash reserve must each week submit to the association a statement similar to that regularly made by the banks which are full members of the association. This statement shows the institution's capital, surplus, and undivided profits and the average amount of its deposits, loans, and investments, and the average amount of its cash as well as of its deposits with other New York City banks and trust companies.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 26.—Close observers of the local money market believe they see indications of easier conditions. This applies to time money, for call rates are not expected to weaken until well over April 1.

Call loans, 5½@6 per cent. Time loans, collateral, 4¾@5½ per cent. Time loans, mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent. Clearing House loans, 5 per cent. New York funds, 12½c. discount. Clearings, $15,024,018. Balances, $1,200,269. Sub-Treasury debit, $51,563.

*Increase.

Local copper shares had a visible boom to-day. Early prices were quiet and firm, but a sudden demand sprang up that started the list on an upward tendency which continued until the closing. Utah was the feature at the opening, selling as high as 64¾. This was followed by the other Salt Lake stocks, Bingham, and Boston Consolidated, each of which gained a couple of points. The Lake Michigan Coppers also came in for a share of the business and made good gains. North Butte and United Copper were the features of the late trading and helped the market to a strong and active closing.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—Trading to-day was inactive and lower. Few of the staple issues were traded in. All branches of the usually active and favorite securities were dull. Maryland Trust preferred suffered the largest loss, going off 8 points.

United Railways 4s advanced ⅛. Consolidated Cotton Duck common lost fractionally. Late weakness carried Northern Central ½ lower, to 103. West Virginia Central 6s ran off ¼. Cotton Duck 5s dropped ½, and Seaboard new seconds gained ½.

The close was firm but dull. Sales of bonds, $29,500; shares of stock, 1,027.

DELAWARE INCORPORATIONS.

DOVER, Del., March 24.—The Ely Central Copper Company of Philadelphia, capital $12,000,000, was incorporated here to-day. The object of the company is to acquire mines of copper, gold, silver, and other metals and ore, and to mine, mill, and refine the same for market. John W. Woodside and Frank M. Wirgman of Philadelphia, and B. A. Hazel of Smyrna are the incorporators.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—Prices were strong throughout under the leadership of the Anthracite issues. Reading advanced, while Lehigh Valley jumped from 75 to 77⅞. The Street has become indifferent to the strike situation, believing that after all it might be better for the companies if the miners did strike. It is now admitted that unless the men do go out it will be absolutely necessary for the mines to curtail production until well into the Fall. There was further persistent buying of Philadelphia Company receipts, and United Gas Improvement developed considerable strength, one argument being that a coal strike will greatly benefit the company, as more gas will be used. Philadelphia Rapid Transit was less active, but held firm.

Total sales, 24,992 shares.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Light Market on the Curb, with Firmer Prices.

Coppers, with Few Exceptions, Stronger—Heavy Selling of Nevada-Utah —Manhattan Transit Falls Off.

While trading was slack on the curb yesterday there was a general upward movement in prices. Mining shares were firmer than in any recent market, and for the most part fractional gains were recorded at the close of the day's trading. Nevada-Utah developed activity at the opening of the session, and heavy selling caused a slight recession in price after a market of 17,000 shares. The close was at 4⅜, ⅜ of a point below the opening. United Copper found a small market and fluctuated widely on the light selling. The close was 68, 2 points above the opening, though some sales were made at 65. The industrial list was comparatively neglected. Manhattan Transit, which had a day of 22,000 last week, sold only 5,500 yesterday, closing at 4⅜.

NEW ERIE ELECTRICIAN.

D. H. Wilson Is to Take Charge of the Road's New Equipment.

The Erie Railroad, in recognition of the increasing importance of the electrification work which is beng pushed on sections of the system in New York State, has created the office of Electrical Engineer, and has appointed to the office David H. Wilson, who comes to the road from the American Locomotive Company.

Mr. Wilson will take hold immediately. He will devote himself at first to the work of equipping the Erie's big power house at Hornellsville. He has been trained in the shops as well as in the schools. After serving a four years' apprenticeship in the Rogers Locomotive Works at Paterson, N. J., he studied electrical engineering at the Bliss School in Washington, and then was graduated from Purdue University.

Before his connection with the American Locomotive Company Mr. Wilson was on the staff of J. G. White & Co.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Site Bought for New Building on Twentieth Street—Wall Street Parcel Transferred—Goelet Estate Sells Large Plot.

Turner & Co. have sold 40 West Twentieth Street, a four-story dwelling, 25 by 92, to M. A. C. Levy. Mr. Levy has resold the house to a builder who recently bought adjoining property, and who will erect a ten-story loft building on the entire plot, 125 by 92.

Thatcher M. Adams has sold 15 West Seventeenth Street, a four-story dwelling on lot 28 by 92.

Jackson & Stern have bought, through Kehoe & White, 8 West Forty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling 17 by 100.5

Iselin Properties Transferred.

Various properties owned by the estate of Adrian Iselin, including 34 Wall Street and the Iselin residence on Twenty-sixth Street, near Madison Avenue, were transferred yesterday by Adrian Iselin and others, as executors, to William Alcock, and were immediately reconveyed by him to the Neptune Realty Company. The consideration in the deeds covering the Wall Street parcel, 26.8 by irregular, was $485,000.

Goelet Estate Sells Uptown Plot.

The Goelet estate has sold its plot of thirteen lots on the west side of Edgecombe Avenue, between 152d and 155th Streets, overlooking Colonial Park. The estate also owns several other parcels in the same vicinity, near the entrance to the Speedway.

West Side Houses Change Hands.

Alfred E. Toussaint has sold for Richard S. Treacy 157 West Seventy-sixth Street, a four-story dwelling on lot 18 by 102.2.

Frederick Zittel has sold 222 West End Avenue, a three-story dwelling on lot 16 by 70, for J. M. Salve to a client for occupancy.

Amsterdam Avenue Flats in Trade.

Samuel G. Hess has sold 704 and 706 Amsterdam Avenue, a new five-story flat with stores on plot 40 by 100, to Thomas S. Doyle, who gives in part payment 46 West Ninety-eighth Street, a lot 25 by 100.11.

Hillenbrand & Massoit have sold for Caroline Hoffart 120 West Ninety-fourth Street, a five-story double flat on lot 27.4 by 112.8, to Willis W. Taylor.

John D. Rockefeller Sells.

H. W. Nichols has sold for John D. Rockefeller to James H. Jones the plot, 50 by 396, at the northeast corner of Avenue A and Sixty-seventh Street. This is part of the plot acquired for the Rockefeller Institute, which extends from Sixty-fourth Street to the south side of Sixty-seventh Street.

Deal for West 143d Street Houses.

Charles Laudim has sold for Goldberg & Smith to L. Meyer & Brothers the two six-story apartment houses 102 to 108 West 143d Street, each 41.8 by 100.

Thomas & Son have sold for Hervey Thompson to William P. Schimpf the five-story double flat 307 West 144th Street, on lot 25 by 100.

IT IS A FACT.
We make a specialty of private houses, both selling and renting. Spring list now ready; we have a few houses left at $13,000; several at $15,000; a bargain at $16,000, and some elegant houses at $17,000 to $25,000. Why pay $30,000 in the lower part of city when you can buy one just as good in nice location for $18,000?

WHERE TO SPEND THE SUMMER
Long Island
"Where Cooling Breezes Blow."

The ideal territory for a Summer Home. 250 miles of coast line on ocean, Sound and bays. Trending east and west, it is cooled during the Summer by the south winds direct from the ocean.

Unexcelled surf and still water bathing, boating, driving, etc. Long Island, with its unbounded natural advantages, is without equal as a location for a Summer or Permanent Home—a land of real home life; 3964 dwellings erected on Long Island during calendar year 1905.

A new booklet, "Long Island Summer Resorts" for 1906, containing a list of hotels and boarding houses; also a list containing real estate agents who have cottages to rent, free on application at L. I. R.R. ticket offices—120 Broadway, 95 and 263 Fifth Ave., 613 Sixth Ave., 574 Columbus Ave. and 51 West 125th St., N. Y. FLORAL PARK.
20 Minutes From Broadway,
On completion of the Penn. R. R. Subway.
Lot $300. $10 Down & $5 Monthly
With improvements, running water, etc.; no interest or taxes for one year. Title guaranteed. This is without a doubt the most beautiful and attractive piece of property and investment that was ever placed on the market before. Everybody knows John L. Childs, the seed and flower raiser; this property adjoins his handsome estate; it is also right at the depot and trolley. Floral Park has the best railroad service on Long Island, owing to four branch roads running through it. These lots are as good as 100 per cent. investment and could not be bought for less than that in a year from now, and a beautiful home site for any one wishing to build. All the new Penn. R. R. tunnels and improvements go straight to this property. For free tickets, booklets, etc., apply to

MARCH 1906

DR. MARY J. M'CLEERY PUTS OUT A BURGLAR

Timbuctoo, the Cat, Was Luckily Out a Bit Late,

OR THERE'D HAVE BEEN THEFT

Men Folks Around the 34th Street House Didn't Get Heart Disease Going to the Rescue.

Having faithfully read her Sunday paper through, of course it was 3 o'clock Monday morning when Dr. Mary J. McCleery of 148 West Thirty-fourth Street let her thoughts run toward going to bed. Moreover, Timbuctoo, a swashbuckling young tomcat, who usually comes in from his wanderings in the cat Tenderloin not later than 3 A. M., had not yet scratched at Dr. McCleery's door.

Dr. McCleery, however, prepared for bed, thinking that by the time she was ready to retire Timbuctoo would signal at her door to reach his resting place on a sofa in the doctor's bedroom. The doctor occupies the ground floor of the boarding house at No. 148, using the front rooms as office and operating room.

It was about 3 o'clock when Dr. McCleery heard a "pad, pad, pad" in the hall outside her door. At last Timbuctoo was coming, the scamp. She got ready to compliment him on his promptitude. She swung open her door.

Tumbuctoo wasn't there. She asked the short, chunky man, "Who are you?" "It's me," was the logical answer. With that he flashed in her face a bull's-eye lantern, and it seemed to her that the dazzling eye was twelve inches across. Before the burglar could do anything more she grabbed his throat with both hands.

He tried to shake off the doctor. She weighs nearly 200 pounds, and her arms are strong. She held to him. Then he began to beat her in the face with brass knuckles, or something like that. She screamed, but she held to his throat.

The only one who heard her cries was F. F. Millorowski, who lives on one of the upper floors. He ran up several flights of stairs and told the landlady.

The burglar fought his way back toward the two front doors, which he had opened with false keys. He dragged Dr. McCleery with him. On the stoop he succeeded in shaking her loose. Two men were passing the house. She stood there in her nightgown, with the cold stone freezing her bare feet, screaming at the men to catch the burglar, who was racing westward toward Seventh Avenue. The men didn't even look at her.

Then the doctor went back into the hall and fell on the floor. The landlady and several of the women roomers found her lying there, with blood-spattered clothing. They thought she had been murdered. Then Timbuctoo came strolling in thirty minutes late.

Most of the roomers were glad that Timby, as he is familiarly known, had stayed out a little later than usual. They were glad that six months ago Dr. McCleery picked him up starving in an adjoining yard and nourished him. They are glad, also, that Dr. McCleery reads her Sunday paper faithfully, and they are glad that she weighs nearly 200 pounds.

"For, you see," explained one of them yesterday, "that burglar was evidently fully supplied with all kinds of keys. Else, how did—"

"Don't pay any attention to him," put in the landlady. "He thinks he's a Sherlock Holmes. I've heard him before at the breakfast table. He's awful."

MAGISTRATES IN A WRANGLE.

Whitman Calls a Statement by Crane False—Bingham There.

Police Commissioner Bingham attended the meeting of the Board of City Magistrates held in the West Side Court yesterday afternoon, and witnessed a wrangle between Magistrates Crane, Whitman, and Wahle over the schedules that are to go into effect on June 15. Magistrate Crane intimated that he and other Republican Magistrates had been assigned to prevent them sitting on election day. Commissioner Bingham told the Magistrates that he needs 2,000 more men.

"Don't you think the two-platoon system—?" began Magistrate Crane.

"No," interrupted Commissioner Bingham, "the two-platoon system has nothing to do with it."

The Magistrates soon afterward took up the schedule of assignment to courts.

"Judges Whitman and Wahle have eliminated me from the schedule—have prevented me from sitting election day," charged Magistrate Crane.

"I want to say," retorted Magistrate Whitman, "that what Magistrate Crane says is an unqualified falsehood. I was not aware that Magistrate Crane was not to sit election day."

"I demand order," shouted Magistrate Wahle, banging his gavel on the table. "Magistrate Whitman is absolutely correct in this matter." That ended the dispute.

NEW YORK NOT HALF BAD.

Dr. Parkhurst and the Rev. Mr. Peters Taken to Task at the Minerva Club.

New York and its people are not half as bad as they are painted. Why, the doings of the people in olden times make the weaknesses of the "smart set" of to-day look as mild as the doings of a well-ordered Sunday school convention.

All this and more Mrs. Frank Cronise told the Minerva Club yesterday afternoon at its meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria. She also said that the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst and the Rev. Madison C. Peters are the Jeremiahs of our time, and there are Jeremiahs in every age. At this the audience burst into applause, for the club has had troubles of its own and has no use for Jeremiahs of any kind.

"You see a few women drink and gamble and therefore we forget the millions who do neither, and the hundreds of millions of men who do both," remarked Mrs. Cronise, addressing figuratively the Rev. Mr. Peters, whom she called "the apostle at large to the women of Gotham, who has hysteria every time he speaks of us."

"I contend," she went on, "that we are quite as good wives and mothers as the women of past generations. We differ in degree and not in kind. The standard of living has changed and we have changed to meet it. We have grown wise enough to see that it is folly to increase the family expenses if we cannot increase the family income. If we do that we women are the chief sufferers.

"This consideration did not worry our forefathers very much, so they increased and multiplied and replenished the earth until the earth is pretty well replenished, and we need not bother about that. If every one took our busy President's advice we should have a population like China, and our country would be as uncomfortable to live in as China is. In the changed conditions of life women have other things to do than making sweet pickles, which they now buy at the corner grocery. I am sure that the 'other things,' if they are not any more useful, are at least a change. I venture to assert that the clubs of our country and city contain as fine housekeepers as ever managed a household, and whose cooking would make the best professional chefs turn green with envy.

"Let not all these things trouble you, dear brother," concluded the speaker, returning to Mr. Peters, "you 'see the froth and forget the brew.' This old world to-day is full of good women, and every true woman is a mother in heart if not in fact."

SHOOTS GIRL, KILLS HIMSELF.

Capri Had Long Annoyed Miss Franchini, Daughter of His Employer.

Louise Franchini, daughter of Giuseppe Franchini, proprietor of the Café Rivoli, at 103 West Thirty-eighth Street, is in the New York Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound in the right breast, inflicted by Victor Capri, a waiter, who sought her and then killed himself after she refused to marry him.

Miss Franchini is 25 years old. She was cashier of her father's restaurant, where, some months ago, Capri, a good-looking young Italian, was employed as a waiter. He became infatuated with the girl and annoyed her with his persistent attentions. She paid little attention to him at first, but his manner became so objectionable that she was of late frequently compelled to call him to account. Finally she told her father of his actions. Franchini immediately discharged the man.

Yesterday morning, as soon as the Café Rivoli opened, Capri presented himself and asked Miss Franchini to marry him and she again refused. Capri then became abusive and finally said such insulting things that the girl left the cashier's desk and went to the door of the dining room, behind which was a bell communicating with her parents' room upstairs. No sooner had she pressed the button and turned to face Capri than he drew a revolver from his pocket and said:

"Well, as I can't live without you, I suppose I'd better finish it."

He fired a shot, which took effect in Miss Franchini's right breast. She was not seriously injured and turned to run from the dining room. As she ran he fired two more shots, both of which missed and lodged in the wall. When she reeled against a table, he, thinking he had killed her, placed the muzzle of the revolver against his head and fired one shot, killing himself instantly. The body was removed to the Morgue and Miss Franchini was taken to the New York Hospital. It was said last night that she would recover.

WANTS TO KNOW THE RATES.

McGowan Asks Connecting Road to Fix Freight Charges.

The Connecting Railroad franchise will be taken up to-morrow by the conferrees named by the Board of Estimate. President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen is the Chairman of this Conference Committee, and at the meeting he will invite the conferrees of the Rapid Transit Commission to join in the deliberations.

By thus taking the initiative, at the suggestion of Mayor McClellan, President McGowan believes that he will naturally become the Chairman of the conference and thus have added opportunity to obtain an agreement on the terms for which Mayor McClellan is insisting in this franchise grant.

President McGowan started the proceedings yesterday when he addressed a letter to Vice President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania system, who is also the President of the Connecting Railroad, asking him for information concerning the company's position. This letter follows:

"I have been informed that the representatives of this company have stated that it would be impossible for the company to accept a certain clause proposed to cover discrimination in freight rates, and in order that the committee of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may be fully advised upon this subject, I would request that you submit a statement, wherein you will show the precise reasons as to why you will be unable to accept such a clause, first, covering its relation to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, where I am informed that your counsel has stated that such a clause would be in direct violation of the law; second, in what way such a clause would interfere with your statutory rights or those of your allied roads; third, how such a clause would legally interfere with traffic agreements made by your company.

DEUEL'S ANSWER FILED.

Grounds Upon Which Lauterbach Seeks to Prevent His Removal.

Edward Lauterbach, counsel for Justice Joseph M. Deuel, yesterday filed with the Clerk of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court his answer in the matter of the application for the removal of Joseph M. Deuel from the office of Justice of the Court of Special Sessions of the City of New York, for the First Division. The answer is in the nature of a demurrer, and starts out with the statement that the respondent, by his attorneys, Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, respectfully submits that he should not be required to answer the petition. A list of reasons why no answer should be required is then given. A separate memorandum for the respondent was also filed.

Among the reasons given why no answer should be required is that the petitioners have made no charge that the respondent has not devoted his whole time and capacity to the duties of his office so far as the public interests demanded, or that his discharge of official duties has not been thorough and well performed, or that there has been any malfeasance, neglect, or indifference on his part. Another point is that the court is without jurisdiction in the case because so much of the charter of Greater New York as provides that a Justice of the Court of Special Sessions shall not "carry on any business" is claimed to be unconstitutional and void.

The answer further states that the specifications and charges are informal and improper, not sufficiently definite and certain, and that they contain matter that is impertinent and irrelevant to the issue.

"The memorandum submitted relates to the constitutionality of the provisions of the charter referred to. It is claimed that it is unconstitutional unless qualified by the requirement that each Justice shall devote his whole time and capacity to the duties of his office 'so far as the public interests demand.'"

WHERE THE HOUSESMITHS GOT THEIR DYNAMITE

Moran Says He and a Companion Stole It in New Jersey.

UNION MAN PLEADS GUILTY

Moran May Get Five Years for His Part in Outrages Against Builders —Unions Fooled by "Agents."

Charles Moran, the member of the Housesmiths' Union who confessed on Saturday to Assistant District Attorney Train his share in the attempt made on Feb. 25 to blow up the Bliss Building, at Twenty-third Street and Second Avenue, pleaded guilty yesterday, before Judge Foster, in General Sessions, to the charge of handling dynamite without a permit. Though an ex-convict and indicted for a second offense, he was permitted to plead guilty to a first offense because of his confession.

Moran may be sentenced to five years in State prison. He was remanded to the Tombs after his plea. Later in the day he was taken to Mr. Train's office, where he told about several other "tricks" which he undertook on his own responsibility, for the purpose of working damage to firms against which the union had declared strikes. He gave Mr. Train the names of men within the union who have been particularly active in this kind of work. One of the most important parts of Moran's confession concerned the dynamite used in various more or less successful attempts to damage buildings under erection by Post & McCord, the firm against which the union has declared a strike.

It has long been a mystery to the police where the dynamite came from, as purchases of explosives are easily traceable. Moran said yesterday that early in February he and another member of the Jersey City branch of the union, known as Local 45, stole a box of 100 one-pound sticks of dynamite from a shanty on the Jersey Meadows used for the storing of explosives on a large scale. They carried the heavy box between them for hours, until they reached an open field not far from Fort Lee, where they dug a deep hole in the ground and buried the box, containing sixty pounds of dynamite. The other forty pounds were brought to this city. Moran described as well as he could the spot where the explosive was hidden. Detectives were sent out yesterday to hunt for it. The snow on the ground made the search particularly difficult, and at nightfall they had not yet found the dynamite. Their quest will be resumed to-day.

Moran said he was guilty of the ineffective attempt made about two months ago to fire the Fagan Iron Works in Jersey City. The works were completely burned down last year, with a loss of $400,000, and it is now thought that the union was responsible for that fire. Moran's attempt was made against the new buildings built after the first fire. He used kerosene to accomplish his design. The attempt was discovered early and small damage was done. For that "trick" Moran got $80 from the union, according to his confession to Mr. Train yesterday. Post & McCord had nothing to do with the building of the new works, and the attempt to wreck the plant, Moran said, was made because the owners of the Fagan Iron Works were very active in the Employers' Protective Association.

Mr. Train learned also some very interesting details about the ways in which the unions are deceived and fleeced by their own tools. This came out in connection with Moran's admission that he was one of four men who destroyed the iron fence around the Belmont race track while the track was in construction about a year ago. Moran said that the job was paid for by Local 35 of Brooklyn of the Housesmiths' Union, and was engineered by a prominent member of that union who promised $200 to the four men selected for the purpose.

When the man who hired them put in the bill for the job the union objected because they thought it too much for the destruction of a fence. After another conference with his tools, the man in charge of the plot went back and told the members of the union that they had misunderstood him. The job, he said, according to Moran, was done by eight men instead of four, and they had to use an automobile to go to Jamaica. The bill for $230 in all was then allowed, but receipts were demanded.

Moran said yesterday that four men were employed to make out four extra receipts, after which they got $5 each. The four men who did the job got $45 each and the $30 supposed to pay for the automobile went into the pocket of the man who engineered the scheme. Mr. Train said yesterday he had reason to believe that those eight receipts were still in the possession of the union and would make very intersting evidence if they could be reached.

Thomas Weir, who was arrested together with Moran and John Guthrie, the informer, and who was indicted with the former, insisted yesterday on standing trial. Both Moran and Guthrie will be used as witnesses against him. The trial will take place next week, unless Weir changes his mind and makes a confession also.

Lawyer Daniel F. Cohalan, who has been acting as counsel for Weir and Moran, withdrew from the defense when he learned of Moran's confession. He notified Judge Foster in General Sessions yesterday of his withdrawal, and said that he knew nothing of Moran's statement to the District Attorney until it had been made.

CITY GRABS THE ENGINEERS.

Bermel Wants an Even Start with the Water Supply Board.

Borough President Bermel of Queens informed the members of the Aldermanic Finance Committee, at a hearing yesterday, that he found it next to impossible to get engineers to do the work of the topographical bureau in his borough, because of the salaries offered to engineers by the new Board of Water Supply. Mr. Bermel requested an appropriation of $280,000 for his bureau so that he could increase salaries and carry on the necessary work.

"The Board of Water Supply is offering $1,650 to men I can pay only $1,350, and the result is that the board is getting all the men," he said. "I sought fifteen men on an eligible list and could only get one. Evidently he did not know he could get more money with the other board. With the growth there has been in Queens we are ten years behind the times in laying out new streets and must get down to work at once."

Commissioner Woodbury of the Department of Street Cleaning asked the committee for $10,000 for an auxiliary engine for the incinerator and electric light plant under the Williamsburg Bridge. He said the city had invested $83,000 in the plant and that it was lighting the bridge and furnishing power to the workshop adjoining. The lighting of the bridge, he said, would cost the city $30,000 a year if a contract was made with a lighting company.

No Fraud Charge Against Hickey.

When THE TIMES announced on Feb. 28 that Commissioner Bingham had dismissed a complaint against Policeman John J. Hickey, growing out of his connection with the "Police Athletic Association," it was inadvertently stated that fraud had been charged against the policeman in that he had profited personally from selling tickets and programme advertising. The charge of which Hickey was acquitted was one of conduct unbecoming an officer in using the names of certain persons without authority on the programme of the Police Athletic Association, and of having induced firms and corporations to pay for advertisements in the programme.

SAY THEY WERE SERVED WITH "FAKE" DIVORCES

Lawyer H. W. Leonard Charged with Fraud by the Coppingers.

LIVED TOGETHER SIX YEARS

Responsibility for Having Given False Decrees to the Couple Laid by the "Judge" on His Son.

Henry W. Leonard of 231 Broadway, the lawyer who, with his son, is charged by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Coppinger with having given them "fake" decrees of divorce, was brought to the Supreme Court on subpoena yesterday to testify in a suit instituted before Justice Davis. Leonard shifted the responsibility on his son, who is now in the West. After each side had told its story, Justice Davis turned to Leonard and said:

"It is evident, Mr. Leonard, that fraudulent decrees of divorce were given to this man and woman, and the fraud seems to have had its origin in your office. It is to your interest to have the matter cleared up."

The woman, who has been living as Mrs. Coppinger for the last six years, was Mrs. Alice M. Christmas before her second marriage. Her husband was in England when Mr. Coppinger, who had left a wife in Australia, met her in West End, N. J., early in 1900. They wanted to be free in order to marry. With that purpose in view, according to their story, they went to the law firm of Leonard & Leonard and stated their case. Leonard, the witness of yesterday, was referred to as "Judge" Leonard, but nobody around the court could remember that he had served on the bench.

It was not long, the couple say, before each was served with what purported to be a decree of divorce, and Mrs. Coppinger, or Christmas, paid $250 to the younger Leonard. Only a few months ago the couple, who now had a three-year-old child, discovered that they had never been really divorced, and therefore were not legally man and wife. What they want to do now is to have their marriage annulled and their child legitimatized by process of law.

Mr. Leonard admitted on the stand yesterday that Mrs. Coppinger had come to his office a little over a month ago and that he had returned to her then, in bills, the $250 which she had given his son years before.

"I would not permit any such thing to happen in the name of my firm," he said. "I gave back the money, and I intend to make my son return it to me."

"Where is your son now?" asked Justice Davis.

"He is in the West. I expect him back in a week or ten days."

So the case was postponed until Tuesday, April 3, when Justice Davis wants to see the younger Leonard in court.

C. M. Parson, present counsel for the Coppingers, started the examination of Mr. Leonard yesterday, but the Justice broke in on him and called the woman to the stand. She told a brief, straightforward story of how she had been fooled, and put the responsibility upon Henry W. Leonard. She said that she had several interviews with him, and that he had said "Nonsense" when she went to him and asserted that the divorce decrees were fraudulent.

"If he did not know they were fraudulent when I got them," she asked the Justice, "why did he give me back my $250 so promptly when I showed the receipt signed by his son?"

It came out in the course of the examination that young Leonard is not a lawyer at all. The firm name, "Leonard & Leonard," the father explained, "was taken when he was in partnership with another Leonard, who left the firm in 1899. The son, though, according to Mrs. Coppinger, posed as a lawyer all the time, and gave her to understand that he was one.

A letter signed with Henry W. Leonard's name was produced, and he was asked if he had written it. He said he had not.

"Have you any idea who did write it?" asked Justice Davis.

The witness said that he thought a former employe in his office, one Schooley, might have signed it.

"Is he the same one that served a term in prison for grand larceny?" Justice Davis asked.

Leonard said it was the same man.

CRANE CHAMPIONS JANITORS.

Says Women Haven't Mind Enough to Understand the Need of Rules.

"You are a sample of the average woman, who is unable to comprehend the meaning and the need for rules and laws. You desire to be governed only by your own sweet will, and you haven't the intellect to understand the necessity for rules and laws, and that they should be obeyed. Janitors have rights as well as you, and the rules they make, and for the carrying out of which they are responsible, should be obeyed. People abuse janitors from morning till night, but they have rights as well as you."

This was only a part of the reprimand which Magistrate Crane, in Harlem Police Court, addressed yesterday to Mrs. Madeline Langlotz of 156 East Ninety-second Street, who on Sunday assaulted Edward Humphries, the janitor, in a quarrel after she had dumped ashes on his clean basement floor.

Mrs. Langlotz's lawyer attempted to stem the Magistrate's criticism.

"Janitors," said the lawyer, "are an arrogant and tyrannical class. If tenants don't do as they say, they abuse them. I think I should have punched this one as my client did, under like circumstances, and I should have been justified."

"No doubt the janitor might feel justified in punching you, too," retorted the Magistrate. After the lecture he discharged Mrs. Langlotz.

SHOT WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Woman and Driver Dead as the Result of Baseless Jealousy.

Charles Rehinecker, who drove a brewery wagon and lived with his wife Rosie, and his half-brother Chris, on the second floor of the tenement at 428 West Forty-first Street, called at a pawnshop on the way to work on Saturday morning and bought a revolver. That night he showed it to his wife.

"I think you're paying too much attention to Chris," he said; "I want you to cut it out."

"It's a lie," she retorted; "I wouldn't know that Chris was living if I didn't see him here occasionally."

"A word to the wise," said Rehinecker, fondling the weapon, "is sufficient. Mind what I say."

The wife forgot all about the incident until about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when her husband returned from the brewery for dinner. As he went into his rooms he locked the door after him. A few moments later other tenents of the house heard two shots. They ran to the Rehinecker rooms and listened. All was quiet. Then somebody fetched a policeman who forced his way in.

Stretched on the floor was Rehinecker with a bullet hole in his right temple. His wife lay prostrate with a wound through the right ear. Both were unconscious. They were taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where the woman died an hour later. Rehinecker died last night.

When the half-brother heard of the shooting he went to the hospital to see the husband and wife, but couldn't talk to either. He said the shooting was based on groundless jealousy.

HIGGINS SIGNS BILL RESTORING 11TH AVE.

Calls Use by Railroad an Intolerable Abuse.

RIGHTS NOT PERPETUAL

Companies Getting Them Must Take the Risk of Having Them Taken Away—Subway Feasible.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 26.—Gov. Higgins to-night signed the Saxe bill, calling for the removal of the tracks from Eleventh Avenue.

The new law provides that the tracks may be run through a subway, or gives the City of New York the right to condemn and take over, on payment of adequate compensation, the rights which the railroad company now enjoys on the surface of the street.

Gov. Higgins filed the following memorandum with the bill:

"The immediate purpose of this bill is to require the New York Central Railroad to remove its tracks from the surface of Eleventh Avenue, in said city, and so to terminate the present use of said avenue by said railroad, which is now operated by steam locomotive power at grade. No one contends that the company should continue indefinitely to enjoy its present privileges, which are admitted to be a menace to public safety. It is desirable to move at once in the right direction toward the accomplishment of a plain duty, if the bill is not fatally defective.

"The bill is objected to on constitutional and engineering grounds. It is said that it is a local act which embraces more than one subject, and that it therefore contravenes the provisions of the Constitution that 'no local bill shall embrace more than one subject, and that shall be expressed in the title. (Constitution, Article 111, Section 16.) If, however, the provisions relating to the collateral subject are not in any way connected with or dependent upon the main subject, and may be stricken out, leaving the residue of the act complete and sensible, and capable of being executed, the act, with the void provisions eliminated, is valid. The objection, if any, which exists on this ground is not fatal to the main purpose of the bill.

"The bill provides for proper compensation and due process of law, and, while it imposes a heavy burden upon the railroad company by compelling it to construct a subway or leave the avenue entirely, it must be remembered that said company has, for many years past, enjoyed the use of a principal thoroughfare of the City of New York for its railroad tracks, in derogation of the rights of the public and in a manner necessarily interfering with the legitimate use of the avenue as a highway, and fraught with danger to life and limb. Railroad companies obtaining such privileges do so at the risk of losing them after years of enjoyment, when conditions as to population change, and that which was perhaps excusable in the first instance becomes an intolerable abuse. In measuring the equities of the present it is well to consider the special advantages enjoyed in the past.

"I am not seriously concerned with the engineering problems presented in the plan for a proposed subway. If such plan is impracticable, by reason of expense or other conditions, the company is not required to undertake impossibilities, but it may take its tracks entirely out of the avenue, if it elects to do so, in which case it will receive compensation for all lawfully existing privileges which are thereby taken from it."

Ira A. Place, general counsel for the New York Central, received last night with what seemed surprising cheerfulness the news of the signing of the bill. To a TIMES reporter Mr. Place said he had not the slightest objection to discussing the bill, but he would prefer to await the opportunity of reading the Governor's memorandum before talking for publication.

MARCONI STOCK OFFER BRINGS OUT PROTESTS

Reall & Co. Sell at Par with 5 Per Cent. for 5 Years Guaranteed.

NAME METROPOLITAN SURETY

That Concern and Wireless Co. Are Both Objecting—Stock, Unguaranteed, Quoted Around 35.

Stock of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America is at present being offered in widely distributed circulars at $100 a share, with interest at 5 per cent., guaranteed for five years by Reall & Co. of Philadelphia. These circulars state that the firm's contract to pay 5 per cent. interest for five years is guaranteed by a bond of the Metropolitan Surety Company of New York and that the interest is payable at the West End Trust Company of Philadelphia. A number of New York bankers have received Reall & Co.'s circulars, and have been much interested in this novel manner of inducing purchases of stock.

The Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America officially disclaims all connection with Reall & Co. of Philadelphia. An officer of the company said yesterday that the offer of its stock is being made without authority and against the wishes of the company.

Officers of the Metropolitan Surety Company said yesterday that they objected to the form of the circulars being sent out by Reall & Co. because from them the inference might be drawn that the Metropolitan Surety Company was guaranteeing 5 per cent. interest on the stock of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America. The Metropolitan Surety Company, it was added, is acting in no way for the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, and that its only undertaking in the matter of this interest is directly with the firm of Reall & Co. who were said to be acting as brokers.

John J. Caullet, an officer of the Metropolitan Surety Company, gave some interesting facts in connection with Reall & Co.'s offer of Marconi stock and the relations of the surety company to this transaction. Mr. Caullet said that the surety company did not in any sense guarantee interest on the stock, that all that the surety company did was to undertake to guarantee to those purchasing Marconi stock from Reall & Co., Philadelphia, the payment of 5 per cent. a year without any reference to dividends on the stock.

From statements made by Mr. Caullet, it appears that the Metropolitan Surety Company is engaged in this transaction with some regret. Mr. Caullet said:

"We have a very bright young man in Philadelphia. He entered into a contract with Reall & Co. The fact is that when he notified this office of the contract he had made with Reall & Co. he got a very hot letter direct from this office. Had there been any way of getting out of the contract, we would not have gone into the matter, but we were not able to get out of it. Some advertising in the form of circulars sent out by Reall & Co. was distasteful to us. I took a train at 7 o'clock on Monday morning for Philadelphia, and told Reall & Co. that some of the statements made in these circulars could no longer be circulated."

"This payment of 5 per cent. a year for five years amounts in effect to a rebate of part of the purchase price of the stock. Reall & Co., I believe, get this stock at $50 or $60 a share, and sell it at par, depositing $25 a share with us to secure the payment of 5 per cent. for five years. It looks like a very good thing for Reall & Co."

Mr. Caullet was asked if this did not amount to paying dividends out of principal. He explained that this was in no wise true, for the reason that the Marconi Company itself had nothing to do with the matter. Reall & Co. were acting merely as brokers in the matter, and were free to make any arrangements they saw fit. He said that was a thing anybody could do with any stock.

It was suggested by Mr. Caullet that possibly the literature sent out by Reall & Co. might be misleading in the sense that the inference might be drawn that the 5 per cent. a year was to come from earnings on the money paid in by the purchasers of the stock. Mr. Caullet replied that no bright man could be misled in any such way.

The suggestion that possibly the circular might come into the hands of those who might not be able to discriminate in the matter of investments brought forth from Mr. Caullet the statement that the public would be surprised to know who had been buying this stock under the terms offered by Reall & Co.

"People living in Riverside Drive," he said, "people living in Fifth Avenue, people engaged in the banking business have been buying the stock." The strangeness of a banker buying stock at $100 a share with the return of 25 per cent. of his principal guaranteed to him, when the same stock could be bought at $50 or $60 a share without the guarantee was suggested to Mr. Caullet. He replied that he did not know that the stock could be bought at $50 or $60 a share. He explained that he understood that Reall & Co. had obtained the stock at that price, but it might have been on option procured some time ago. He did not know that the stock was on the market, or that it could be had even at $100 a share from anybody else.

Mr. Caullet picked up a morning newspaper, looked at the curb quotations, and found that Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America was offered at $35 a share, with $33 bid. Mr. Caullet said that this quotation probably represented some other stock. He said that the Marconi stock offered by Reall & Co. was probably stock of the English corporation.

Reference to the circular itself, however, leaves no doubt that the stock offered is that of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America. Brokers who follow the market in Marconi stock said yesterday that the stock of the American company was without doubt offered at $36 a share.

J. Bottomley, Vice President and General Manager of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, said that the offers of Marconi stock that were being made by a Philadelphia house and by others were displeasing to the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company. He added that the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company would be glad to pay $1,000 to anybody who would show them a way of putting a stop to the offers of one kind or another that were being made by persons who are trying to sell Marconi stock without any authorization from the company and without being in any way under its control.

In November last Reall & Co. issued a circular offering Marconi Wireless stock at $80 a share without any guarantee of interest. This was followed later by the circular offering the stock with five years' interest guaranteed.

END OF THE RACING BILL.

Measure Opposed by Dr. Slicer and Jockey Club Killed in Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—The Cassidy-Lansing bill, which seeks to prohibit bookmaking and poolselling on race tracks, has been killed in the Committee on Codes of the Senate, and Dr. Slicer and his adherents in The Jockey Club who have promised sterilized betting at the tracks in the future have won.

A number of causes contributed to kill the measure. Probably the chief of these was the gradual falling off of the public demand for its passage. The natural consequence was that the bill died before it was born.

Another factor which worked against the bill was the understanding reached between the racing people and the agricultural societies over the "rake-off" from the track receipts. Senator Coggeshall introduced the bill providing that the percentage to be paid the State be increased from 5 to 8 per cent. This amount is turned over to the county fair bodies. Coggeshall's bill will come up on the third reading calendar to-morrow, and when it does, as the result of an agreement reached yesterday between the Senator, the fair managers, and the race track men, the bill will be amended so as to provide that the percentage to go to agricultural societies shall be 6½ per cent. In 1906 and 1907, 7 per cent. in 1908, and 7½ per cent. thereafter. This will increase the rake-off of the county fairs $37,000, then $80,000, and finally $100,000 a year.

ATTACKS THE SUPREME COURT

Atlanta Paper Believes the Chattanooga Lynching Justified.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, March 27.—The Atlanta News this afternoon says editorially regarding the recent lynching of a negro at Chattanooga, and of the action of the United States Supreme Court in reprieving the negro, which caused the lynching:

"When a brute, white or black, attacks and kills or ruins the life of a white woman, we believe that speedy justice should be meted out to him. If the courts permit indefinite delay and fail to protect defenseless women of the South against such outrageous crimes, there is nothing loft for white men to do except to handle the guilty devils as they did in Chattanooga.

"The idea of the Supreme Court of the United States interfering in a case infamous as that at Chattanooga seems to us to be an outrage against justice, and puts the courts beyond consideration in such cases. We do not believe in lynching or anarchy, but we do believe in the white men of the South protecting at any cost the white women, when the courts fail to do so.

"In the case at Chattanooga the crime was especially brutal and inhuman. The people of that city were justified in punishing the guilty negro when they saw that he might escape justice by the unwarranted delay and technicalities of the courts."

CARETAKER'S DARING COUP.

Opened a Broker's Office to Sell $300,000 of Stolen Securities.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 27.—It developed to-day that the robbery of Dr. Joseph Pinault, the French surgeon of Minneapolis, was far more extensive than at first reported. Two weeks ago it was given out that in his absence from the city silver plate valued at $10,000, some of which had belonged to Louis XVI., had been stolen, and that Thomas J. Wainwright, caretaker, had disappeared. To-day the police announce that $300,000 worth of securities also had been taken.

Wainwright, the police say, had the temerity to open an office in the heart of the business district in the name of "P. J. Bartlett, broker," and spent two weeks disposing of the securities and then vanished. Not the slightest trace of him has been found. He is said to have forged an order on the trust company for a key to the safety deposit vault in which Pinault's papers were kept, and thus obtained them. Dr. Pinault said this evening:

"I don't believe all the securities are negotiated, and some who purchased them may have been victimized by Wainwright. If this is so, the loss will be about $50,000; if not, it will run to half a dozen times that amount."

FORECASTS FOR A MONTH.

Weather Bureau Chief Thinks He Can Make Long-Range Predictions.

Willis L. Moore, Chief of the Weather Bureau at Washington, announced last night at the dinner of the Maritime Association at the Waldorf-Astoria that the Weather Bureau might soon issue forecasts of a whole month. Mr. Moore had been joked hard by Job E. Hedges, when he arose and got permission to add to his speech, already delivered. He then said:

"The Weather Bureau believes that for the first time in the history of meteorological science it has within its grasp the scientific basis of long-range weather forecasting—that is forecasts of the character of the month to come.

"The details are not yet complete, and the system will not be adopted for several months to come.

"It may be possible, and I believe it will be, to tell you New Yorkers and members of the Maritime Exchange before this time next year what the character of the coming month will be."

Mr. Moore said after the dinner that he had not intended to make this announcement at this time, but had planned to give it first to the public through the scientific publications.

FOR THE MOST POWERFUL SHIP-OF-WAR AFLOAT

Ten Millions to be Granted for a New Constitution.

TO EXCEED THE DREADNOUGHT

Navy Department Will Have a Free Hand in Her Construction—Other New Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—One hundred thousand dollars for the preservation of the old frigate Constitution, and $10,000,000 for the construction of a huge new battleship to be named the Constitution, are two provisions to be included in the Naval Appropriation bill now approaching completion in the House Committee on Naval Affairs. The committee has also decided to provide for the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of submarines and $2,225,000 for torpedo boat destroyers. The Constitution is to be the most powerful ship of war afloat. When completed she will be as much more formidable than the British Dreadnaught as the Dreadnaught will be in comparison with any other war ship in existence when she goes into commission. Her authorization may be said to be directly the result of Admiral Togo's victory in the Sea of Japan. The Navy Department has at last secured full information concerning the plans for the Dreadnought, and the arrangement of her powerful armament, so that it is known exactly what must be done to beat her. In order that the department may not be hampered in any way in determining upon the plans for the new ship the forthcoming bill will provide that the Secretary of the Navy may use the contingent fund of the department to secure information and advice from shipbuilders the world over if he so desires, before finally accepting the design.

The Naval Affairs Committee does not seek to limit the Secretary of the Navy in determining the new Constitution's displacement. But one limitation is to be placed upon him, and that is, that her hull and machinery shall not cost more than $6,000,000. The provision for the Michigan and South Carolina was $4,000,000 each, and there is no doubt in the minds of the members of the Naval Affairs Committee that if the Secretary of the Navy decides to go to 20,000 tons or beyond the extra $2,000,000 now provided will easily accomplish it. It is estimated that the armor and armament for the ship will cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $3,500,000 in addition to the hull and machinery, and that other fittings will bring the total for the new Constitution up to approximately $10,000,000.

The Dreadnought, as planned, is to carry ten 12-inch rifles. The Michigan and South Carolina are to carry eight 12-inch guns. The Dreadnought will be able to concentrate six guns for bow or stern fire, with eight on either broadside. The American ships can use four guns dead ahead or dead astern, and all eight ahead or astern on a quartering fire, with all eight on either broadside. In point of fire they are nearly as efficient as the Dreadnought, which excels them materially only in the single point of speed. To counterbalance this the American ships have a decided advantage in armor protection.

GO BACK TO RUSSIA.

Even to Injustice, with Green Fields, Suicide Writes to Sister.

L. E. Muller, editor of The Jewish Morning Herald, was sitting at his desk last night, when a young man entered the office and placed two letters before him. Then he turned and walked out. A second after he had gone a shot was heard in the hallway.

Mr. Muller and a number of employes rushed out. They found the young man on the floor, with a revolver in his right hand and a bullet hole in his temple. Patrolman Dwyer of the Eldridge Street Station called Dr. Lohmiller of Gouverneur Hospital. He said the man had died almost immediately. Mr. Muller, who recognized in the dead man his visitor, hurried back to his office and the letters he had left.

From one of these, addressed to himself, the editor learned that the suicide was Nathan Kaplan, a tailor of 250 Madison Street. In the letter he asked Mr. Muller to break the news of his suicide to his parents in Russia, and his stepsister, Minnie Kaplan, of 77 Suffolk Street. Kaplan wrote that he was despondent because in his work in east side sweatshops he had become a prey to tuberculosis, and was afraid of becoming a burden to his sister. She is a sweatshop worker also.

The other letter was for her. In it he advises her to return to Russia.

"Go back to Russia—back even to injustice—as long as it means the green fields of our little village—the happiness, the sunshine, and the fresh air."

"Had I known the contents of these letters," said Mr. Miller, "I would have offered him a good salary to work for the paper. The letter to his sister is a masterpiece of Yiddish literature."

TRANSIT BILL AMENDMENTS.

Motion to Reconsider Vote May Not Come Up To-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—Senator Elsberg succeeded to-day in having made a special order for to-morrow his motion to reconsider the vote by which his Rapid Transit bill was amended last week by Senator Grady. These amendments, Mr. Elsberg asserts, took from the measure every competitive feature and left all future subway contracts at the mercy of the merger.

To-night Mr. Elsberg was not at all sure that he would call up the motion, for five members were absent from the Senate to-day who supported him last week, when Grady's motion to strike out the clause in dispute prevailed by 26 votes to 23. If he finds to-morrow that there is danger of defeat for his motion to reconsider, argument on the Rapid Transit bill will go over until Monday night.

Jersey City Woman Burned to Death.

Mrs. Emeline Reiken, 80 years old, who kept a millinery store at 476 Central Avenue, Jersey City Heights, and who lived in the back of the store, was burned to death early this morning in a fire which destroyed the store building. Policemen Warner and Goehring, in attempting to rescue her, were burned severely.

KITES TOOK MESSAGES IN AIR.

Successfully Used in Wireless Telegraphy Tests at Arlington, Va.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell's tetrahedral kite was put to use to-day in some remarkable experiments at Arlington with wireless telegraphy. The wireless people have had trouble in sending across the Atlantic for want of towers in midocean.

The idea of sending up kites of the tetrahedral pattern from midocean station steamers would solve the problem. Dr. Bell loaned one of his largest kites, having 230 cells, which was operated by W. F. Bedwin. The kite was sent up 2,000 feet, and from antennae 400 feet long messages were caught and transmitted down over a steel wire.

Messages were received from the United States naval wireless station at the Washington Navy Yard, from the De Forest station at Galilee, N. J., near the Atlantic Highlands, and from the steamer Bermudian, 100 miles out from New York and more than 350 miles from the kites.

At the end of the wire stood A. Potter of the United States Weather Bureau, with one hand on the wire. His other hand clasped that of G. D. MacDonald, representing Mr. Bell. Mr. MacDonald had hold of the receiver, so that the operator caught the messages from the kites 2,000 feet in the air through the bodies of the two men.

Long messages were sent and received. Dr. Bell sails for Europe to-morrow, and while in England will devote some time to a study of wireless telegraphy there.

WON'T BE VACCINATED.

20 Teachers and Hundreds of Pupils Suspended from Paterson Schools.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., March 27.—A special meeting of the Educational Commission to-morrow night will consider the bad condition in which the schools have been left by a recent vaccination order of the Board of Health. By this order every pupil and teacher in the public and parochial schools, about 30,000 persons in all, was to submit to vaccination.

Many of the pupils' and teachers' physicians refused to permit their patients to be vaccinated, and this resulted to-day in the suspension of twenty teachers and several hundred pupils. To add to the discomfiture of the Educational Commission, many of those vaccinated have become seriously ill. Before the work is over physicians estimate that over 150 will be incapacitated.

The substitute list of teachers has already been exhausted, and it will be necessary to call out almost all the Normal School pupils. Supt. Chancellor to-day publicly suspended one of the teachers from School No. 14 because she had refused to be vaccinated.

Many of the teachers suspended have good records extending over many years. The officials in the School Commission are putting the matter up to the Board of Health.

BIG FIRE IN JOHNSTOWN, PENN.

Several Big Buildings Burning—Telegraph Operator Missing.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Wednesday, March 28.—A fire started shortly after midnight in the Swank Hardware Company's building, which is the largest wholesale hardware establishment between Pittsburg and Philadelphia. The buildings adjoining the Swank Hardware building also took fire. These include the N. B. Swank Carriage and Harness Store, in which was stored a large quantity of oil and powder.

The fire is in the central portion of the business district. The firemen are directing their efforts chiefly to saving surrounding property. The building of The Johnstown Journal has been destroyed. G. H. Santamour, a telegraph operator for the Publishers' Press Association, is missing and may have perished.

The building of the Henderson Furniture Company is near the Foster building, and the D. F. A. Greer building is burning. If these buildings are destroyed the loss will be fully $700,000.

BAER'S PRIVATE CAR AFIRE.

Blaze in the Philadelphia Doesn't Stop Railroad Man's Breakfast.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The private car Philadelphia, used by President Baer of the Reading Railroad, was damaged by fire to-day while in transit from this city to New York. The fire was discovered as the train to which the car was attached reached the Columbia Avenue station. At the time Mr. Baer and E. T. Stotesbury were at breakfast.

A policeman gave the alarm. Station employes responded and the flames were extinguished. The incident did not interfere with Mr. Baer's breakfast, and the train proceeded about twenty minutes late.

NEW ELECTRIC CAR TESTED.

Gasoline and Electric Locomotive Tried by Delaware & Hudson R. R.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 27.—The Delaware & Hudson Railroad put into service to-day the new combination gasoline and electric car built by the General Electric Company. The car made three round trips between this city and Saratoga, running smoothly and without an accident. Owing to the fact that this was the car's first regular trip, a slow rate of speed was maintained. The motive power is electricity and a powerful gasoline engine drives the dynamos from which the current for the motors is obtained. In appearance the car looks not unlike an ordinary passenger coach with a small compartment in one end for the engine. The railroad officials were well pleased with to-day's service.

Goslin's Bail Forfeited.

Alfred R. Goslin, who was arrested a week ago with Charles M. Dunn on charges of conspiracy against the Western Gold Mining Company, in which $29,500 worth of stock was involved, did not appear in the West Side Court yesterday when his case was called for examination. Magistrate Wahle declared his $1,000 cash bail forfeited and issued a bench warrant for his arrest.

Cruiser New York to be Renamed.

BOSTON, March 27.—It is understood that the cruiser New York, which is undergoing extensive repairs at the navy yard here, will be renamed and placed in another class when she is again put into commission. It is thought she will be named the Trenton or New York City. The first name is favored, as confusion might arise should a new warship be named in honor of New York State. Such changes have come in naval construction that the New York is now practically too small for the class in which she was first placed.

GREAT BRITAIN TO ACT IN INSURANCE SCANDAL

A Select Committee to Consider Policy Holders' Protection.

D. C. HALDEMAN COMING HERE

Retiring Mutual Life Manager Will Look After the Interests of Those Whom He Induced to Insure.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

LONDON, March 27.—The resignation by D. C. Haldeman of the London agency of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York is pronounced by leading newspapers the logical outcome of the impossible situation into which he had been thrown through the mismanagement of his company by those in authority at the home office. The Times says:

"After the exposures in the insurance inquiry and the changes in New York it doubtless seemed to Mr. Haldeman possible that the reputation of his company might be rehabilitated here. His resignation now shows that the hope was vain and that the only honorable course was for him to withdraw and take such independent steps as may be possible to protect British policy holders. That he has unhesitatingly taken this course is not the less to his credit because of the large pecuniary sacrifice it involves.

"It is obvious that the connection of the British branch with the head office in New York is an expensive incubus and that it would be very much to the interest of the British policy holders if they could altogether cut loose from head office mismanagement."

These views are in substance to be found in most of the leading London papers.

What Mr. Haldeman expects to do, it is said, is to go to New York as the authorized representative of practically all of the 26,000 Mutual Life policy holders in this country, who pay the company annually £650,000 and are insured for £15,000,000. He will demand that these British interests be safeguarded. He is himself one of the largest policy holders in Great Britain, having invested the savings of his whole business life in Mutual policies.

In addition to what he expects to do in New York, Mr. Haldeman will undoubtedly aid the British Government to devise legislation to protect English people insured in American companies. That the Government intends to act in this matter was stated in the House of Lords to-day by the Earl of Granard.

It is generally held by insurance men here that the Mutual and other New York companies will show little sagacity if they fail to respond to the demands of British customers for better protection of their interests. If the New York companies wish to transact any more business in this country they will have to do something to satisfy the people that they can issue policies that may be depended on absolutely.

LONDON, March 27.—The Earl of Granard, (Liberal,) on behalf of the Board of Trade, replying in the House of Lords to-day to the Earl of Onslow, (Conservative,) who on March 9 gave notice of his intention to ask the Government whether, in view of the disclosures made regarding certain American insurance companies, it intended to compel foreign companies doing business in Great Britain, to keep in this country a sufficient proportion of their securities to cover the claims of British policy holders, said the Government would appoint a select committee to consider the question.

In England, Lord Onslow added, a quarter of a million people were interested in the affairs of the American insurance companies, and the country could not allow that the slightest risk of loss should exist for those who had invested their small savings in insurance. He hoped the Government would introduce legislation such as had been adopted elsewhere, compelling the companies to deposit approved assets to meet their liabilities.

The resignation of D. C. Haldeman, British manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, and Lord Onslow's question in the House of Lords, have revived interest here in the affairs of American insurance companies. The Globe to-day, in its financial columns, suggests that British policy holders organize themselves into a company. "Why," asks The Globe, "should not British policy holders cut adrift from the New York company entirely? If Mr. Haldeman can devise means to organize them into a new English company, conducted on safe and conservative lines, he will have done them a substantial service."

This, however, is not the intention of Mr. Haldeman, who said to-night:

"I am not antagonistic to the company, but I have felt it my duty, as the reforms suggested have not been carried out, to resign and place my services at the disposal of those whom I induced to insure in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York."

A result of the same agitation which induced Mr. Haldeman to resign has been some talk of the New York Life Insurance Company and the Equitable Life Assurance Society withdrawing from Great Britain, since the result of the disclosures of the last year has caused a loss on business, and if the legislation which has been suggested is carried out this probably will be realized. The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, however, is too largely interested in Great Britain to take such a step.

Augustus D. Juilliard of New York, a Trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, was interviewed to-night. He said nothing had been decided yet regarding the company's business in London, but he was starting for New York on board the Baltic to-morrow and would submit a statement to President Peabody and Joseph H. Choate. Nothing, he said, would be done contrary to Mr. Choate's advice. Mr. Juilliard said he had no interest in the matter except the protection of the policy holders, and they would save their money by sticking to their policies.

"The money is there," he said. "British accountants have examined the affairs of the company and found its assets absolutely correct, with a large surplus. I am sure the company will welcome a further examination by any actuary the British policy holders care to appoint."

Dilating on the high character of President Peabody, Mr. Juilliard instanced his selection of Mr. Choate as the adviser of the company. Mr. Juilliard added that it was the intention of the administration to save all the money and spend as little as possible.

Robertson Lawson, an accountant, and a leading member of the Policy Holders' Committee, said:

"What we want is to obtain a transfer of assets of the company to England sufficient to protect the interests of the policy holders. If the head office declines to accede to this, it will have to conduct its business in Great Britain at a serious loss, as public confidence is not likely to be restored under the present Trustees."

CARNEGIE GIVES $2,000,000.

Additional Gift to Maintain the Carnegie Technical School.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—It was announced in this city to-night that Andrew Carnegie had given $2,000,000 in addition to previous gifts for the maintenance of the Carnegie Technical Schools. Mr. Carnegie has already given more than $1,000,000. None of the latest gift is to be used for the erection of buildings.

It was also announced that Mr. Carnegie expressed a desire that the Margaret Morrison Carnegie School for Women be completed as soon as possible, and assured the committee that he would meet the expense. It is expected the technical schools will have cost about $5,000,000 when completed.

ROBBED THE WITHERBEES.

Burglar Got Jewels Worth $10,000 at 4 Fifth Avenue—Eluded Pursuer.

Jewels and heirlooms valued at thousands of dollars—the police estimate about $10,000—were stolen early yesterday morning from the residence of Mrs. Frank Witherbee, at 4 Fifth Avenue. The robber escaped.

Mrs. Witherbee told the police that the burglar entered her residence by a rear window on the parlor floor. The butler was awakened by the noise the burglar made, but the man made his escape before an alarm could be given. Policeman Martin was notified and chased the man a block, but the robber disappeared.

HIGGINS FOR INQUIRY.

Governor Places Responsibility for Banking Legislation on Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Gov. Higgins to-night declared that in his opinion there should be an investigation of the Banking Department.

"I think," he said, "that the Banking Department should be investigated. The responsibility for failure will rest with the Assembly if it does not act. It has a bill before it for action. The Assembly passed a resolution which the Senate did not approve. In its turn the Senate passed a bill. No one can question this bill's honesty and say it will not give a full and thorough investigation."

The Governor said that so far as he knew neither ex-Judge Parker nor ex-Judge Andrews had given assurances that they would serve on an investigating committee.

McADOO'S ANKLE HURT.

Former Police Head Wrenched It on Ice in Central Park.

Former Police Commissioner William McAdoo is confined to his home, 205 West Fifty-seventh Street, with a severely strained ankle. Mr. McAdoo walks a great deal for exercise. It has been his habit for several years to walk around Central Park in the evening.

He was making his usual circuit last Friday night when at about Sixtieth Street and Fifth Avenue he decided on a short cut to his home on the west side. Just as he stepped within the Park he slipped on a piece of ice, turning his right ankle and falling to the ground.

There was no one near to assist him, but after resting a few moments he was able slowly to make his way home. Last night he said he was rapidly recovering.

BERNHARDT USES TENT AGAIN.

Plays at Waco Before 2,000 People—Goes to Austin To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WACO, Texas, March 27.—Sarah Bernhardt continued her tent campaign in Texas with success to-night, playing her second engagement under canvas at Waco. Her engagement here was under the auspices of the Waco Business Men's Club. The play was "Camille." The attendance was approximately 2,000.

At Austin to-morrow Mme. Bernhardt will play in her tent on the campus in front of the State Capitol Building.

GAS COMPANIES APPEAL.

Give Notice of Fight Against Commission's Orders.

ALBANY, March 27.—The Consolidated Gas Company and the other companies in New York City affected by the order of the State Commission of Gas and Electricity reducing the price of gas to-day served upon the commission and upon Attorney General Mayer notices of appeal to the Appellate Division, First Department.

The companies serving notice that they will participate in the appeal are the Consolidated Gas Company, Central Union Gas Company, Northern Union Gas Company, Standard Gas Light Company, New Amsterdam Gas Company, and the New York Mutual Gas Light Company of New York.

MAY CLOSE A COURTHOUSE.

Twenty-four Hours Allowed to Repair the Morrisania Structure.

The door of the Morrisania Court House, 158th Street and Third Avenue, bore a notice yesterday from the Bureau of Buildings of the Bronx stating that the structure was unsafe and giving the owner, Jacob Meyer, twenty-four hours to make the necessary repairs. Supt. Revell says he will close the building if the repairs ordered are not made within twenty-four hours.

11 BUFFALO INDICTMENTS.

Many Ex-Officials to be Arrested in Cemetery Fraud Cases.

BUFFALO, March 27.—Confessions made to the Grand Jury to-day by Rowland J. Conover, the contractor who has been convicted of grand larceny in the first degree for his connection with a county contract for the removal of bodies from an old cemetery, will result in the issue of warrants for the arrest of twenty-three former city and county officials.

Eleven indictments were found to-day by the Grand Jury on the statements Conover made before it. On these indictments six warrants were issued, and while the men have not yet been arrested, the District Attorney says they will be arraigned in court to-morrow.

JEROME ASKS PERKINS AROUND TO BE ARRESTED

Apparently Gets Insurance Case Away from the Grand Jury.

IS SNUBBED BY THE JUDGE

Who Disregards Information That a Newspaper Has Questioned the Grand Jury with Telegrams.

George W. Perkins, formerly Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company and a member of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., will appear this morning before Magistrate Moss in the Tombs Police Court to submit to arrest on a charge of grand larceny. Should Magistrate Moss be unable to act in the matter, his place will probably be taken by Justice Wyatt of Special Sessions, sitting as a Magistrate.

No warrant has been issued against Mr. Perkins, and it is possible that such an instrument may not be drawn up until he comes into court, as it is sufficient that the Magistrate order him taken into custody when he appears.

The proceedings will be based on three affidavits signed and acknowledged yesterday before Magistrate Moss by Darwin P. Kingsley, Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company; Edmund D. Randolph, Treasurer of the same company, and Milton M. Mattison, a bookkeeper in its employ. Their depositions, received yesterday by District Attorney Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Kresel, cover the series of transactions by which the New York Life Company, in the campaign of 1904, contributed $48,000 to the Republican National campaign fund.

How the $48,000 Was Given.

The late President McCall testified to this contribution before the Armstrong Committee, telling the legislative investigators that the money was paid by George W. Perkins to Cornelius N. Bliss, the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, in the form of a check drawn by J. P. Morgan & Co., and that later that firm was reimbursed from the funds of the New York Life Insurance Company, the exact sum drawn to the order of J. P. Morgan & Co. being $48,802.

Mr. Perkins himself, when called before the committee, corroborated Mr. McCall, as did the bookkeeper, Mr. Mattison. It was shown that the sum was repaid to Mr. Perkins from the funds of the branch office maintained by the New York Life Insurance Company in the Hanover Bank Building, and that the funds of that branch, as well as its accounts, were kept wholly apart from those of the general office. The only record found of the payment of the contribution was a memorandum saying:

"By check to J. P. Morgan & Co., $48,802."

A penciled memorandum on a slip of paper was also produced before the investigation committee, showing that the payment had been made on the order of Mr. Perkins. The payment did not appear at all in itemized form in the books of the main office, which are the only books submitted to the State Superintendent of Insurance for inspection.

Mr. Kingsley was at that time Secretary of the Finance Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company, by which body all the political contributions were discussed before made. Mr. Randolph was also a member of that committee, besides being Treasurer of the company, and thus in immediate control of all its financial transactions. Mr. Mattison made the only entry found on the books of the Hanover Bank office as to the contribution.

Will Appeal Immediately.

It was said yesterday that Mr. Perkins will be accompanied by his counsel and a bondsman when he appears in court this morning, and that immediately afte his arrest a writ of habeas corpus will be asked for on his behalf, to be used as an appeal to the Supreme Court, on the ground that the facts contained in the affidavits do not constitute a crime of larceny under the law. It is understood that both Mr. Jerome and counsel for Mr. Perkins will expedite matters, so as to have the appeal argued at the earliest possible date, and then carried up to the highest tribunal in the State.

It is not likely that the Grand Jury will take any step tending to interfere with the programme that seems to have been mapped out by Mr. Jerome. That body appears to be in perfect harmony with the District Attorney. There are only three more days left of its official existence, and those days will be plentifully occupied with routine business, of which there is a large amount to be disposed of. The term of the Grand Jury lapses, naturally with the term of the court that convoked it. Judge O'Sullivan will end the March term of General Sessions on the last of the month or before, and it is not known that he could prolong the term by any action of his own for the purpose of forcing the Grand Jury to act on the insurance matter.

The preparations for the proceeding against Mr. Perkins occupied Mr. Jerome's entire time yesterday except for a few minutes he spent in Part I. of General Sessions while Judge O'Sullivan received the customary report of the Grand Jury. The better part of the forenoon and part of the afternoon were given to sessions with Messrs. Kingsley & Randolph, during which Mr. Kresel and a stenographer were present. Mr. Kresel and Mr. Kingsley went before Magistrate Moss early in the morning, and the Magistrate remained on duty until 1 o'clock to receive further depositions. Mr. Jerome had a talk with him in the morning, too, and after it had been rumored that Magistrate Moss had refused to act because the matter was already in the hands of the Grand Jury Mr. Jerome called on him again in the afternoon and had another ten-minute conversation with him.

O'Sullivan Snubs Jerome.

Just before 1 o'clock Mr. Jerome was called to appear before the Grand Jury. It was supposed at the time that the foreman of that body would repeat his demand for all the evidence bearing on the contributions of corporate funds to political parties, as he was practically ordered to do by Judge O'Sullivan on Monday. From what happened later, the conclusion was drawn that no such demand was made, and that the matter on which the Grand Jury wanted the advice of Mr. Jerome was on a telegram received by the jurymen.

Judge O'Sullivan sharply snubbed Mr. Jerome when the District Attorney was about to place the matter of the telegram before the court. On the appearance of the Grand Jury in General Sessions, together with Mr. Jerome, the Judge turned directly to the members of the jury, disregarding the District Attorney.

"You may continue your deliberations," Judge O'Sullivan said to the jury.

Mr. Jerome was standing up at the time, holding a slip of yellow paper in his hand.

"If it please your Honor," he began, "there is one matter to which I should like to call—"

"That will not detain you, gentlemen," the court interrupted, talking past the District Attorney to the Grand Jury. "You may retire for the further performance of your duties."

One by one the Grand Jurymen filed out very slowly. Mr. Jerome remained standing silent until the last one had passed out of the courtroom. He was very pale, but not more so than Judge O'Sullivan, who also remained on his feet as if bent on seeing that the Grand Jury obeyed his command. When the jurymen were all gone Mr. Jerome resumed in a voice that quivered noticeably:

Newspaper Telegraphed to the Jury.

"I find that the Grand Jurymen generally have received through the Western Union telegrams reading like this one, 'Will you kindly inform us what conclusions you have formed as to the power of the Grand Jury to act in matters of political contributions from insurance trust funds? Do you accept the District Attorney's or Judge O'Sullivan's views of the law? Please answer collect. The New York American.' In view of the fact that the Grand Jury is sworn to secrecy I thought I should submit this—"

"The Grand Jury is not obliged to answer any such question," Judge O'Sullivan remarked, sharply, interruptng Mr. Jerome again. "The course of the jury is clear. The question before the Grand Jury is the issue under consideration on which they were instructed. On that they have a right to inquire."

"Your Honor misunderstands my point," rejoined the District Attorney, speaking with icy calm. "I wanted to know whether perhaps the dignity of the court required protection, and I thought that your Honor might instruct the Grand Jury to that effect. Personally, I have no interest in the matter."

"The matter is wholly outside the jurisdiction of the court," said Judge O'Sullivan. "I have nothing to say in regard to it."

With that he turned to the consideration of routine business. Mr. Jerome left the courtroom at once, together with a small group of assistants, and refused later to make any comment whatever on the episode. Others familiar with law and more at liberty to speak were not so reticent. The attempt to approach the members of the Grand Jury was generally designated as one of the most audacious heard of in years. The point accentuated by lawyers was that the courts have held time and again that if anybody, for any purpose, communicates illegally with the Grand Jury concerning any case under investigation by that body, indictments subsequently found as a result of such investigation are invalid. And for such reasons indictments have often been thrown out of court.

Might Invalidate Indictments.

It was pointed out that a repetition of the same attempt to draw an opinion from the members of the Grand Jury made when insurance indictments are actually to be returned might therefore invalidate the entire proceedings, although the Grand Jurymen might make no response to the approach. It was also said that such an approach of the members of the Grand Jury constituted a clear case of contempt of court under the rulings made by the higher courts in this and other States.

While John R. Fellows was District Attorney in 1895 he prepared a "Manual for Grand Jurors," in which a chapter is devoted to "Improper Communications with the Grand Jury." He says:

> All unofficial communication to the Grand Jury respecting cases pending before them is improper, and any indictment found thereafter in such a case would be properly set aside on the ground of improper influence.

Sections 265 and 267 of the Code of Criminal Procedure say:

> Every member of the Grand Jury must keep secret whatever he himself or any other Grand Juror may have said, or in what manner he, or any other Grand Juror, may have voted on a matter before them.
>
> A Grand Juror cannot be questioned for anything he may say, or any vote he may give, in the Grand Jury relative to a matter legally pending before the Grand Jury.

In 1890 Dilworth Choate, a newspaper reporter, was sent to the county prison for thirty days and fined $250 for contempt of court committed by an attempt to overhear the deliberations of an ordinary trial jury.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Policy Holders' Committee, called on Mr. Jerome yesterday afternoon and remained closeted with him more than an hour. Nothing could be learned about the object of his call either from Mr. Untermyer himself or from Mr. Jerome. It was thought possible that it might have something to do with the representation of the people before the higher courts on the appeal that is expected to follow the proceedings against Mr. Perkins.

The Finance Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company in 1904 included not only Messrs. Kingsley, Randolph, and Perkins, but Alexander E. Orr, John Claflin, George A. Morrison, Woodbury Langdon, and John S. Kennedy, all of whom may be called as witnesses in a hearing on the charges against Mr. Perkins, if such a hearing should not be interrupted by an appeal.

INSURANCE BILL ADVANCED.

Measure Providing for Election of Directors Goes to Third Reading.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Without argument the Assembly to-day unanimously advanced to third reading the insurance measure which provides for the election of all insurance Directors Nov. 15.

This bill will afford the opening fight on insurance in the Senate. Senators Malby and Grady are scheduled to oppose it to-morrow.

PHILADELPHIA REBATE TRIALS

Members of R. D. Wood & Co., If Convicted, May Be Fined $20,000.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Members of the firm of R. D. Wood & Co., iron manufacturers, with plants at Florence, N. J., and Emaus, Pa., were placed on trial in the United States Court here to-day charged with accepting rebates from the Great Northern Railway Company and the Mutual Transit Company on shipments to Winnipeg. The amount of the rebates was $1,230.57. Indictments were found against Walter, Stuart, Richard, and George Wood, but at the opening of court the indictments against the latter two were quashed.

This is the first rebate case to come to trial in this State under the Filkins anti-rebate law. The defendants, if convicted, are liable to a fine of $20,000.

SALMAGUNDI DINERS ALL SUPPORT JEROME

One Thanks God for Insurance Campaign Contributions.

"THEY GAVE US ROOSEVELT"

Blast from Hopkinson Smith Against the Flood of Yellow from Some Newspapers and Magazines.

Many of the 150 members and guests who attended the regular Salmagundi dinner at the clubhouse, 14 West Twelfth Street, last night, went there with the expectation of witnessing the usual glimpse into Bohemia that Salmagundi dinners offer.

To all intent the dinner was to be an affair of gayety and fun, but it developed into a serious discussion of insurance matters, the fate of some of the men identified therewith, and talk about that which District Attorney Jerome recently described as a wave of newspaper and magazine hysteria in New York and the country. Mr. Jerome was expected to attend the dinner, but was unable to be present. Assistant District Attorney Train, however, spoke for his chief.

President Alexander T. Van Laer introduced F. Hopkinson Smith as the first speaker, and Mr. Smith plunged right into insurance.

"It affords me great pleasure to be with this club, which has been aptly described as a reflection of the real Bohemia," he said. "It is, in truth, an oasis in the desert of commercialism and affords a relief to the business soul. It is pleasant, also, to be in the company of gentlemen who estimate at its true value the yellow filth that is now pouring out of newspapers and magazines. You men here are not deceived by the hysteria being proclaimed about fraud and commercial vice, and it is a source of satisfaction that such a condition exists. You will not accept a defamation unless the defamation is proved.

"The recent insurance troubles led up to a great deal of this sort of nervous derangement. I wish to add my indorsement to that given by the great majority to District Attorney Jerome for his work. I want to hurl my pebble into the large stream of common appreciation and give my approval to the men who stand out in relief against this outpouring of abuse. One man was hounded to his grave and another man is dying of a broken heart from it. Another man would have been heralded with triumph if he had entered this club a year ago, and now there are few willing to take him by the hand and say: 'You have made a mistake, but you have committed no crime. You have been a useful public servant and citizen.'

"I am a policy holder in the Equitable," continued Mr. Smith. "I took out a policy when I was 27 years old. In ten years I drew $10,000 and paid with it the mortgage on the house in which I live. Ten years later I drew another $10,000 and invested the money in securities, and in another ten years I drew a third $10,000 and paid on a policy which will keep me insured for the rest of my life. Now, I want to ask under the circumstances can I accuse the men who have paid me this money of being robbers and thieves? No!"

Mr. Smith's remarks were listened to in grave silence, and when Henry Mayer, the artist, arose as the next speaker, he offered an apology. He said he had come to amuse the club with some humorous stories, but in view of the gloom and gravity of the evening's spirit, he doubted whether he would. He did tell some stories, however.

Prof. Terry of Columbia replied to Mr. Smith. He said he thought there was small basis for the criticisms he had heard against the District Attorney. Mr. Jerome was an honest and fearless public official, and he indorsed Mr. Jerome's official conduct, but sight should not be lost of the fact that there had been wrong doing.

"There has been faithlessness and abuse of trust," he declared. "There have been tricks in bookkeeping, illegitimate moneys secured by trustees and, while the American people are patient and tolerent, the pendulum has been swinging one way and now it is swinging another. Admitting that too much abuse may have been indulged in we must not lose sight of the fact that there have been offenders."

Dr. Lewis A. Coffin said he had been at the dinner last week at which Mr. Jerome had talked about hysteria.

"I was greatly impressed with Mr. Jerome's speech," he added, "and he is a man of integrity. No one will doubt that. I, for one, thank God that there are men like McCall was. I am a policy holder in the New York Life Insurance Company and I approve of any contributions which may have been made to aid the election of McKinley and Roosevelt.

"If the men at the head of the companies stole, they did not know they were stealing, and I thank God that what they did, believing it right, gave me a President McKinley and a President Roosevelt."

Assistant District Attorney Train told his hearers what manner of man he believed his chief to be. At the close of his remarks the company stood to drink to his health, and sing their song of approval, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Train said in part:

"The question as to just what is crime is not easy to answer. When I began my work in the District Attorney's office it was under Philbin, and it seemed to me then, a youngster, that the laws of right and wrong would be easy to decide. I have since learned that the criminal law has not developed with modern civilization. There should be a new codification of laws for what today are merely sins. For instance, look at commercial crimes as compared with other crimes. It is a crime to choke your mother-in-law to death, but not to let her choke to death if she have a fish bone in her throat. Wrongs that could be righted are not while we have on the statute books the legal right to attach a corpse for debt.

"There are acts that are heinous that can go on without prosecution because there is no legislative restriction. There are thousands in automobiles who cannot be touched by the criminal law. It is just this sort of thing that makes such difficulties as were discussed between Judge O'Sullivan and my chief.

"There can, however, be no dissenting voice here to-night, though we may differ as to his manner and methods, that William Travers Jerome stands for honesty. I wish that he had not been ill, and that he might have been here to listen to your applause and even the disapproval of some of us.

"To come down to cases and the talk about political contributions. He went through the law with a fine toothcomb, instead of being satisfied with pleasing the newspapers that are criticising him. He is after the big fellows. I stand here to thank God for the confidence and esteem you have shown in my chief to-night."

WANT ANOTHER INQUIRY.

State Insurance Men Seek More from the New York Life and the Mutual.

Further investigations of the Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies will be sought by the International Committee of Policy Holders which is now forming. The motive behind the plan lies in the belief, expressed openly before the Legislature by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Committee, that the surface of things in these companies, and particularly in the Mutual Life, has hardly been scratched, and that nothing but a thorough examination by a special examiner of the Insurance Departments of this and other States will bring out the facts essential to thorough reorganization.

The Insurance Commissioners of several outside States, particularly those represented in the Chicago conference, heartily favor this general investigation, and will be disposed to use all possible influence with the administration of the department here to this end. It is hardly likely, however, that a move will be made until Gov. Higgins appoints a successor to Supt. Hendricks. The men behind the international movement freely assert that there would be little chance of putting a searching investigation through as long as Mr. Hendricks holds office.

It was also learned yesterday that little stock is taken by the policy holders' representatives in the suits that the Mutual Life has instituted against the McCurdys and C. H. Raymond & Co., with an apparent view to covering all the sums lost to that company during the McCurdy régime, as disclosed by the Armstrong Committee's investigation.

The Truesdale Investigating Committee will present a report to the Mutual's Trustees to-day, which is said to be drawn on very general lines. The investigators have received replies for about half the requisitions sent out last week to the Trustees, and have practically all the information sought in the requisition issued to employes two or three weeks ago. The Investigating Committee has also a mass of material collected by the sixty or eighty accountants who have been at the company's books for four months.

A Trustee of the Mutual said yesterday that, with the possible exception of one Trustee, nobody will resign from the board at to-day's meeting save Vice Presidents Gillette and Granniss. It is understood that three other Trustees have expressed their desire to get out, but that every effort has been made to have them reconsider.

The Chicago insurance conference has issued a statement regarding the legislation proposed by the Armstrong Committee. It approves practically all features of the Armstrong bills in New York, except the adoption of the "select and ultimate" method of valuation and the prohibition of the issuance of preliminary term policies as a means to relieve the companies of the necessity of putting up the full reserve on the first year's insurance. The Chicago conferrees instructed a sub-committee to prepare bills for introduction in the Legislatures of the States represented. These will embody the Armstrong Committee's ideas on the prohibition of campaign contributions, false estimates regarding policy results, ambiguous terms on policy contracts, and the issuance of participating and non-participating policies by a single company.

The Westerners also approve the recommendation for an annual accounting to policy holders, which involves the abolition of the deferred dividend system, as it now exists, but they do not believe in prescribing the exact way in which the accounting should be made. They approve in general the proposal to standardize policy forms, and that to have all vouchers show the detailed payments covered and the purposes of these payments, as well as the comprehensive report to the State Insurance Department recommended by the Armstrong Committee. The measures providing for the participation of policy holders in the elections of the mutual companies in this State are, of course, indorsed.

REPORT INTERESTS CORTELYOU.

Senate, Too, Hears Story of Insurance Warrants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A report that warrants had been issued for the arrest of Postmaster General Cortelyou, Chairman of the Republican National Committee in the last Presidential campaign; Cornelius N. Bliss, Treasurer of the committee, and George W. Perkins caused a sensation at the Capitol and around the White House to-day. Mr. Cortelyou got the report as he was approaching the Executive Offices to attend the Cabinet meeting. He said that he had no knowledge of the matter. When he met his colleagues in the Cabinet room he told them of what he had heard, and of his strong doubts as to the truth of the statement.

The afternoon papers took the news to the other end of the avenue. Sergeant at Arms Ransdell got hold of the first paper containing the report, and he went in at once on the floor of the Senate and passed it around. Senator after Senator seized the copy of the paper, rapidly read the headlines, and handed it on to others. Senator Dick, when he read it, threw the paper down on the floor in disgust. Senator Tillman alluded vaguely to the matter in his remarks on his resolution to investigate the contributions of the National banks to campaign funds.

Mr. Cortelyou, asked to-night about a report that he had been indicted for accepting campaign contributions from insurance companies, replied that he knew nothing whatever about it and would not discuss it. One of his friends, however, said that such an indictment, if found, would be "preposterous and a grandstand play."

The report regarding Mr. Cortelyou led to a great deal of discussion to-day of the President's famous "square deal" statement, issued on the eve of election in 1904. That statement was made in reply to Judge Parker's charges that the corporations were being forced to contribute to Mr. Cortelyou's campaign fund. The impression seemed to be general that the President had denied in that statement that the corporations were financing the Republican ticket.

Examination of the statement, however, shows that the President did not deny it. He described Judge Parker's charges as "slanderous accusations as to Mr. Cortelyou and myself," and called them "monstrous." "If true," said the President, "they would brand both of us forever with infamy, and, inasmuch as they are false, heavy must be the condemnation of the man making them." There was not, he asserted, "one particle of truth" in Judge Parker's charges. He wound up by branding Judge Parker's statements as "unqualifiedly and atrociously false."

But there was not anywhere in the statement any specific denial that corporations were furnishing the Republican Party with the sinews of war. The President merely denied that he or Mr. Cortelyou had made any threats to these corporations to induce the latter to give the money which Mr. Cortelyou obtained.

For some reason the contrary impression was abroad to-day, and there was a good deal of speculation as to whether the President knew of the insurance contributions when he made the statement. There is nothing whatever in the statement to indicate whether he did or not.

TILLMAN SAYS JEROME HAS FALLEN FROM GRACE

Tells the Senate the District Attorney Is Against Reform.

HAS LIKING FOR CARTOONS

Worsts Spooner in an Argument About Them—No Date Set for Vote on Rate Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The Senate did not reach an agreement to-day as to the day on which a vote is to be taken on the Rate bill. Senator Tillman asked that an agreement be made, but when Senator Aldrich objected in order that Senator Bailey, who was called away by his father's death, might be present, he suspended his effort with the remark that he did not wish to press the matter at all, but would like to have an agreement as soon as practicable.

Senator Bailey is expected here Thursday, and probably an agreement will be made before the end of the week. Senator Tillman, however, said to-night that he would not be surprised if the debate were to run on for six weeks.

During the discussion to-day Mr. Tillman referred to his resolution concerning the contributions of National banks to campaign committees, and made it the basis for a reference to the differences between District Attorney Jerome and Judge O'Sullivan as to the applicability of existing law to the liability of insurance companies for the same offense.

Whatever doubt might exist as to insurance companies, there could, he said, be none as to National banks. He knew of one case in which $17,000 had been contributed to the Republican campaign fund in 1896, and he had reason to believe that no less than $1,000,000 had been so given by the National banks that year.

He also spoke of Judge Humphrey's recent decision in the beef packers' case, and declared that the tendency was to punish a man of straw, the corporations, without paying attention to the individuals. He declared that we were "too infernally anxious" about this artificial man. He wanted the beneficiary looked after. No doubt, he said, the law was correctly interpreted, but that was the trouble. He wanted the law reformed.

"Now, there's Mr. Jerome," he said. "He, too, has fallen from grace and is out against reform. So here we go. The dear people are told that we are doing our best for them, but the dear old Constitution stands in the way."

Mr. Tillman quoted Mr. Spooner's recent speech devoted to pointing out the necessity for careful legislation, and also made mention of a cartoon illustrating the effect of Judge Humphrey's decision. The Wisconsin Senator objected that his friend was going too far, and declared that it was the first time that he ever knew a judicial opinion to be impeached by a cartoon.

"Cartoons often point out some pertinent facts," remarked Mr. Tillman.

"The last cartoon I saw of the Senator from South Carolina," said Mr. Spooner, "showed him being kicked over by a donkey."

"The last I saw," said Mr. Tillman, "showed me riding the donkey and the elephant tied to the donkey's tail."

There was a roar of laughter in the galleries, and it extended to the Senate floor.

"I saw a cartoon myself," said Mr. Spooner when he could again be heard, "which showed me in a suit of Secretary Taft's clothes, but it did not illustrate any principle."

Mr. Tillman admitted that often his language was too "lurid," and then immediately repeated his conviction that we were "too infernally anxious to protect the beneficiaries of the corporations." He declared that the Attorney General was the direct progenitor of the doctrine that the corporations could be punished, but not their officers and stockholders. He had laid down the principle in the case of Mr. Morton, and the President had accepted the doctrine, both exclaiming, "He's clean and honorable and should be immune; go after the dirty railroad."

The decision in the packers' case was a natural consequence, he said. The Attorney General had been "hoist by his own petard."

"If the Senator would get rid of some of his jaundice," remarked Mr. Spooner, "and put aside some of his suspicions of his fellow-Senators he would get on better."

Mr. Tillman declared that he could not accept legal refinements in the place of common sense.

Mr. Foraker made an inquiry as to what question was before the Senate.

"I am before the Senate," responded the South Carolinian.

"Nothing unusual in that; the Senator is always before the Senate," retorted Mr. Foraker.

Mr. McCumber picked innumerable flaws in the Rate bill, predicting that if enacted into law it would fail entirely to meet the demands of the public. He said, however, he would vote for the bill if properly amended.

TUSKEGEE TO GET $650,000.

It Will Receive This Sum on the Death of Mrs. A. J. Dotger.

Booker T. Washington's Tukegee Institute will receive a legacy of $650,000 upon the death of Mrs. Andrew J. Dotger of South Orange, N. J. Mrs. Dotger's husband died recently, leaving an estate valued at $1,000,000 in personal property together with unscheduled realty.

According to the will of Mr. Dotger, which was filed for record in the Surrogate's office, at Newark yesterday, the widow is to have the income from the estate, which will revert to the institute upon her death. In addition to this the wife is liberally provided for. The will also makes specific bequests to various relatives and institutions which aggregate $370,000. These bequests follow: Henry C. Dotger, a brother, $50,000; Dora Seifert, a sister, $25,000; Anna C. Ney, a sister, $25,000; Carl Werner, a nephew, $10,000; Clara E. Seidenstricker, a niece of Mrs. Dotger, and Victor Logo, a nephew, $20,000 each; Claire Richards, child of an adopted daughter, $20,000, and to other relatives, $50,000.

Herbert Le Van Richards, son of an adopted daughter, is to receive the income on $100,000, and the German Hospital of Philadelphia, Orange Memorial Hospital, the Free Public Library, the Orange Bureau of Associated Charities, and the Orange Valley Church, $10,000 each.

ROBBED JOHN F. CARROLL.

Victim Didn't Know It Until Negro Thief Wrote to Tell Him.

When Leslie Sadel, a negro ex-convict, pleaded guilty to grand larceny before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday, it was learned that the house of John F. Carroll, at 802 Fifth Avenue, was entered by Sadel last December and $1,000 worth of clothes and jewelry carried away. Mr. Carroll did not know of his loss until weeks afterward, when informed of the robbery by a letter written by the negro from jail.

Although a fur-lined overcoat belonging to himself was among the stolen articles, Mr. Carroll would not even then believe in his loss until he received a description of the inside of his house from the negro, which showed that the thief had really been there.

Sadel was sent to Sing Sing Prison for nine years in 1899, but got out on parole last Fall. He was hardly free when, in September, he stole an express wagon and horse, together with two trunks belonging to W. C. Wiederson of 17 East Twenty-seventh Street. Driving to West Ninety-ninth Street, Sadel deposited the trunks and their contents with a woman friend before he sold the horse and wagon.

In the trunks he found, among less valuable things, a diamond ring worth $1,000 and other rings and jewelry valued at $4,000 in all. He sold it all to a jeweler, who cut the stones out of their settings and sold them loose to a pawnbroker. The pawnbroker was in court yesterday, and was told by Judge O'Sullivan that he must restore the property to its owner.

Sadel told Mr. Carroll that he sneaked into his house in broad daylight while the whole family was at home and the door was left open and unguarded for a few minutes. After hiding in a closet he managed to pick up the fur coat, a woman's gold watch, and several other pieces of jewelry. Sadel sent all this booty to Chicago and had it pawned there. He got $80 on the coat. The negro was remanded until to-morrow for sentence.

PLOT, SAYS THE UNION.

Housesmiths Don't Permit Dynamiting and Moran's Tale Is False.

Patrick J. Farrell, Secretary of the Housesmiths' Union, which denied recently that the self-confessed dynamiter, Moran, and his pals were members, made this statement last evening regarding the confession of Moran that he had been employed by the union to dynamite buildings where there were strikes:

"The Moran confession is the outcome of a scheme to break up the union. The officers of the Housesmiths' Union are innocent of any complicity with Moran and others in these alleged dynamiting outrages. The employers cannot get enough men to do the work for them, and we have got them rattled. They are trying every scheme to break up the union, but they cannot succeed. Moran, we understand, was promised large inducements financially, a free ticket to South Africa, and a guarantee that his wife and children would be provided for if he made these charges against the union.

"The union does not stand for violence or dynamite or destruction of property by any other means. It is not in any way responsible for the acts of Moran and his comrades in spite of his alleged confession. This is simply another attempt to discredit the union and place it in a false light before the public. That is all there is to it."

IF THE WOMEN COULD VOTE

They'd Abolish the "Lung Blocks," Says J. G. Phelps Stokes.

With a view to increasing the interest of the women workers of the east side in obtaining the suffrage for their sex, Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch organized them in Clinton Hall last night.

Samuel Gompers, President of the National Federation of Labor, touched upon the allegation that women lose much of their charm when they enter the world of affairs.

"Though there may be some truth in this," said he, "it should be accounted a credit to them that they are willing to make such sacrifices to help those that are to follow them."

J. G. Phelps Stokes spoke of the unsanitary conditions in the tenements on the east side. In speaking of the so-called "lung blocks" he said:

"A little while ago there was a proposal to remove these breeding places of tuberculosis and substitute for them a public park. Who defeated the project? Men. They cared only for the dividends. If the ballot were given to women, these conditions would have been removed long ago."

A resolution offered by Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes was unanimously adopted. It urged the Judiciary Committees of the Assembly and Senate to submit to the voters the question extending the franchise.

HAD SIX SEWER CLAIMS.

But Brooklyn Woman Gave Them Up—Accused Lawyer's Trial.

The only witness yesterday before Judge Crane in Brooklyn in the trial of Lawyer William O. Miles, accused of conspiring to defraud the city by sewer claims, was Mrs. Josephine Kelly of 294 Wyckoff Street. She testified that she was induced by two of Miles's runners to make six sewer claims amounting to $2,187 early last year. The claims were made in the name of Max Borecka, a Pole.

Mrs. Kelly testified that she withdrew the claims, and that afterward John B. Scanlon, one of the men indicted with Miles, went to her and told her "it was all right."

District Attorney Clarke announced that he would take at least two weeks to present his case.

SIX SHOT AT CHURCH SOCIAL.

Man Killed and His Wife Fatally Wounded in Faction Fight.

BLUEFIELD, Va., March 27.—Bloodshed and death ended a social at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Coaldale, near here, to-night. One man was killed instantly, his wife had part of her head torn away by a shotgun and cannot recover, while four others received bullet wounds. The man killed was Benjamin Capely. Mrs. R. H. Harper was wounded in the side and Henry Garden was shot in the leg. The unknown men, who fled after the fight, were also slightly wounded.

There had been ill-feeling of long standing over the management of the fund which had been raised for the erection of a new church building. The dispute over the money resulted in two factions. At the social there was a clash between adherents of the rival factions, and it is said that a blow was struck. Instantly revolvers were produced and shooting began.

Mrs. Harper, Garden, and James Hotten were placed under arrest pending an investigation.

JOINT COAL COMMITTEE REPORTS DISAGREEMENT

Conference Adjourns Without Any Sign of Concessions.

PLAIN TALK FROM MITCHELL

Says Miners' Delegates Have Gone Out of Their Way to Comply with President Roosevelt's Request.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 27.—The Joint Scale Committee of the bituminous coal operators of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania to-day reported a disagreement to the joint conference of the Central Competitive District, and after a session of three hours the conference adjourned, to meet to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

The discussions and arguments presented during the afternoon established the fact that, so far as indications can determine, the opposing sides are no nearer to a wage agreement than they were in January, when the first conference was held. The present wage scale will expire Saturday, and unless an agreement is reached before its expiration 225,000 miners in the four States will be called from the mines.

President Mitchell of the miners opened the discussion in the joint conference after there had been a silence of ten minutes, during which each side was waiting for the other to make the first move. He said:

"Mr. Chairman: It was my expectation when we convened here this afternoon that some proposition looking to an adjustment of our difficulties would be submitted by the operators. It is evident that they have not agreed among themselves to submit for the consideration of this convention any proposition looking to an adjustment of our relations.

"Every one here who has heard the report read by the Secretary of the Joint Scale Committee will know that the miners, parties to that joint scale conference, have gone out of their way, have even assumed authority not vested in them by the miners' convention, to meet the grave and full responsibilities placed on them, not only as miners, but as countrymen and citizens, by the request and the suggestion of the President of our country. And it will become evident from the votes reported here by at least four of the States who must, and who rightfully shall, assume the responsibility for a disagreement if no settlement is reached.

"One State, one large producing State, has come in here, and voted for a restoration of the wage scale of 1903. That State has not only voted its entire production, but it has announced in addition thereto the intention to vote its mines in Ohio and Illinois in favor of an increase in wages. It seems to me, gentlemen, that instead of sitting quietly, the gentlemen from the operators' side ought to say something in defense of their position.

"And accepting all the responsibilities that may come to me personally without consultation with the gentlemen who employ me, I want to offer for the consideration of this convention a motion that, as a basis of settlement, there be a restoration of the scale, the mining scale and the day wage scale and the dead work scale of 1903."

J. H. Winder, Chairman of the operators, in reply to Mr. Mitchell, said: "If Pennsylvania offers you an advance in wages we are willing that it should pay this advance. But we cannot afford to pay it." He offered as a substitute to the miners' proposal a motion to adopt the present scale with all conditions existing at the time of its adoption, with the mining rate at Danville, Ill., for a base, and to include all cost of shooting, loading, timbering, and inspection of shots.

The substitute was seconded by Randolph Smith of Illinois.

Willington O'Connor, President of the Indiana miners, said he had in his pocket letters from Indiana operators wanting to pay the advance asked for.

Philip Penna of the Indiana operators said the Pennsylvania district had offered an advance because it could pay it. "If you will give us in Indiana and Illinois the same conditions that exist in that district, we will pay you the advance asked for," he said. Then, turning to Mr. O'Connor, Mr. Penna added:

"If you have letters from any Indiana operators belonging to the association offering to pay an advance, take the advance. I hate a scab operator as much as I hate a scab miner."

After a number of speeches by prominent exponents of each side, Philip Penna suggested the settlement of the differences by arbitration. He outlined no definite plan, however, and his suggestion was not further discussed.

An adjournment until to-morrow was taken without a vote on any proposition having been taken during the afternoon.

RAILROADS SEIZE COAL.

Miners in the Pittsburg District Eager to Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—All coal in transit on the railroads in this district was confiscated to-day by the railroad companies, which also are rushing empty cars of every description to the mines, to have them filled before Saturday.

Railroad and manufacturing concerns are convinced that everything is over and that they are facing a long shutdown. The miners of this district are enthusiastic for the strike. They have been working steadily for a long time. There is not a man in the district who has not been making from $3 a day up to $6, and they are in good shape for a fight.

President Patrick Dolan, who is in Indianapolis, wired local officials to-day to tell the men they do not need to prepare for a shutdown in this district, as a scale for the Pittsburg district will be made. This applies to the Pittsburg Coal Company mines. The independents say they will not sign it and will endeavor to operate their mines on the open-shop basis. Serious trouble is expected if this should prove to be the case, but the operators are confident that they can handle the situation with the State constabulary.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., March 27.—Coal company agents are scouring the farming districts near the anthracite coal fields for men to act as guards and firemen at the collieries, and they already have a number ready to hurry to the mines as soon as the strike is declared. In large cities the companies are engaging engineers, carpenters, and other skilled workmen, to be used in keeping the mines in good condition.

COAL OPERATORS WAITING.

Baer Says Mitchell Has Not Set a Date for a Conference.

George F. Baer, Chairman of the anthracite operators' committee of seven, came to New York yesterday and had a conference with President E. B. Thomas of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. No meeting of the operators' committee was held.

"I have received a letter from President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers," said Mr. Baer, "in which he says that he cannot at present fix a date for the conference with our committee, which he has asked for."

Mr. Baer said that the operators were waiting for developments, and could make no predictions as to what might happen.

"I have just heard," he said, "that the Scale Committee at Indianapolis has disagreed over the soft coal question. The public knows just as much as the operators as to what may or may not happen, as matters are at present."

For the first time since the strike scare began the price of domestic coal was raised yesterday by the dealers. It only affected Red Ash coal, which was raised from $6.50 to $6.75 a ton. Red Ash coal is used in open fireplaces. None of the other kinds of domestic anthracite was increased in price.

On behalf of the operators a statement was issued yesterday in support of the declaration made by President Willcox of the Delaware & Hudson Company that a general eight-hour workday in the anthracite district means not a general reduction in the hours actually worked, but a large general increase in wages. The statement says that the mines generally work between five and seven hours a day, and that it is not a matter of comment if a miner who goes to work at 7 o'clock in the morning "knocks off" three hours later.

LEITER READY FOR WAR.

Remounts Gatling Guns and Repairs Blockhouses at His Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

ZIEGLER, Ill., March 27.—This town, which is really the property of Joseph Leiter of Chicago, is again assuming the appearance of a war camp. Anticipating a coal strike and an attack on his non-union establishment, Leiter has taken steps to protect his property.

The gatling guns which he bought during the trouble of about a year ago have been remounted, and their range extends several hundred yards in every direction. Three block houses constructed during the former troubles have been repaired and remanned. Guards are stationed within a short distance of the guns, and extreme precautions are being taken to prevent a surprise in case union labor should decide to attack the plant.

ENTERPRISE BANK WARRANTS.

Further Arrests Expected to Follow Those of Last Two Days.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—In the face of denials by Government officials, it was learned to-night from an authoritative source that warrants have been issued for four other persons in connection with the collapse of the Enterprise National Bank last October.

These are in addition to the six persons now under arrest, five of whom were taken into custody yesterday, and the sixth, former Paying Teller Thomas W. Harvey, who surrendered himself to-day.

HADLEY'S INQUIRY DONE; GOT ALL HE WAS AFTER

Standard Lawyer Now Praises Missouri Attorney General.

SAYS TRUST GOT A FAIR DEAL

H. M. Tilford Tells of Standard Methods — Hagerman Thinks Federal Control Would Be Welcome.

The Standard Oil hearing, so far as New York is concerned, came to an end yesterday afternoon. The taking of testimony will be resumed in St. Louis on April 5, Attorney General Hadley of Missouri having still a few witnesses whom he wishes to examine. Then will come the introduction of witnesses by the respondent companies. The case will probably be argued before the Supreme Court of Missouri at the October term.

Mr. Hadley started back for Missouri last night with his assistant, Rush C. Lake, and Frank Hagerman, the Standard Oil lawyer from Kansas City. Judge Johnson, who, with Judge Priest, looks after the legal interests of H. Clay Pierce of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, took a night train for Washington, Judge Priest remaining in New York. Alfred D. Eddy, the Western counsel of Standard Oil, headed for Chicago.

"I have made my case," said Mr. Hadley just before he started for the railroad station. "I consider that I have proved every allegation contained in the information I filed. When the case is argued I will ask the Supreme Court of Missouri to render a decision which will punish Standard Oil for its violation of the laws of Missouri in the past and to impose conditions which will guarantee that corporation's compliance with the law's requirements in the future.

"The inquiry has already had the effect of forcing frankness on the part of the Standard in Iowa, Indiana, Nebraska, and my own State. In Iowa, Indiana, and Nebraska—I heard about Iowa to-day—the property of the Republic Oil Company is already being transferred to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Ownership of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of Missouri is admitted. Surely these moves mean the abandonment of the policy of subterfuge. No matter how the court rules, it has been demonstrated that the law has the power to penetrate evasion, and we in Missouri, at least, will know with whom we are dealing when we buy our oil.

"Before I leave New York I want to express my appreciation of the treatment that has been accorded to me here. As an individual and as the Attorney General of my State, unfailing fairness has been shown me. My thanks are particularly due to the newspapers of New York. Their reports of the inquiry have been unbiased, and when anybody tries to tell me that any other consideration than accuracy rules their columns I shall be found fighting for them. 'My experience has shown me that they hew to the line in gathering news, no matter where the chips fall."

Mr. Hagerman, too, had a word to say for the newspapers of New York. He had no fault to find with the manner in which the story of the inquiry has been treated, realizing, as he expresses it, that he is not on the "spectacular side."

Hagerman Praises Hadley.

"My friend Hadley," he said, "while he has been representing opposing interests, has given us Missourians cause to be proud. I have been much with him, and I feel that he is a credit to the State. I feel that I am honored when I introduce him to a stranger as the Missouri Attorney General, and I believe that there is a great future in store for him. It would be mighty good politics for any President to name him Attorney General of the United States."

Mr. Hagerman was not minded to discuss the probable effects of the disclosures which have attended the inquiry. He said that the corporation would have evidence to put on the records in its own behalf, and that of the witnesses who have already testified several will probably be recalled. John D. Archbold and Wade Hampton will take the stand again, according to Mr. Hagerman, ready to tell all they know about Standard Oil methods.

"There is no reason for attempting to muddle the situation," he said. "We shall make little effort to dispute the facts established by Mr. Hadley. Our aim will be to show that, while the conditions shown by him exist, there has been no violation of the law. Our battle will be strictly along legal lines.

"There has been no conference of Standard Oil lawyers as to the best policy to be observed in the future. When I advocated yesterday a policy of Federal control I was speaking for myself alone. I have not changed my views overnight. Some radical change in the treatment of industrial combinations is plainly necessary. In Missouri, corporations with over $10,000,000 capital are barred. In Illinois a corporation may be controlled by some other corporation, but may not own stock in another corporation. In another State no foreign corporation may operate.

"Some uniform law in the treatment of great aggregations of capital is inevitable. Under present conditions a certain amount of subterfuge is necessary on the part of the so-called trusts. The Illinois law shuts out the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey because it owns the controlling interest in the stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, but it permits the presence of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana because the stock of that corporation is owned by the New Jersey company. This law was undoubtedly passed to meet some particular condition, but it necessitates a subsidiary concern if the Standard Oil Company wants to do business in Illinois.

Federal Supervision.

"If the industrial corporations were chartered by the Federal Government and were only permitted to operate under Federal supervision, the inequalities in the laws of the several States could be done away with. There would be no chance to turn shady tricks in finance if a Government Inspector was apt to walk in at any time, as he may do into a National bank, and demand access to the books. Insurance companies, for instance, could not transfer stock which was worth only 75 on the market to some friendly concern at par on Jan. 1, for the purpose of showing that it was at par, and then buy it back at 75 on Jan. 2.

"The policy of publicity is the only policy. The people are entitled to know, and I really think that the trusts would be glad to do business in the open. They have been forced to the position they now occupy. The new day which is at hand will not be unwelcome to them.

"To get right down to bedrock we will have to get away from the idea that it is the function of Government to protect the small dealers. Under existing conditions great combinations of capital will unfailingly enjoy advantages over concerns not strong financially. The thing for the public to do is to protect the consumer. If everybody might know what profit was paid by any enterprise, competition would not be lacking when profits were abnormal."

Mr. Hagerman says he would really be an advocate of Government ownership if he could figure out how politics could be eliminated from the management of public utilities. He is unable to see, however, that such elimination is possible.

H. M. Tilford Testifies.

The first witness introduced at yesterday's hearing before Special Commissioner Sanborn was H. M. Tilford, the man who is credited by John D. Archbold as being best posted on Standard Oil in the West and Middle West. Mr. Tilford was called after Mr. Hagerman, as leading counsel for the Standard Oil, had handed to Attorney General Hadley a number of the letters and documents asked for Saturday. He said that no more could be found, and consented to the use of the copies in Mr. Hadley's possession where the originals were missing.

Mr. Tilford said he was the President of the Continental Oil Company, which did business in Colorado, and that he was also connected with another oil company, which did business in the Pacific States. He had offices at 26 Broadway, he said.

"Are you a member of the Domestic Trades Committee?" Mr. Hadley asked.

"I do not know what you mean by the term 'committee,'" Mr. Tilford replied.

"Does the Continental Oil Company do business in Missouri!"

"It does not."

Mr. Tilford could not recall a letter relative to changing certain accounts of the Standard Oil Company, and signed by the Domestic Trades Committee. He had no recollection of letters written Mr. Tinsley, Vice President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company from 1892 to 1900. He recalled an acquaintance with R. H. McNall, who had a desk in his office, after he had been named as commercial agent of the Waters-Pierce concern.

He admitted having sold his stock in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company at the time of its reorganization.

"I had one share, and got $900 for it," he said.

The witness said he knew L. D. Clark, Controller of the Standard Oil Company, and W. E. Beemis, another employe.

"Mr. Beemis keeps track of the statistics of the Standard Oil Company, doesn't he?"

"Yes."

Letters, some signed and others unsigned, written to or by the witness in connection with the business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, were shown Mr. Tilford. He could not identify them, despite the fact that they were initialed, not only by him, but by his brother, W. H. Tilford.

"What position does your brother hold?" asked Mr. Hadley.

"He is the Treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," was the reply.

The witness denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of R. H. McNall. He remembered that Mr. McNall left his employ in 1900 upon the reorganization of the Waters-Pierce Company. It was then developed that Mr. Tilford was principally concerned in the marketing of refined oil. Mr. Hadley read a number of letters purporting to be signed by him which had to do with the salary list of the Waters-Pierce Company. Some of them were identified by the witness.

Profits to the Penny.

Then two letters were read dealing with sales and transactions in wax and resin used as fuel. The letter showed that in a sale of 100,606 barrels of resin a gross profit of $279.18 had been made. The letters also showed that the Standard Oil people figured profit down to the smallest penny. They were signed by McNall, but had the initials of the witness on the corner. But despite that the witness could not recall the incident or transaction.

"Your initials were pretty well known in St. Louis, were they not?" inquired Mr. Hadley.

"I presume so," answered Mr. Tilford.

Next a letter signed by R. H. McNall, addressed to Vice President Druitt in St. Louis, was read, instructing that all future letters from the Waters-Pierce Company to the Standard Oil Company be sent out without signatures or names, and with only the dates and body of the letters. Copies, it was also suggested, should be made in the usual way, but that carbon copies be taken, leaving the signatures off.

A stenographer named Smith, who testified at the previous hearing, told how he took the carbon copies in the way suggested.

Although the letter in question was signed by R. H. McNall and initialed by Mr. Tilford, the latter could not recall any such letter, nor did he know that such a practice was ever in vogue.

A letter speaking of the existence of a code book of the Waters-Pierce Company was next read, and the witness said he found such a code book of the company, which he turned over to Mr. McNall as the representative of the company in New York.

H. C. Arnold, an accountant, in the employ of the Standard Oil, was examined at some length. His testimony showed Standard control of Waters-Pierce matters.

Max Palmedo, the process server, who was employed by Henry Wollman, Mr. Hadley's New York counsel, was next examined. He had a bad half hour with Lawyer Hagerman.

"What did you do when you first got the subpoenas?" Mr. Hadley asked him.

"I called at the offices of the men named and stated my business. Mr. Archbold, Mr. Moffatt, and Mr. Page accepted service voluntarily. It took me three days to serve H. H. Rogers, and from two to four days to serve the others."

The witness related his experiences in trying to serve John D. Rockefeller. He told how his arm had been caught in the door of Mr. Tilford's automobile when he threw his subpoena through the door.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hagerman, Palmedo said he received $6 a day and expenses for serving the subpoenas. The money he paid for information was included in his expenses.

"Information from whom?" Mr. Hagerman demanded.

"Household servants," was the answer.

Palmedo admitted having paid $5 to a servant of William Rockefeller, but, on the advice of Mr. Hadley, did not give the servant's name. He admitted selling news to several papers, but declined to say how much money he had made in this way.

"There has been a lot of sensationalism in this case," said Mr. Hagerman. "It got all the way out to Kansas City."

"The only sensationalism has been the efforts of Standard Oil officials to evade service of subpoenas, hasn't it?" interjected Mr. Hadley.

"Yes," the witness answered.

Henry E. Platt, an ex-employe of the Standard, was examined as to the methods in vogue at 26 Broadway, and the hearing was then closed.

Mr. Hadley said that there would be no further effort to serve witnesses in New York. This means that John D. Rockefeller is free to call upon his new grandson unmolested by process servers.

FIRST CASE UNDER NEW LAW.

Bankrupt Samuel Landau Arrested on Charge of Fraud.

Samuel Landau, a bankrupt, arrested on the charge of grand larceny, was held for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Steinert yesterday afternoon, in Jefferson Market Court, in $1,000 bail. Landau was a jobber in cotton goods at 419 Broadway. He originally made purchases for cash, and in that way built up a small credit. In May, 1905, he gave a statement of his financial condition to L. & E. Stirn and to the Gilbert Manufacturing Company, and shortly afterward failed, with no assets.

Landau is the first bankrupt to be arrested under Section 544 of the Penal Code, enacted last May. This section provides that a person making a statement in writing of his financial condition shall, on the application of the party extending credit, produce his books for examination within ten days, and if he does not do so, the presumption is that his statement is false.

At the instigation of James, Schell & Elkus, Landau was asked to produce his books, and did so.

In his statement he said he had $675 in the Monroe Bank. It is alleged that his books showed that in fact he had only $17. Subsequent investigations resulted in the arrest.

FOR HARLEM INSTITUTE.

Big Crowd Sees Opening of Fair to Boom Educational Enterprise.

A fair under the auspices of the Young Folks' League of the Uptown Talmud Torah and Educational Institute to help in raising $200,000 to build the Harlem Educational Institute, a training school similar to the Educational Alliance, began at Terrace Garden last night.

Acting Mayor McGowan set the ball rolling by offering Mayor McClellan's best wishes. He said the movement to raise money for the purpose in view should be commended by the entire city. There was a large attendance at the fair, which is to continue to-night and to-morrow night. Attorney General Mayer and Justice Greenbaum will speak on Thursday night.

The promoters of the new school have already purchased a site for a building in East 111th Street, near Lexington Avenue. It is intended that the new school shall accommodate 3,000 pupils. Music at the fair is being furnished by the boys of the Hebrew Shelter and Guardian Society.

Marriage of Mr. Shreiner of Brooklyn Last October Now Becomes Public.

Through the filing of a certificate yesterday in the office of the Bureau of Vital Statistics at South Orange, the marriage of Osmond Harvey Shreiner, aged 73 years, of 51 Cambridge Street, Brooklyn, to Miss Mary Lauderdale, 64 years old, of Philadelphia, was made public. The wedding took place at the home of Village Trustee Howland D. Perrine, 175 Montague Place, South Orange, on Oct. 2 last year. Mrs. Perrine is a daughter of the aged bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. George Lawrence Spining, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, South Orange.

Mr. Shreiner was a widower. On the back of the certificate Mr. and Mrs. Shreiner subscribed to the fact that they were respectively over 21 and 18 years of age.

Annual Spring opening display

THE moment you enter the doors of The Simpson Crawford store, you enter an atmosphere redolent with the vivifying odors of Spring. Thousands of blossoming flowers smile their welcome, and every aisle unfolds an enchanting vista. Trailing smilax winds about the great supporting pillars, climbs the walls and transforms every vacant spot of white into vivid green.

A great feature of the display represents the goddesses of Spring raising on bowed shoulders a massive vase loaded with flowers of every hue. This piece of statuary is located in the centre of the rotunda, and is one of the handsomest ever used in a store display—a real work of art, which only requires enduring marble to crown as a masterpiece.

Our Spring opening display is acknowledged to be the most brilliant exhibition of its kind ever seen in New York—gorgeous in varied colors of flowers and foliage, but more beautiful still are

The displays of Spring merchandise.

NICOLL CALLS HEARST TRAITOR AND SCOUNDREL

"Sneaked Into Our Headquarters and Then Stabbed Parker."

PRAISES LOYALTY OF BRYAN

"He Was Honest," Democratic Chairman Adds at Dinner—Acts of Hearst "Grossest Treachery."

De Lancey Nicoll, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, bitterly attacked William R. Hearst last night in a speech delivered at the regular monthly dinner of the Democratic Club. Mr. Nicoll denounced Hearst as "a traitor and a scoundrel" who had "sneaked into the National Committee headquarters in the last campaign, taken our money, occupied our rooms, stretched his feet under our mahogany, and then devoted his time to stabbing our candidate in the back."

The speech was delivered at the most important dinner held at the club this Winter, and with practically all of the club's "old guard" on hand. August Belmont, who was a member of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee, presided, and Mr. Nicoll sat on his left during the dinner. Mr. Nicoll started in a humorous vein to tell of the happenings connected with the management of the late Parker campaign of 1904, and the doings at the National Committee headquarters in the Century Building, in West Thirty-fourth Street. He told of the mass of documents sent out, mostly speeches of W. Bourke Cockran and Charles A. Towne in Congress. These, he said, had been sent out because Cockran and Towne had thought they would "educate the voters into supporting the Democratic ticket."

"But I guess that a campaign of education is no longer the real thing with us," said Mr. Nicoll laughingly. "There is one thing, however, of which we all had occasion to be proud in that campaign, and that was that whatever checks we drew were drawn on ourselves, and not on any one else, as has been shown recently to have been the case with our friends the enemy.

"Of all the occurrences at the National Headquarters in that campaign," continued Mr. Nicoll, growing serious, "there was only one that was unpleasant, but it was an affair that irritated and angered me deeply. It was the bureau that sneaked into our headquarters, and worked itself in with the German Bureau and the Hungarian Bureau and the Jewish Bureau and the Scandinavian Bureau and all the other bureaus that were scattered about the building, and finding fault and clashing with one another. It was the bureau that got our best rooms on the fourth floor, and hung out its banner across Thirty-fourth Street along with the banner of our own National Committee. And we paid for the whole thing!

"It was the bureau of William Randolph Hearst and Max Ihmsen, the crowd that control the Journal office. Hearst and Ihmsen came to me and said they wanted to come into our headquarters and work with us for the ticket, and I let them in, for I wanted everybody who was willing to help us in the fight. They occupied our rooms, ate at our board, stuck their feet under our mahogany, so to speak, and yet every hour they used to stick the knife deeper and deeper into the back of our candidate. Theirs was the grossest treachery, both to the candidate and to the platform, and, when reminiscing over the campaign, I want you never to forget this and never to support him.

"I contrast this Hearst record of infamy with the record of William J. Bryan in the same campaign, for I know a true Democrat from a false Democrat, although I was never a supporter of Mr. Bryan. In that campaign Mr. Bryan undertook to support loyally and with his magnificent eloquence the candidate of his party. In the convention he said we were too conservative; that our ideas were not sufficiently advanced; but when the ticket was made up and the platform written he spoke all over the country to his constituency and he supported the candidate magnificently. He did the honest thing. He could not control his following; no man could under all the circumstances as we now know them to have been, but he was honest in his efforts. He did not sneak into our headquarters, take our rooms, take our money, and then stab us in the dark as this traitor did.

"That was the difference between an honest man and a dishonest man and a scoundrel. I speak feelingly on this subject, but not because I am in politics or ever expect to be in politics again. I ran for office only twice in my life, and once was an independent. I never expect to be a candidate for office again, and I never expect again to go through a campaign as I went through the last campaign, when I spent five months of my time and many thousands of dollars of my own ill-gotten gains. But I resent the treatment that was accorded to Judge Parker, who was my friend, and at whose request I took up the campaign work that I did. In the future I expect to confine myself to promoting the interests of my friends, many of whom are here now, and I don't know if I am promoting their interests by speaking as I have spoken, but what I have said came from the heart. Mr. Belmont, next to me, advised against saying anything about this matter, but I broke loose and disregarded his advice, you see."

While Mr. Nicoll was speaking there were only two interruptions by slight applause. The members seemed to be alarmed, and, if they felt approval, they hesitated to show it. Mr. Belmont started to smooth things over when he arose after Mr. Nicoll's speech.

"I appreciate the last section of Mr. Nicoll's speech," he said. "It seems to let me out." Then, laughingly, he said: "All of you who approve the last sentence of his speech say 'Aye!'" There was a hearty response, and Mr. Belmont smiled his acknowledgments.

Judge O'Dwyer of the City Court, who spoke next, also paid his respects to the Hearst movement, and expressed his opinion of "traitors."

"I ought to speak guardedly to-night," he said, "because, while my friend Giegerich's term expires this year, my own term expires next year, and I need to be wary of my words. However, if men were traitors to our party in 1904, we have the remedy in our own hands. Our candidate in 1904 was an ideal candidate, and if thousands of Democrats were misled to opposite views, we never can forget it. The views expressed by Judge Parker in that campaign are now being vindicated daily. As for the man who now is preaching to the passions for his own personal ends, we have only to remember that in the long run the people and the party will stand only by the fellow who is true, honest, and loyal."

More than 100 were in the club dining room for the dinner. Some there were President John Fox, Peter F. Collier, Judge Warren W. Foster, Charles V. Fornes, Justice Gildersleeve, Randolph Guggenheimer, John B. McDonald, Thomas T. C. Crain, Willis Holly, Terence J. McManus, and William Harman Black, Mr. Belmont made a brief introductory speech. Congressman Charles A. Towne was the first speaker. He said that the present radical era was the reaction after National development.

"Where the point of safety is," he said, "is the only question. The people can be counted on, however, to return to the sound and oft-tried principles of the Democratic Party, and the next Congressional elections will, I believe, show a Democratic House."

Justice Giegerich followed, and confined his remarks to story telling. Lewis Nixon, Mr. Nicoll, Judge O'Dwyer, and President Fox were the other speakers.

STILL TAKES BUELOW'S ARM.

Kaiser and His Chancellor Are Apparently on Cordial Terms.

BERLIN, March 27.—Chancellor Bülow's relations with Emperor William have been the subject of much talk recently.

The Emperor, after his morning walk in the Tiergarten, usually calls at the Chancellor's Palace and walks up and down the garden with him. Residents of the houses overlooking the garden observe that his Majesty's attitude toward Prince Bülow does not differ from his former attitude. The Emperor takes the Chancellor's arm in the promenade or slaps him on the shoulder while talking animatedly.

HEINZE IN BREWERY MERGER.

Capital Stock of New Holding Company May Be $20,000,000.

The first definite step toward a New York brewery merger—back of which, it is rumored, is F. Augustus Heinze—was taken at a meeting of the stockholders of the Central Brewing Company held yesterday in the offices of the company at Sixty-eighth Street and the East River.

It was voted to instruct the Directors of the Central Brewing Company to proceed with the negotiations for a new holding company. The capital stock of the Central Brewing Company is to be turned over to the holding company on the basis of a proposal that for each share of stock, par value $100, double the value thereof should be paid in cash to the holder and, in addition, two shares should be given in the new holding company for each share of Central Brewing Company stock, the shares in the new company to be divided equally between common and preferred. It was also guaranteed that the preferred stock in the holding company would pay 6 per cent.

The promoters of the proposed merger have organized under the name of the Breweries Bond and Surety Company, but the title of the holding company has not yet been made public. The capitalization of the holding company, while not definitely decided upon, will be not less than $10,000,000, and may be $20,000,000.

David McClure, attorney for the Breweries Bond and Surety Company, explained that the new company would not increase the price of beer to the retailer, and would keep the present quality up to the standard.

B. F. Kearns, President of the Central Brewing Company, will be at the head of the holding company. The plans contemplate taking in at least eight of the breweries of the second class, gauged by output, in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

MAY BUY A MAINZ PSALTER.

American After a Copy Offered in Frankfort for $19,200.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 27.—A Frankfort antiquarian firm offers for sale the last copy that is ever likely to come into the market of the Mainz Psalter of 1457, the first printed book which bears a date and the names of the printers. It is a splendid copy, and the price asked for it is $19,200.

Dr. Schwenke of the Royal Library in this city raises the cry of the "American danger." He says that an American has already made an offer for the book and that the bargain is nearly completed. It will be a great pity, he says, if this misfortune is not averted, as the copy of the Psalter offered for sale is a particularly beautiful example of early printing. He asks if the treasure cannot be saved for the Royal Library through a donation by some wealthy German.

The Psalter was once the property of the noble Westerholt family of Austria.

WE SHOCK AUSTRIA AGAIN.

Mr. Root Just Writes That Mr. Storer Is No Longer Ambassador.

VIENNA, March 27.—The Foreign Office received this morning the following dispatch from Secretary of State Root:

"I have the honor to advise your Excellency that the President has been pleased to terminate at once and without any such delay as would be incidental to the transmission of a letter of recall by mail the authority of his Ambassador, Mr. Storer, to represent him. The President has accordingly recalled Mr. Storer, whose representative functions have already ceased. This action will be supplemented by a formal letter of recall, which already has been signed, and will be presented to you, in accordance with the former custom in such matters.

"Secretary Rives of the Viennese Embassy has been named as Chargé. I request your Excellency to receive him and treat him in that capacity."

Foreign Office officials stick to the opinion that there is no precedent for not regarding Mr. Storer as Ambassador as long as he stays in Vienna without having presented a letter of recall.

The Foreign Office to-night informed Secretary Rives that the Government would accept his nomination as Chargé until Ambassador Storer returned to Vienna, conditional upon Foreign Minister Goluchowski, who left to-day to attend his uncle's funeral in Galicia, making no other arrangement.

The key to the embarrassing situation is now in Mr. Storer's hands. He will reach Trieste to-morrow night, and proceed at once to Vienna. A letter of recall can only be presented, according to Court and diplomatic etiquette, by an Ambassador to the Emperor, and not to the Foreign Minister, and by no means by a Chargé. It is said that the simplest way to settle the somewhat difficult situation is for Mr. Storer not to stay in Vienna, while the letter of recall may later be presented by his successor, Mr. Francis.

The Foreign Office to-day stated that the Emperor this morning approved the appointment of Mr. Francis as Ambassador.

RIOT OVER A FRENCH PLAY.

Two Students and Two Officers Killed in Bucharest—400 Wounded.

BUCHAREST, March 27.—Serious street rioting occurred here last night and culminated in a conflict between the rioters and the troops, in which two officers and two rioters were killed and 250 rioters and 150 soldiers and police were wounded.

The trouble arose over a demonstration on the part of Roumanian Nationalists against the use of the French language in a performance at the National Theatre. The Ladies' Charity Society, which is under the patronage of the Princess Maria, wife of Prince Ferdinand, heir presumptive to the throne, advertised the production of a play in French, and thousands of Nationalists gathered about the theatre.

BRITISH CRIMINAL APPEAL.

Bill Creating a New Court Passed by the House of Lords.

LONDON, March 27.—The House of Lords to-day passed the second reading of the Criminal Appeal bill, which allows to a person convicted of a criminal offense the unrestricted right of appeal on all points and facts of law to the Court of Criminal Appeal, which will be organized under the bill. Heretofore a person convicted could only appeal on points of law, and Judges had the power to reserve a point.

The bill, though a radical departure, is generally supported.

Coming Here on the Carmania.

LONDON, March 27.—The Cunard liner Carmania, which sailed to-day from Liverpool, has among her passengers Ansel Oppenheim of Chicago, Sir Adolph Caron, Sir Alexander Hargreaves Brown and Lady Brown, and M. Shiraishi, general manager of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha, (Japanese Steamship Company.) The Carmania carries upward of 2,600 passengers, a large proportion of whom are emigrants.

Further Castellane Postponement.

PARIS, March 27.—The adjourned hearing of the Castellane divorce proceedings, set for March 31, has been postponed until April 28, owing ostensibly to the absence of the Countess at Biarritz and to the fact that Count Boni is engaged in an electoral campaign. The delay is really due to the desire of the parties to determine on the future business and domestic phases of the case before the court proceeds with the final hearing.

AMERICAN PLAN LEADS TO MOROCCO AGREEMENT

Police Inspection Proposal Adopted by All the Delegates.

OUR ENVOYS SAVE THE DAY

Compliments Showered on Mr. White and His Colleagues—Speedy End of the Conference Now Certain.

ALGECIRAS, March 27.—Ambassador White and the rest of the American delegation to the Conference on Moroccan Reforms were showered with compliments to-day for what is regarded as their sagacious intervention, which has assured a solution of the last remaining serious difficulty of the conference and a final settlement of one of the most delicate and complicated questions ever brought before an international conference for decision.

Austria's police proposal yesterday left the German and French delegates still occupying totally opposed positions relative to police inspection. Mr. White, seeing the danger of disagreement, took the initiative in an attempt to save the situation. He and his colleagues drew up a fresh scheme, laying down the proposition that the Inspector shall report simultaneously to both the Sultan and the Diplomatic Corps at Tangier, the latter having authority to order inquiries into the working of the Franco-Spanish police scheme, thus guaranteeing the carrying out of the conference's decision and safeguarding foreign interests and commercial transactions. The Diplomatic Corps, after informing the Sultan, may also at any time order the Inspector to inquire and report should any interested Government present a complaint.

Before presenting this plan to the committee Mr. White approached the principal delegates. The British, Italian, and Russian delegates unhesitatingly approved the proposal and promised to give their fullest support to it. Mr. White then conferred successively with the French and German delegates, who agreed as to the practicability of the idea, and consented to submit the scheme to their respective Governments, whose concurrence they consider to be virtually certain.

In the meantime the committee incorporated the scheme in its proposition for presentation to the full conference, which later adopted it provisionally, while awaiting the French Government's ratification, which, the delegates do not doubt, will be accorded.

The effect on the conference of the acceptance of the American suggestion was immediately noticeable. A change came over the hitherto strictly diplomatic relations of the French and German delegates, and they were photographed together on the hotel veranda. One of the neutral delegates present at the moment remarked: "That photograph constitutes the first signature of accord."

The successful action of the American delegates has made certain the speedy end of the labors of the conference.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Secretary Root and Mr. Hengelmüller, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, had a long conference at the State Department before the Cabinet meeting to-day, the Algeciras Conference, it is understood, being the subject discussed. Secretary Root has been supplementing the conferences at the White House between the President, himself, and diplomatic representatives of the great powers with private talks at the State Department with the Ambassadors, and undoubtedly these talks have had a decided effect upon the proceedings of the Moroccan Conference.

RUSSIAN REDS PLAN REVOLT.

Government Making Elaborate Preparations to Quell an Uprising.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—Despite the Government's assurance that another extensive outbreak in the immediate future is impossible there are indications that a big storm may break before Parliament meets.

The resentment against the terrible repressive measures of the Government is arousing the people, especially the workmen in the cities, to fury. This is playing into the hands of the revolutionists, who are planning a political strike and a general uprising. They believe that the right moment will come in mid-April.

At no time during the war was the War Office busier than now, when it is making dispositions to suppress the first evidences of rebellion. Machine guns and ammunition are being dispatched in every direction, troops are being shifted and concentrated at strategic points, armored trains are being stationed at the railroad centres, and ironclad automobiles are being sent to the larger cities for use in street riots.

Big Russian Exodus to America.

COPENHAGEN, March 27.—Russian emigration to America by way of Copenhagen is in full swing and constantly increasing. Last week 1,800 emigrants sailed. The United Steamship Company's advices from its agents at Libau say that the company may expect a weekly average by way of Copenhagen of 2,000 emigrants during the coming Spring in addition to large traffic via the German ports.

ADMITS HE IS KILLORAN.

Notorious American Thief Arraigned for Robbery in Vienna.

VIENNA, March 27.—The man who gave his name as James Howard when he was arrested in this city last October for robbing a depositor at the teller's window of a bank here of $4,000 to-day admitted to the Judge before whom he was arraigned his identity with Joseph Killoran, the American Post Office and bank robber.

Killoran, Charles Allen, George Carson, Sid Yennie, and Harry Russell in the Spring of 1895 robbed the Post Office at Springfield, Ill., of $5,000 in postage stamps and a quantity of wedding silverware, the property of the Postmaster's daughter. All five of the men were arrested in New York and committed to Ludlow Street Jail. On July 4, 1895, Killoran, Allen, and Russell walked out of the jail, terrifying the keepers with briar pipes, which were mistaken for revolvers.

Subsequently Killoran was recaptured and sent for a term of imprisonment to the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Chester, being discharged on the expiration of his sentence.

JAPANESE FAMINE FIGURES.

Number of Sufferers Calling for Aid Still Exceeds 1,000,000.

TOKIO, March 27.—The latest statistics procurable from the three prefectures most heavily affected by the famine are as follows:

Fukushima—A complete failure of the crops over two-thirds of the whole cultivated area. The sufferers number 483,588 out of a total population of 1,170,958.

Miyago—A complete crop failure affects nearly the whole cultivated area. The sufferers number 284,865 out of a population of 880,782.

Iwate—A total failure of the crops over nearly two-thirds of the whole cultivated area. The sufferers number 190,492 out of a population of 749,927.

The sufferers here mentioned are only those requiring immediate relief in the matter of food and clothing. Other prefectures are also more or less affected, especially Gumma. The total number of sufferers calling for aid exceeds 1,000,000. Assistance, both private and official, is active, but entirely inadequate to the necessities of the occasion.

BILLS OF LADING AS SECURITY.

Bankers Before House Committee Support the Townsend Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Bankers, railroad men, and shippers were represented before the House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce to-day, and gave various views in regard to the Townsend bill prescribing certain uniform requirements as to order bills of lading with a view to making them more secure as negotiable instruments. A delegation of the American Bankers' Association advocated the provisions of the bill that order bills of lading shall be issued as such, shall be negotiable, and the shipment of goods for which they are issued shall be delivered only upon the surrender of the bill of lading. William Ingle, cashier of the Merchants' National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, pointed out that at present carriers often failed to require the surrender of the bill on delivery of the shipment, with the result that these bills were sometimes negotiated with consequent loss to banks. Illustrating the general use of bills of lading as collateral for loans, he said two and a half billion dollars was loaned annually on this class of security.

APPROPRIATION BILL MUDDLE.

Prince and Hardwick Continue Their Raid on the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The House is getting into a fine muddle over the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill. When it came up to-day Representatives Prince and Hardwick continued their fight against every item, line, paragraph, or provision that was subject to the point of order. No sort of argument or appeal had any weight with them, and whenever they could make the point stick they insisted on it.

As a result they succeeded in striking out of the bill the entire appropriations for all the Sub-Treasuries except that at New York. For each of their attacks they found warrant in a statutory provision fixing the establishment at each of the Sub-Treasuries. New York was saved by the fact that some time ago a New Yorker succeeded in getting through a bill giving to the Secretary of the Treasury discretion as to the New York establishment and the number of its clerical employes.

The fight of Prince against the bill had its inception in the way members of the Appropriations Committee attacked the Military Appropriation bill, which Prince supported as a member of the Committee on Military Affairs. He has made a much more effective assault on this bill than they made on his, and the result is that it is now in such shape that only the heroic action of a special rule restoring the provisions that have fallen on the point of order can bring it back to anything like effectiveness.

WILLIAMS ASSAILS TARIFF.

Pictures Massachusetts Howling Vainly for Reform.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—John Sharp Williams, leader of the House Democrats, fired some caustic comments at Sereno E. Payne, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and floor leader of the Republicans, to-day, predicated on the letter of Payne to Representative McCall of Massachusetts, in which Payne at last announces unequivocally that there is no prospect of tariff revision in any particular at this session of Congress.

"We have all known for a long time," said Mr. Williams, "that the little coterie controlling the House had made up its mind that there should be no tariff revision, no matter what the exigency. That is why we are not surprised to see Massachusetts, staid, dignified Massachusetts, actually howling herself black in the face, but all unheeded. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Payne] gives as a reason for not revising the tariff a certain lack on his side of the chamber, the lack of a calm and judicial frame of mind. I had suspected for some time that the only calm and judicial framing ever done on his side was that of the tariff by the fellows who are benefited by it."

KILEY BIGAMY IN COURT.

A Motion to Strike Alleged Scandalous Statements from a Complaint.

The bigamy case, in which Thomas W. Kiley, the Brooklyn banker, was concerned, was revived in the Supreme Court in Kings yesterday. A motion was made to strike from the complaint in an action instituted against Kiley by Lawyer John S. Griffith for legal services certain statements claimed to be scandalous.

It appeared in the complaint that Flora A. Colt brought an action against Kiley to recover $250,000 damages, accusing him of having deceived her into a bigamous marriage. Mr. Griffith alleges that Mrs. Colt retained him under an agreement that he was to receive 25 per cent. of the amount recovered.

The suit, he asserts, was settled for $150,000, and of this amount $37,000 was due him. This is the sum sued for.

Decision was reserved.

MISS POILLON LOSES.

Hotel Men Who Want Her to Leave Not Held in Police Court.

Mark A. Wells, proprietor and manager, and C. L. Hall, a clerk, of the Hotel Barstow, at 17 East Twenty-seventh Street, appeared in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, in response to summonses obtained for them by Miss Charlotte Poillon, the athletic sister of Mrs. Katherine Poillon, who recently figured as plaintiff in a celebrated breach-of-promise case. Charlotte Poillon has an apartment on the twelfth floor of the hotel. She accused Wells and Hall of making annoying and insulting remarks about her and her sister whenever either was in hearing, with the object of making their stay in the hotel so unpleasant that they would leave.

Magistrate Steinert said he could entertain no complaint against Wells and Hall on the evidence presented, and advised Miss Poillon to take her grievances to a civil court.

A WATER TRAFFIC SQUAD.

Something's Going to be Done to Police New York's Harbor.

Visions of harbor conditions as crowded and riotous as Eldridge Street in holiday time have actuated the Department of Commerce and Labor to appoint a committee to try to straighten out anchorage grounds and establish the same decorum on water as the police traffic squad attempts on the street. For a year complaints from steamship owners and dock companies have poured into the office of the Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels that they are hampered by the swarm of small craft which ignore channels, right of way, and are where they ought not to be.

This committee was appointed yesterday to revise anchorages and restore more order in the harbor: Assistant Secretary Lawrence O. Murray, Chairman; Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain, Capt. Newcombe, Anchorage Officer of New York Harbor; Capt. McKensie, Inspector of the Third District of the Lighthouse Service, and Capt. Ira Harris, Supervising Inspector of Steam Vessels.

Regular hearings, at which railroads, seamship companies, and others will be heard, are to be held, to inform the committee just what is needed in the way of a water "traffic squad."

Capt. Harris said yesterday that the squad was made necessary by the great number of motor boats built and building. One hundred thousand new ones would be turned out this year, he added.

CANNON AGAIN ASSAILED ANSWERS SHACKLEFORD

Missouri Representative Concludes His Interrupted Attack.

APPEALS FOR PENSION BILL

Demands That the Speaker Lift His Hand Off the Old Soldier and Let the House Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—While the House was discussing the Urgent Deficiency bill to-day Mr. Shackleford of Missouri got the floor and completed the attack on Speaker Cannon which he had partly delivered last week when he was cut off by an objection which terminated the consideration of the bill then pending. The House was in Committee of the Whole to-day, with Representative Olcott of New York in the chair. Speaker Cannon occupied a seat on the floor and listened closely to what Shackleford had to say.

"I arose a few days ago," began Shackleford, "to address the Speaker in behalf of my colleague, Mr. Rhodes, and his bill for the relief of the Missouri soldiers of the civil war. I was indulging in some preliminary remarks in criticism of the arbitrary methods of the Speaker when I was ruled off the floor.

"My colleague, Mr. Rhodes, has introduced a bill giving a pensionable status to the Missouri soldiers who rallied around the flag in the war of the rebellion. One or another of us has introduced this bill into every Congress for twenty-five years. It has always been smothered in commitee. These old soldiers are suffering as they stand upon the brink of the grave and raise their voices to Congress for relief. Hear their voices, Mr. Speaker. Nobody obstructs them but you. All they ask of you is that you permit the House to vote. Take your heavy hand off the old soldier, Mr. Speaker, and let my colleague, Mr. Rhodes, call up his bill."

"Just a second, Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Cannon, when Mr. Shackleford had concluded. "I have listened to the gentleman from Missouri. If it affords him any consolation to make me a stalking horse on account of his quarrel with the minority leader, well and good."

There was a burst of applause at this which nearly drowned the retort of Mr. Shackleford, who said:

"I deny that my quarrel with you has any such foundation."

That ended the incident.

PRESIDENT ON NIAGARA.

Mr. Roosevelt Recommends Adoption of Waterways Commission Report.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—In submitting to the Senate and the House of Representatives the report of the members of the International Waterways Commission regarding the preservation of Niagara Falls, President Roosevelt sent to-day a recommendation that a law be enacted along the lines of the recommendations of the report. The report of the commission has been published. The message of the President follows:

> To the Senate and House of Representatives:
>
> I submit to you herewith the report of the American members of the International Waterways Commission regarding the preservation of Niagara Falls. I also submit to you certain letters from the Secretary of State and the Secretary of War, including memoranda showing what has been attempted by the Department of State in the effort to secure the preservation of the Falls by treaty.
>
> I earnestly recommend that Congress enact into law the suggestions of the American members of the International Waterways Commission for the preservation of Niagara Falls, without waiting for the negotiation of a treaty. The law can be put in such form that it will lapse, say in three years, provided that during that time no international agreement has been reached. But in any event I hope that this Nation will make it evident that it is doing all in its power to preserve the great scenic wonder, the existence of which, unharmed, should be a matter of pride to every dweller on this continent.

SERENADER LOCKED UP.

Oditte's Romantic Guitar Playing Did Not Please Policeman Brady.

Masse Oditte, a young Italian, who says he loves a maiden living at 2,043 First Avenue, whose name he declines to give, stood beneath her window at midnight last night, and, strumming a guitar, began to serenade her. A crowd collected, and Policeman Brady appeared.

"What's all this?" asked the policeman.

"Its 'Sweet Marie,'" answered the youth.

"Cut that Marie business out. What're you doing here, anyhow?"

"Ah," responded the sentimental youth, "I serenade my love. I make the great music."

"You'd better come over and sing to the Sergeant," said Brady, and he took Oditte to the station.

"What's your name?" asked the Sergeant.

"Oditte," answered the boy.

"Oh, did he?" asked the Sergeant of Brady.

"Sure he did," responded Brady. Then they locked up Oditte and his guitar on a charge of disorderly conduct.

LIFE LOST ON THE PLYMOUTH.

Fainting Engineer Had to be Abandoned—Property Loss $1,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, March 27.—One life was lost in the fire which destroyed the Fall River Line steamship Plymouth at her dock here this morning. The victim was an engineer named Lucine Lamothe, a Frenchman, who lived in New York. The spread of the fire was so rapid that Chief Engineer McKelvie and his fireroom force managed to escape only with great difficulty, and lost all their clothing and personal effects save what they had on.

While the men were making their escape Lamothe lagged behind, being apparently overcome by the smoke, and, although his companions attempted several times to help him along, they were finally obliged to look out for their own safety and abandon him. His charred body was found this morning.

The officials of the company are at a loss to account for the cause of the fire, which caused damage estimated at fully $1,000,000.

DOWN TOWN BRANCH, BROADWAY & LISPENARD STREET OPENS UPON COMPLETION OF ALTERATIONS

SANDS DISPUTES WADE.

Points Out "Inaccuracies" in Assemblyman's Mortgage Tax Views.

B. Aymar Sands, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, took occasion yesterday to point out what he asserted were "the inaccuracies in most of the statements made on Monday by Assemblyman Wade, Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Taxation, when the amendments to the amendments to the Mortgage Tax bill were under discussion in the Assembly."

Mr. Wade is quoted as having said: "The money lenders are taking mortgages on demand and not paying the tax, waiting until June 30 next to see if it is necessary to pay such taxes, but expecting that the Dowling bill will go through, and they will escape payment."

"The so-called Page-Dowling bill," said Mr. Sands, "which has the general support of real estate people, and which was the bill under discussion, contains sections the effect of which will be to keep the present law in force as to all mortgages made between July 1, 1905, and July 1, 1906, until the taxes imposed by that law are paid. This will prevent the holders of mortgages made payable on demand or for a short time from escaping the payment of the annual taxes.

"Mr. Wade has offered an amendment to the proposed Recording Tax bill, providing that no agreement should be made whereby the mortgageors should pay that tax, under penalty of forfeiture of the principal. This, in my judgment, is a very unwise provision, as it is likely to have the same effect as the present law and to increase in many cases the rate of interest over the amount of the tax. It will also have the tendency to throw a doubt upon the validity of each mortgage and to deter investors from entering the mortgage market."

BISHOP POTTER GIVES $5,000.

Sends Subscription from Egypt for Cathedral of St. John.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, was elected a member of the Board of Trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at a meeting yesterday at the residence of Coadjutor Bishop Greer, 7 Gramercy Park.

A letter dated Cairo, Egypt, was received from Bishop Potter, inclosing a subscription of $5,000 toward the $100,000 fund to be raised to pay for the construction of what is known as the "cross" in the new cathedral.

The "cross" is that part of the structure where the two great aisles intersect, and is to be the part of the cathedral next completed. Bishop Potter's subscription is the first to the fund.

GRADY SCORES IN FIGHT OVER THE FREE PASS BILL

Brackett's Measure as Amended Advanced to Third Reading.

LEGISLATORS TO SAVE FARES

Grady Rejoices That the Reform Wave Has Passed Over His Head—Brackett Angered.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—After a continuous fight of over an hour in the Senate to-day, Senator Grady succeeded, despite the vigorous opposition of Senator Brackett, in having advanced to third reading the bill relating to the giving of passes by railroad companies. The bill was passed in its amended form, which provides that the railroads shall carry free any State officers traveling on official business of the State when certified to by the Secretary of State.

While the bill was being debated in Committee of the Whole, Brackett, by calling for a rising vote, succeeded in having eliminated the amendment relating to the free transportation of legislators. The vote stood 18 to 15. When the question came up on the acceptance by the Senate of the report of the Committee of the Whole, Grady objected, and on a yea and nay vote the amendment was reinserted in the bill, 23 to 19, and in this form it went on the third reading calendar. The indications are that the bill will pass in this form.

Brackett's original bill provided that railroads should not give passes to any one except its own employes under any circumstances, and so he was annoyed when the bill was reported out of the Railroad Committee with an amendment which, he asserted, destroyed its entire intention, and which would make it appear that he was fathering a measure which he distinctly opposed. He said last week when the bill as amended was reported out that he "would hate to own paternity to a brat like that."

Brackett was defeated to-day mainly because he seriously put forth the proposition that every Senator was entitled to a vote of the Senate on his bill in unamended form. This aroused the opposition of Senators whose bills had been amended time and time again by Brackett himself. They claimed that there was no reason for any reference to a committee unless the purposes of amendment were understood.

In the course of the debate, Brackett said that the giving of passes not only robbed the stockholders, but led to the debauchery of public officials and to favoritism toward individuals. He said that if any one wanted to introduce a bill to make the railroads carry legislators free, well and good, but that no such amendment should be tacked on to his bill.

"What we want in this chamber," said Grady, in speaking for the amendments, "are a lot of clouds. We are getting so good here that we should be floating in the ether, each with a harp in his hand and each singing his own praises if he has nothing else to sing about. I'm glad that this reform wave has passed over me and left me untouched. I don't want before my time to be regarded as a white-robed spirit spreading benedictions broadcast."

Senator Raines sided with Grady, and said he did not believe that the people of the State would have any serious objections to having the railroads carry free their representatives in the Legislature when they were traveling on official business.

FOR LAW'S DELAY BILLS.

New York Business Men Appear Before Assembly Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Committees representing the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' Association of New York appeared before the Assembly Judiciary Committee to-day in favor of the Wainwright Law's Delay bills, the most important of which provides for the appointment of Supreme Court Commissioners to take the place of referees.

In the delegation were Edward M. Grout, Eugene A. Philbin, Henry W. Jessup, and Frederic B. De Berard of the Merchants' Association, and J. Noble Hayes, C. Adolph Low, Charles W. Jessup, Ralph L. Shainwald, J. H. Wood, F. B. Thurber, and P. S. Straus of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Wainwright said that the calendars were so crowded with cases that the need for legislation to facilitate the work of the courts was imperative. The bills, he said, had been before the Legislature several years, and each year the need for them increased.

Mr. Hayes said there were 10,000 untried cases in Manhattan and 80,000 in Brooklyn. Mr. Grout and Henry W. Jessup also spoke for the measure.

AGAINST MORE BOARDS.

Dr. Darlington Attacks Bill for Brooklyn Health Department.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Health Commissioner Darlington appeared before the Assembly Cities Committee to-day in opposition to the bill introduced by Mr. Dowling of Kings, which seeks to create a separate Department of Health for Brooklyn and Queens, with a Commissioner in charge, leaving Manhattan, Richmond, and the Bronx to Dr. Darlington.

Dr. Darlington's contentions against the bill were supported by Lawrence Veiller of the City Club and ex-Senator Guy of the Corporation Counsel's office.

The points made by Dr. Darlington were that the bill meant a policy of decentralization, confusion in administration, increased expense, and lessened efficiency.

TO STOP ACCIDENT FRAUDS.

Bill Aimed at "Ambulance Chasers" Advocated at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Assemblyman Wemple's bill, which seeks to break up the practice of "ambulance chasing," was advocated before the Assembly Judiciary Committee to-day by Robert B. Armstrong, ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and President of the Casualty Company of America. Mr. Armstrong is also the organizer of the alliance against accident frauds, which has been established throughout the country, and which has had bills similar to the Wemple measure passed in Massachusetts, Maryland, and other States.

WOULD ADJOURN IN APRIL.

Assembly Leaders, However, Doubt Whether the Senate Will Agree.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 27.—Adjournment was the theme of a council of Assembly leaders held this noon in the Speaker's room. It was decided to draw up a concurrent resolution for final adjournment on either April 14 or 21. There is no hope, however, among the House leaders that the Senate will concur whichever date is fixed.

Those in the conference to-day gave it as their opinion that the Senate would no doubt amend the resolution placing adjournment at least two weeks later.

Church Trustees Are Summoned.

The Trustees are ordered to appear before Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court next Thursday. Church property rights are in dispute.

SPRIGGS GETS 20 YEARS.

Woman Associate 10—In Other States, Judge Says, He'd Have Been Lynched.

Judge Cowing, in General Sessions yesterday, sentenced Robert H. Spriggs, the negro dive keeper and petty politician found guilty of abduction, to twenty years in the State prison. In doing so he said that in a community where law and order were not so well safeguarded the defendant would probably have been lynched.

The punishment meted out to Spriggs was the maximum provided by law for the crime of abduction as a second offense. Sally Bennett, Spriggs's partner, who had pleaded guilty to a similar charge as a first offense, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, which again was as much as the law permitted.

Spriggs showed the same stony-faced indifference to the proceedings that characterized him through the trial. Not a muscle in his face moved when he heard the sentence that confined him within prison walls for the greater part, if not all, of his life. He stood with arms crossed over his chest, staring angrily at the court.

John R. Heinzelman, his counsel, moved for a new trial and for arrest of judgment.

"No, I'm going to sentence him to-day," rejoined the court.

"Give us twenty-four hours," pleaded the lawyer.

"Not another minute," was the court's reply. Judge Cowing then turned to the prisoner at the bar and said:

"Spriggs, I doubt whether one could find in this great city a person more devoid of any sense of honor than you. You stand before me a living example of the lowest kind of depravity. If you lived in some States, where law is not as well observed in all its details as it is in this community, you may be sure that the slow administration of criminal justice would never have been allowed in your case. As a warning to others, if there be any such in your business in this city, I am going to give you the maximum penalty. That punishment is not severe enough for the kind of crime you are convicted of."

In sentencing the Bennett woman, who sobbed during the ordeal, Judge Cowing said:

"I believe you have been a party to the death of many women who have been lured by you into the places you kept."

Assistant District Attorney Garvan informed the court that the defendant had collected life insurance on two white women who had died within twenty-four hours of each other in one of her houses.

CRANE RAPS TRANSFER RULE.

It Ought to Go, He Says—Lenient to Man Who Punched Conductor.

Thomas O'Brien, conductor on a Columbus Avenue car, will in future take a second look at the male passengers to whom he gives superfluous talk. John Ryan, a Columbia student and one of the college's crack athletes, was a passenger on O'Brien's car Monday. He declared that instead of getting a transfer, when he paid his fare in five red pennies, he got bad language. He punched O'Brien all over the car, and when arraigned before Magistrate Crane yesterday morning was let off with a fine of $3.

Magistrate Crane, in putting the fine at that small figure, condemned the behavior of street car conductors in the matter of transfers and declared that the new transfer rule was a bad one and the company would have more trouble over it.

"One of the conductors spoke so harshly to my little daughter recently, when she offered him pennies for her fare," said the Magistrate, "that she came home in tears."

"I wish we could find that man," said counsel for the company. "He would surely be punished."

"I do, too," replied the Magistrate. "Your new transfer rule works great hardship and injustice. The company should not refuse a transfer at any time. It cannot makes rules which embarrass the public upon which it is dependent for its profits. The tendency of corporations is to take all they can until they are held up. The rule should be abrogated."

President White testified that the infringing device was discarded by his company months before the suit was instituted.

JUDGE COHEN TELLS JEWS OF THEIR WEAKNESSES

Warns Them Against the Arrogance of the Purse-Proud.

LAUDS SIMPLE MANNERS

Prejudice Against the Jew a Great Stimulus, Oscar S. Straus Tells Temple Beth-El Club.

At the first meeting of the Temple Beth-El Club, which was held in Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, last evening, ex-Justice William N. Cohen of the Supreme Court was one of the speakers on the subject, "The Function of the Synagogue in America," and his speech made a sensation.

"This club, as I understand it," said Judge Cohen, "is to have a twofold purpose. I would not arrogate to myself to speak to you of the religious phase of it in the presence of Dr. Schulman, your pastor. Religion, we are told, means morality—or ethics touched with emotion. Patriotism, they say, means loyalty to one's country coupled with enthusiasm. There is no trouble about our emotion—we are an emotional people, a neurasthenic people, I fear.

"This club, it seems to me, will do well to emphasize the social side of life. It will do well to be practical. It was Matthew Arnold who said that three-quarters of human life is conduct. That comes pretty near being the whole of it. A man may be a religious man, a moral man, and yet lacking the proper conduct he will get along rather poorly with his fellow-man. Let me give you an illustration of what I mean.

"When a stranger enters a Christian church he is very apt to be singled out. Some one is careful to hand him a hymn book. At the door they lie in wait for him. 'Are you a stranger here?' they ask him. 'Yes? Come and see me; here's my card. My pew is that one over there. You are welcome to occupy it when you come again.'

"Now that is not so with us. We are rightfully proud of our religion. We are apt to think that we have all the good. Well, we haven't. There is good in every religion. We keep a good deal to ourselves—and that's not a bad thing. Our family ties are very strong, very close, and that's a good thing. I would not be understood as being ashamed of these qualities. On the contrary, I am proud of them.

"There is one thing I would like to speak to you about, however. It's the question of manners. If there is one thing which a Jew lacks, I think it is simplicity. The rich Jew gets to be a pretty arrogant sort of a person; he gets purse proud. He gives tithes to charity, and thinks he has done enough. He rivals his fellow-Jew in a show of splendor. To sit at the table of a rich Jew is sure to bring on indigestion if you sit at his table often enough.

"The truth is we are overfed; we live too well. We force too much blood into our stomachs and too little into our head. Don't do that. Cultivate simplicity. Let us have less loudness, less obtrusiveness—don't put your nose in everybody's business. Now, don't think me a bad Jew because I am a critical Jew."

At this point ex-Judge Cohen explained that he had already apologized to Dr. Schulman, who was to succeed him as a speaker, for being compelled to go, as he had an engagement to fill. As he walked out there was a slight ripple of applause.

Oscar S. Straus said that the Jew was remarkable for his high ideals, although the world at large seemed to doubt this. "The Jew is believed to be above all peoples materialistic," he said. "This merely seems to be so. Many of our people have been so hard-pressed, have had so hard a struggle, a struggle for a living, and for what is called the almighty dollar, that their ideals have been pretty well subjugated. It is possible that in some cases they have been entirely crushed out.

"Now, this is where the benefits of religion become useful to our characters—this is where the synagogue and its functions can be made to tell. To be religious is to raise your ideals.

"There is a good deal of talk among our people of prejudice. It is overstated, overestimated, at least in this country. But prejudice stimulates. No man suffers from it but he is a little better from it. For the benefit of the average Jew I would not remove it. There is some complaint—I have heard it—that some of our richer Jews cannot get into the so-called 400. I would not lower the bars for them if I could; I would not have them mingle with that life of idle flippancy.

"A Scotch Presbyterian asked me the other day what is the secret of the Jews' materialistic prosperity. I told him, first, that it was in the main overestimated. Then I employed the Socratic method on him.

"'You are a Scotch Presbyterian?' I asked.

"'Yes.'

"'You were born in England?'"

"'Yes.'

"'Was there prejudice against you in England because you did not belong to the Church of England, and did you feel it?'

"'Oh, yes,' was the reply. 'Did it discourage or stimulate you?'

"'I must confess that it stimulated me.'

"'Multiply that by 100, and you will get the stimulus of the Jew,' I replied."

The Rev. Dr. S. Schulman, rabbi of the temple, referred to the remarks by ex-Justice Cohen, saying that the Jew's mission was a higher one than to exert his greatest efforts in the direction of correcting his peccadilloes.

VETERANS HONOR WHEELER.

Services for the Dead Leader Held at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 27.—Uniting in a tribute of veneration to the memory of Gen. Joseph Wheeler, a leader in two wars, his comrades and former foes in the civil war and his followers in the war with Spain gathered here yesterday and joined in such a celebration as is accorded to few men in military or civil life. Roused to enthusiasm by the words of Gen. Wheeler's friend and associate in war and peace, ex-Congressman John W. Maddox, the old soldiers shouted themselves hoarse. Stirred by the tribute of "Corporal" James Tanner, Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, they stood in their places and cheered, waving hats and handkerchiefs. Nearly 500 Confederate veterans were present, with a third of that number representing the Northern armies.

Accused Deputy Clerk Will Get the "Benefit of Every Doubt."

Thomas F. Smith, chief clerk of the City Court, closed the hearing yesterday in the case of Deputy Clerk Edward G. Tully, who is charged with permitting William H. Tillinghast to serve on street railway damage suit juries when he was not on the regular panel of jurors.

In a confession made some weeks ago Tillinghast swore that he was in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. Tillinghast also represented himself as a juror named Henderson, and for that he was sent to the penitentiary for three months.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Tully, moved that the charges be dismissed. On this motion the chief clerk reserved decision and gave counsel ten days in which to submit briefs.

In discussing the briefs Mr. Smith said: "I have made up my mind to one thing: Tully will get the benefit of every doubt."

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE, AS A GERMAN SEES IT

Not Warlike, but Aims to Keep Doors Open for Trade.

WANTS NO MORE IN MOROCCO

England Accused of Pretending to be a Peacemaker While Trying to Embroil France and Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the time of the Anglo-German naval demonstration against Venezuela some years ago, when a majority of the American newspapers bitterly assailed Germany, and, despite the solemn assurances of the Emperor, attributed to him wrong motives in whatever he did, you were kind enough to give publicity in your columns to the German view of the case as I presented it.

Later events have shown that my statements were correct; that he was neither a war lord nor a land grabber, acting a part, but was doing merely what the head of any self-respecting nation, after exhausting all peaceful means, would be compelled to do in dealing with a man of Castro's calibre.

I have often wondered since whether some of the American writers who entered the arena as champions for Mr. Bowen in his noble alliance with President Castro, and who, incidentally, heaped insults on Germany, have taken time to consider the responsibility they incurred in thus leading astray the public mind.

The Moroccan situation offers another instance where, in my firm belief, the public is being misinformed, with the result that Germany's position would seem equivocal—a situation where the Emperor again is being looked upon as the war lord and seeking to create trouble that would afford him an excuse for unleashing his army, which, according to his critics, has had no opportunity to show its efficiency in the last thirty-four years. This view receives credit despite the fact that if the Emperor really desired war he could have had it long ago, and despite the fact that he undoubtedly is bending every effort to settle this Moroccan question in a peaceful way. The trouble is that comparatively few appear to understand the underlying conditions.

The Two Questions.

In the last ten or twenty years, the two foremost questions at issue in European politics have been the Anglo-Russian question and the Egyptian question. The first of these questions arose from the efforts put forth by England to prevent Russia from gaining an outlet to the sea, first in Constantinople, later in Persia, and, finally, in Manchuria and Korea, when England came out as the ally of Japan in her effort to drive Russia back from the Chinese seas.

The second controversy grew out of the English protectorate in Egypt, established under promise that England would evacuate as soon as circumstances should permit, and the incessant efforts made by France, whose interests had gradually been pushed aside by Great Britain, to force the British game, thus bringing matters dangerously near a serious crisis at the time of the Fashoda incident.

As Japan has whipped Russia, fighting the battle which otherwise England sooner or later would have been forced to fight herself in India, the Egyptian question naturally came up for settlement next. Here, clearly, a deal was concluded between France and England, France agreeing to leave Egypt to England and England agreeing, in return, to back France in her endeavors to establish for herself a peaceful police occupation in Morocco which, like England's occupation of Egypt, would ultimately lead to a permanent protectorate.

There existed, unfortunately, a treaty regulating the relations of European powers to Morocco. But, protected by the Franco-Russian alliance and the understanding with England, M. Delcassé felt certain that, whatever policy he might adopt, Germany would be unable to do anything but "bear it and grin."

The situation changed when Russia displayed her military weakness in the Far Eastern struggle, on the one hand, and, on the other—for want of money—began to evince desire for a closer friendship with Germany. The Emperor then considered the time at hand to protest against the deliberate violation of a compact to which he had been a party and to place the situation squarely before the eyes of the civilized nations of the world, that they may judge for themselves. It has frequently been asserted in the American newspapers that Germany had no business to interfere in Morocco, but people do not seem to realize that Germany, with her 60,000,000 of inhabitants and a country by nature poor, must have an outlet for her commerce, and therefore cannot permit any door that as yet remains open to be closed to her trade.

Territorial Acquisitions.

The population of Germany has increased since 1871 by 23,000,000. In the same period her colonies have grown only by about 370,000 square kilometers. The population of France has grown by only 3,500,000. Her increase in territory since 1888 has been 7,870,000 square miles. England's increase in the same time has been enormous.

The chief claim of France upon Morocco is that Morocco adjoins her territory in Tunis and that therefore, to protect her interests in Tunis, she must predominate in Morroco. This theory—that because you are a neighbor you have the right to own—is extremely dangerous, because after you have absorbed your neighbor, your neighbor's neighbor, by the same theory, would be next in turn to be swallowed.

At least, this theory should be honest. But it is well known in France—and it is a wonder this fact has not been brought out long ago—that Bu Hamara, the Moorish Pretender and creator of the Moroccan unrest, is owned by the French. Moreover, this same Pretender, who already practically controls two-thirds of the Moroccan Empire, has established his base of operations at the French frontier and gets his supply of arms and ammunition, not from the coast, which is still under the control of the Sultan, but from the French frontier. There is a big Algerian company, owned by French interests, which, with others, does this very lucrative business of selling arms and ammunition across the frontier.

Incidentally, both the French Minister of War, M. Etienne, and the Minister of the Navy, M. Thompson, are deputies from Algeria. Both have very large interests in this country, and there are those who profess to know that both are heavily interested in the company that supplies arms to the Moorish Pretender.

When they know these facts, I am sure some of THE TIMES'S readers will take a different view, both of the innocent attitude of France in "acting solely in defence of her frontier," and of England's "impartial attempts to act as a peacemaker," while as a matter of fact she is an interested party in carrying out the deal. Add to this the urgent need of Russia to raise a very heavy loan in France, and Germany's isolation at this juncture should need no further explanation.

It is to be hoped that the Algeciras Conference, in spite of its tedious work and its deadlocks, will ultimately reach an agreement.

Germany and Morocco.

Germany asks only for a guarantee that neutrality be assured to a certain extent, at least, in the policing of Morocco. She has, furthermore, sought to defeat certain efforts to make the State bank a French monopoly, because through this medium France would, sooner or later be the absolute ruler of the country, and in a position to close the door. These demands by Germany are morally justified throughout, and the United States, if considering its own interests, should be satisfied with nothing less. Germany merely asks that the door be left ajar. If she succeeds in this, in spite of having such a strong combination against her, she will have gained her purpose, though the result may look like a diplomatic defeat.

My object in writing these lines is a twofold one.

The one is to draw the public's attention to this Moorish Pretender, Bu Hamara, whom certainly it will be interesting to watch. Whether France, after getting the bigger end of the "big stick" in Morocco by her police powers, will really protect the Sultan from this Pretender, who is France's friend, or whether the Pretender is going to gobble up the Sultan, will be of interest to Europe and to the United States to know.

When we read in a New York paper, as we did yesterday, that it is Germany who is backing this Pretender to create trouble, while as a matter of fact Germany has her strongest hold on the Moroccan situation by having backed the Sultan, his adversary, we have only one more instance of the idiotic stories that constantly are not only told, but—what is worse—receive credence.

Germany Not Aggressive.

Another object of this letter is to banish from the public mind the superstition that Germany has warlike and aggressive motives behind all her acts as a Nation. Germany has done more than any other big nation for the last thirty-five years to keep out of war.

I read about a week ago that Germany is responsible for China's hostile attitude toward the United States. We also read that Germany brought about the war between Japan and Russia, and that it was the German Emperor who tried to keep the Czar from granting reforms. Persons having access to inside sources of information know the opposite to have been the case.

Germany has been trying her best for the last ten years to regain the friendship and confidence of France, and there is no doubt that the relations between the two countries had improved beyond all expectations. It was at this juncture that England's diplomacy succeeded in bringing about the Moroccan deal, thereby destroying for years to come all hopes for a "rapprochement" between France and Germany.

I always wonder that people do not realize more fully the joy—I may say the traditional joy—it would have caused in England if the old game had succeeded again—if after Japan had done away with Russia, England's dreaded enemy, France and Germany would have crippled each other, and if England's most dreaded commercial rival could thus have been rendered materially harmless.

People are accustomed to look upon Germany as a warlike and England as a peaceful nation. The facts show the opposite to be the truth. In the last thirty-five years few people have lost their lives through the politics of Germany, while hundreds of thousands of bodies that cover the fields of South Africa, the North of India, of the Soudan, and of Manchuria, are a token of England's peaceful policy.

To revert to the Moroccan situation, if the conference should not agree, France will have nothing to lose, for in that case Bu Hamara, the vassal of France, would soon be the governing factor in Morocco.

This is another difficulty that confronts Germany at Alegciras, and which goes far to explain the strong position of France at the conference. TEUTON.

FOOD.

FOLLOWING SCRIPTURE

He Proved the Good Thing and Holds Fast to It.

A young preacher found the change from life on the home farm to the city and college very trying, especially the transition from the wholesome country food to the boarding house fare. How he solved the food question is interesting.

"I soon came to face a serious problem," he says. "I began to decline in health, grew thin in flesh and weak in body and mind. The doctor diagnosed my trouble as 'indigestion,' but was unable to give me relief. I tried patent medicines with the same result. I was weak and growing weaker, and had no capacity for study. For 4 years I fought a hard battle—fought it poorly, because of my physical and mental condition.

"A Postum Cereal calendar fell into my hands. I hung it over my study table. It bore the inscription 'Brains Repaired' across the face. I used to lean back and gaze at it when weary with study, till at last it occurred to me that my brains needed repairing. Why not try Grape-Nuts food and see what it would do for me? I acted on the thought, beginning a few months ago.

"Gradually I found that it was making me stronger and better. Then I decided that as Grape-Nuts was helping me I would stop coffee and take on Postum. This I did, and the two are simply working wonders! And while the improvement has been only gradual, it is permanent. I do not gain a little for a few days and then lapse back—I keep what I gain.

"From the use of the two, Grape-Nuts and Postum Coffee, I have acquired a quickened vitality, capacity for harder work, clearer and more energetic mentality, and can study better. My flesh has become firm and healthy, and to-day I weigh more than for years before. I am a new man. As pastor of the Christian Church I preach Christ from the pulpit, and in my pastoral work, as a man among men, I also preach Grape-Nuts and Postum. I have 'proved them to be good, and am holding fast to them.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MINING SWINDLE CHARGED.

Doctor's Wife Causes Alleged Promoter's Arrest on a Larceny Accusation.

While waiting in a Thirty-fourth Street drug store, near Seventh Avenue, yesterday, on appointment with Dr. Samuel Liebman of 1 West 112th Street, Joseph Schwarz of 303 West 113th Street, a promoter, was arrested by detectives from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station on a charge of grand larceny.

Dr. Liebman had promised to meet Schwarz and bring with him $500, which the latter was to turn into $5,000 by investment in mining securities. The doctor declares that Schwarz had on a prior occasion taken $60 for the same purpose, but told him later that he had lost the money on the deal. Mrs. Liebman became suspicious of Schwarz when she heard of the doctor's losing investment, and used a proposal for other investments as bait to lure Schwarz into the police trap.

HEARST AND REPUBLICAN ALDERMEN SPLIT AGAIN

M. O. L. Men Oppose "Extravagant" McClellan Measures.

"LIAR" IN BOARD MEETING

Downing Declared Dady Didn't Speak Through Him and Attacked Peters, the Hearst Leader.

Another serious break between the Republican and the Hearst Municipal Ownership League Aldermen occurred early last evening when the two factions met in joint caucus to try to restore the harmony that was shattered in the session of the board earlier in the day. As a result of the caucus the Hearst members, led by Alderman Peters of Brooklyn, declared they would not stand for what they termed "extravagant appropriation measures" for the McClellan administration.

No agreement was reached between the two wings of the majority in the board, in spite of the efforts made by Alderman James Cowden Meyers, the Republican floor leader. The sentiment expressed among the members of the board was that Alderman "Little Tim" Sullivan's prediction made in January might soon come true. Sullivan declared then that the Hearstites and the Republicans would fall out within six months, leaving Tammany in control and Sullivan in the saddle. The main cause of the break yesterday was the appropriation to buy automobiles for the Bridge Department. Alderman Peters led the opposition to this measure and succeeded in defeating it. After the caucus last night it was learned that no promise was obtained from the Hearst men to "be good" in the future, and that there was no longer any working arrangement whatever between the two wings.

At the session of the board earlier in the day there was an exchange of strong language between Alderman Downing, one of the Brooklyn Republicans, and Alderman Peters, the Hearst leader. This greatly annoyed President McGowan, who wielded the gavel with as much force as if he were using a bung starter, but without effect.

An appropriation of $200,000 for the parks in the Bronx was under consideration. Alderman Kenneally, from Charles F. Murphy's district, urged its passage. Alderman Peters wanted the resolution laid aside for a week, but was voted down. Then Alderman Downing took occasion to remark that if the appropriation was not passed many laboring men would be thrown out of work. In this Alderman Kenneally joined him.

"The Municipal Ownership crowd does not seem to be very keen after the interests of the laboring men after all," remarked Downing. "They pose as the friends of labor and then delay appropriations so men will be thrown out of work."

"That sounds just like the two rotten political machines of Murphy and Mike Dady, from whom we've just heard," retorted Alderman Peters.

"The Alderman lies when he says he's heard from Mike Dady when I spoke," replied Downing, who is Dady's Alderman, "and he knows he lies."

There was an uproar, with President McGowan rapping for order and Aldermen Downing and Peters both looking anxiously about for some one to keep them apart.

"Alderman Downing's language was disgraceful," said President McGowan when he could be heard, "and it was an insult to all of the members of this board. He must apologize."

"I'll not apologize," retorted Downing. "I'll defend my language here or outside if Alderman Peters wants to go outside."

Peters did not seem to be any more anxious for this than Downing, and Alderman Meyers tried to pour oil on the troubled waters. At last Downing agreed to withdraw his remarks, but he did not apologize. Alderman Peters seemed content. Then he said that the $200,000 appropriation was not needed for the laboring men, and that only $6,000 of it would go for labor. The appropriation was passed by a vote of 61 to 7. The board also passed a like appropriation for Manhattan and Richmond parks.

Earlier in the day Alderman Peters had attacked the veracity of the minutes of the week before on the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry resolution. He said Alderman Freeman was recorded in the affirmative and should have been recorded in the negative. He was making some ugly charges against the clerks when President McGowan called him to order and said he must use parliamentary language. Alderman Freeman, then bore witness that he had been correctly recorded.

ILL, HE TRIED SUICIDE.

August Blumenthal Shot Himself in Front of a Hotel Mirror.

August Blumenthal, 53 years old, formerly connected with the United Beef Company, of which his brother, Isaac, is President, stood in front of a mirror in his room at the Grand Union Hotel yesterday morning and fired a bullet into his head. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital. Late yesterday afternoon an operation was performed, but the doctors had little hope of his life. The information which was given out by members of his family indicated that his health had been shattered, and that he had just got out of a sanitarium when he attempted to take his life.

Mr. Blumenthal registered at the Grand Union Hotel Monday afternoon as from "New York City." Nothing peculiar was noticed about his conduct in the hotel. Yesterday morning Mary Cregan, a chambermaid, heard the report of a pistol in Mr. Blumenthal's room. House detective Brady broke in the door and found Mr. Blumenthal lying in a pool of blood. He was conscious. At one moment his talk indicated that domestic troubles had caused him to attempt his own life; at another, that he was sick and tired of life. "It's nobody's business why," he said.

The would-be suicide had written a letter to his wife, who lives at 911 Park Avenue, and another to his brother Isaac.

William Langenzen, a wholesale tobacconist, of 974 Second Avenue, a brother-in-law of August Blumenthal, gave this explanation:

"The attempt of August to take his life was doubtless due to the fact that for some time he had been compelled to spend his time in sanitariums because of several infirmities, among them locomotor ataxia. Several years ago he sold out his interest in the United Beef Company for $90,000, which he turned over to his wife for herself and their fourteen-year-old daughter. He was sent first to a sanitarium on Long Island, being transferred later to one in Lexington Avenue. He has no domestic troubles; he adores his wife and child."

RACQUET MATCH LOST BY BOSTON CHAMPIONS

Brooke and Cassatt Defeated Shaw and Haughton.

PLAYERS IN GREAT FORM

Quakers Dropped First Two Games, Won Next Four—Other Contests Were One-Sided.

One of the best racquet games ever seen in this city was played yesterday in the doubles championship of the United States at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club when George H. Brooke and Robert K. Cassatt of Philadelphia defeated Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., and Percy D. Haughton of Boston in four out of six games. Seldom has the game been seen to better advantage than the exposition by these four experts. Brooke and Cassatt lost the first two games by the scores of 13—18, 9—15, and appeared to be beaten. The Philadelphians showed a complete reversal of form and overwhelmed their opponents, capturing the next four games in succession by the scores of 15—0, 15—2, 15—6, 15—12.

Two other matches were played. In the first, George R. Fearing and Hugh D. Scott of Boston won from R. P. and Ford Huntingdon by the score of 15—1, 15—2, 15—2, 15—2, and in the second, Lawrence Waterbury and Charles E. Sands of New York defeated Barclay H. Warburton and William E. Bates by the scores of 15—4, 15—5, 15—3, 15—8. These three matches completed the first round, and the semi-finals will be played to-day.

The original drawings were changed somewhat yesterday, and the Huntingdon brothers were paired against Fearing and Scott, while Warburton and Bates had Waterbury and Sands as opponents. This change was necessitated by the desire on the part of the officials to prevent the possibility of teams from Boston or Philadelphia playing against each other in the semi-final round.

Interest in yesterday's matches was centred in the Brooks-Cassatt and Haughton-Shaw contest. It was a meeting of champions. Haughton is the present National champion, while Shaw and Brooke have both held premier honors. Betting on the match favored the Boston pair, owing to their easy victory on Monday. The first game was close throughout, and with the score 13—all it was agreed to set 5. This seemed to demoralize the Quakers, who gave their opponents three aces on misses, and Brooke supplanted the play by putting himself and partner out. Haughton and Sands ran out the two aces in the following hand. The Philadelphians continued their poor work in the second game and lost eight aces on misses. With the games 2 to 0 against them, Brooke and Cassatt braced up and overwhelmed their opponents. By playing superb racquets the Philadelphia players ran out the game in two hands, blanking Haughton and Shaw. Each team scored two aces in the first hand of the fourth game, when Brooke completely dazzled the Boston team by the rapidity and variety of his service, while the speed and accuracy of Cassatt added to the discomfiture of their opponents. Brooke ran thirteen aces without a miss, capturing the second game. He continued his service and added five more in the fifth game before Cassatt found the telltale board. Brooke and Cassatt continued their splendid playing and won the game, putting them in the lead by the score of 3 games to 2. Shaw and Haughton seemed to go to pieces in the fifth game, but they braced up in the sixth, and at the end of the third hour led by the score of 10 aces to 4. Brooke and Cassatt, by some very clever team work, gradually wore down their opponents' lead. Brooke ran out the game with eight aces, winning the match by 4 games to 2. The score:

George R. Fearing and Hugh D. Scott of Boston won from R. P. and Ford Huntingdon of New York. Fearing and Scott are the present champions, and secured the victory in less than half an hour. Only thirteen hands were played during the entire match, the New York players scoring a total of seven aces against sixty by the Boston players. The score:

R. P. and Ford Huntington..........1 0— 1
Fearing and Scott..........7 8—15

Fearing and Scott..........1 14—15

Lawrence Waterbury and Charles E. Sands of New York scored an easy victory over Barclay H. Warburton and William E. Bates of Philadelphia. The New York Racquet Club pair held their opponents safe throughout, although the Philadelphians made a good showing at the start of the fourth game. The score:

Waterbury and Sands..........8 0 3 3 1—15
Warburton and Bates..........3 0 0 1..— 4

HOPPE BEATS SLOSSON IN BILLIARD MATCH

Young Champion Scores 500 to 391 for the Veteran.

BOTH MAKE LOW AVERAGES

Contest at 18.1 Balk-Line Game Witnessed by Large Crowd at Grand Central Palace.

Successfully defending his world's billiard championship, William F. Hoppe defeated George F. Slosson last night. It was the second time in his long career as a professional with the cue and ivory balls that the veteran Slosson had faced defeat at the hands of a young aspirant just entering the arena of billiard champions. First it was Frank C. Ives, then just winning his laurels, and last night it was Hoppe, the youngest world's champion that the game has ever known.

The score of 500 points for Hoppe to 391 for Slosson, who challenged the younger player for the title and emblem he won from the great Frenchman, Vignaux, last January, tells but the result of one of the most remarkable matches ever contested upon the green-topped table.

It was a contest in which from the outset champion and challenger and the spectators felt the straining influence of things to be accomplished. Fully three thousand spectators filled the arena and balconies of the Grand Central Palace, Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue, and they represented the best of the city's clubmen, who, in many cases, were accompanied by women. From the outset Hoppe and Slosson both showed that high runs and averages would fall behind. They were too highly keyed for such things. Victory, not baubles of the match, was what they sought, and the winning average of 10.40-46 for Hoppe, with his best run of 56, shows what tremendous effect the strain had upon his usually brilliant manipulation. This labor to effect carroms at the eighteen-inch balk line game, one count in balk, lasted for more than four hours, and only closed when Hoppe had consumed seven innings with which to complete his final hundred, the last point being counted after midnight.

Hoppe may soon again be called upon to defend the title, for Louis Cure of Paris, now in this country for the international tournament, declares that he will challenge at once.

Outside the building early in the evening the scene presented all the characteristics of a "star cast" night at the opera. Stylish equipages and cabs rattled up to the entrance, and clubmen in evening dress alighted, in many instances accompanied by ladies. Speculators sold choice seats, getting $10 each for the few that they had to sell. A line of 300 extended from the balcony box office in Forty-third Street around into Lexington Avenue. It was the old-time enthusiasm manifested so often by New Yorkers in the great days of "Billy" Sexton, "Napoleon" Ives, and other names famous in the annals of the game.

Among those who surrounded the table were: Edward W. Gardner, James Sperry, Charles Stoppani, Oliver W. Campbell, Thomas Adams, Dr. A. B. Miller, "Tod" Sloan, William H. Snyder, George Wheelock, John McKee, Henry B. Scharman, J. Henry Dick, James E. Burden, J. W. Luckenbach, Sidney Wormser, Charles Minor, Wilson P. Foss, Rudolph Schaefer, Gus Rudolphy, J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, Robert Kammerer, while Hoppe's mother and sisters sat where they could witness every movement of the cue and roll of the ivory balls.

Previous to the beginning of the all-important meeting upon which hung a world's title the balls were weighed, as in the old days of hard-fought championship battles.

As master of ceremonies Tod Coles introduced the young champion and the veteran challenger. The cheering for Hoppe appeared as a whisper to a peal of thunder when compared with the greeting Slosson received. The spontaneous outburst of good-will pleased the veteran, for he smiled and brightened as he listened to it, taking it as an omen of coming championship honors for him.

The young billiard champion guaged the bank shot to perfection, and began with a zero, missing by a full inch. Slosson also missed, appearing disquieted by the noise of the incoming spectators. The first four innings only netted each 2 counts. On his fifth turn Hoppe coaxed the balls together, and on his seventh shot counted 21 before missing on a draw. Slosson retaliated with a fine run of 61. In this run the veteran dispelled all arguments as to his eyesight being poor. He played for the edges of the balls even more than did Hoppe, and in the beginning his around-the-table play for position was good, but bad breaks and small misfortunes held him back. Hoppe fared little better, for he repeatedly missed on comparatively easy draw shots, and allowed the ivory globes to line up so persistently that all of his attempts at anything like a run went awry.

After his big run of 61 Slosson experienced some bad rolls, which caused his counting to suffer, while Hoppe forged ahead by gathering small clusters of carroms in which the balk line never figured. Hoppe's best effort, while he was overtaking Slosson on the first hundred was 22, on his ninth turn at the table. In this Hoppe got the balls in perfect position for close manipulation for unlimited count upon the thirteenth carrom. The young champion could not stand the strain of the match, as was made evident by his inability to hold the balls when he got them to his liking.

Hoppe turned his first hundred points in his thirteenth inning with 20, which totaled 110, and caused some surprise to those who had placed bets that the young billiardist would finish with an average of 20 or higher. By persistent effort Hoppe worked out small runs, while Slosson was experiencing his slump. Finally the opportunity presented itself to Hoppe in his half of the twenty-first inning and he made good use of it, counting 56 carroms. A faulty cushion shot terminated what proved to be his highest counting of the competition.

Hoppe showed a disposition to nurse during this run, and the middle section yielded a taste of the delicate ball-to-ball billiards which the spectators had gathered to see. His harsh stroke, however, was not productive of the close billiard play. It was his brilliantly executed cushion-carrom shots, especially those of three cushions, and his driving of first one object ball and then the other around the table after the method of Frank Ives that caused the crowd to cheer.

Again the young champion was first to reach the second hundred mark. He counted 7 on his twenty-second turn at the table, with 205 points to his credit, leaving Slosson at 141. But the veteran did not display any signs of worriment, for he continued to smile at his unfortunate misses and breaks. Hoppe's missing and a miscue in his twenty-fifth inning afforded Slosson a chance to overtake him, and he made up lost ground finely in his twenty-fourth inning, counting 53 by showing splendid judgment of speed and holding the balls along the end rail in perfect position. In this manipulation Slosson found the restrictions of the balk line a heavy handicap, but he skillfully worked out the carroms by better billiards than Hoppe played at any stage of the contest.

The work of the champion improved as the contest advanced. He had an amazing lot of lucky shots in which the balls just rubbed in passing. On the other hand, twice during this critical period of the match, Slosson suffered from outside influences. His run of 28 in this twenty-ninth inning and "no count" of the thirty-sixth were terminated in one instance and caused in the second by spectators walking around the table and crossing his line of vision as he was shooting.

A timely run of 45 that three turns later was backed by 42, placed Hoppe well within his final hundred points. He was playing cushion shots, and on the next turn, his forty-first, had a bit to true balk line which resulted in his not getting the balls out of balk, his run terminating at 22 thereby.

Slosson, veteran of many a contest that had been won against greater odds than the Hoppe score presented, made a splendid effort to gain the coveted honors by a final effort. He had his nerve as tense as steel, for he negotiated a spread-eagle drive with the object balls in opposite corners in his thirty-ninth inning, and attempted a rail-crowding follow shot two turns later that brought the crowd to its feet with yells and cheers, despite the fact that the object ball was finally kissed off before the carrom was completed.

Hoppe's finish was slow. After turning into his last hundred he found all the holes around the balls on his cushion shots. He accumulated the final carroms of his string with runs of 22, 22, and 23, with three small single figure runs. Slosson tried to at least turn 400, but he had the same experience in finding the openings for the full four hours of taxing cue work had began to tell. Slosson on his last turn in the forty-fifth inning left a set-up, and Hoppe from it made the necessary two carroms by follow shots, which left the championship in his keeping. Summary:

William F. Hoppe, (white ball)—0 0 1 1 21 6 16 14 22 1 0 8 20 12 0 4 0 16 0 0 56 7 0 0 1 3 37 0 18 2 38 1 11 3 1 8 45 1 6 42 22 5 22 23 4 2. Total—500 points. Average—10 40-46. High runs—56, 45, and 42.

George F. Slosson, (black balls)—0 1 0 1 61 13 1 0 6 0 0 11 0 10 4 7 3 11 0 0 1 11 0 53 3 2 7 14 28 10 17 0 15 0 0 1 0 8 10 23 2 30 7 10. Total—391 points. Average—8 31-45. High runs—61, 53, and 30.

Referee—Eward McLaughlin.

The championship which Hoppe successfully defended was won first by Jacob Schaefer in the Madison Square aGrden tournament, Dec. 10, 1901. Slosson, Barutel, Sutton, Moringstar, and Howison competed in this tournament. George Sutton then took the emblem and title from Schaefer in Paris the next year, as Schaefer would not defend. Maurice Vignaux next became possessor of the title, defeating Sutton March 4, 1903, by 500 points to 387. Vignaux averaged 12 82-100. William F. Hoppe met and defeated Vignaux Jan. 15, 1906, by the score of 500 to 323, the winning average being 20 10-12 and Hoppe's high run for the match 93.

AMATEURS ONLY MAY RIDE.

Annual Hunter and Pony Races at Cedarhurst on April 28.

The programme of the annual hunter and pony races of the Rockaway Hunt Club, which will be held at Cedarhurst, L. I., on Saturday, April 28, has just been issued, and the six events that have been listed promise to develop plenty of interesting sport. The races will be conducted under the rules of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and will be confined to horses the bona-fide property of members of a recognized hunt or polo club, or of persons invited by the race committee, which is composed of W. A. Hazard, P. B. Thompson, L. B. Valentine, and Fletcher Harper. Only amateurs will be permitted to ride, and the Race Committee reserves the right to reject any entry up to the time of going to the post. This is the programme:

Pony Race—Sweepstakes of $10 each and added cup. For ponies 14.3 and under, minimum weight 150 pounds. Distance, one-quarter of a mile on the flat.

The Cedarhurst Cup—Cup and sweepstakes of $15 each for half-bred bona-fide hunters. Minimum weight 165 pounds. Distance, about four miles over a fair hunting country.

Galloway Race—Sweepstakes of $10 each and added cup. For ponies or galloways 15 hands and under. Minimum weight 150 pounds. Distance, about a half mile on the flat.

The Rockaway Cup—Must be won twice before becoming winner's property. For thoroughbred bona-fide hunters. Minimum weight 165 pounds. Distance, about four miles over a fair hunting country. Cup was won in 1905 by L. V. Fromeset's New Zealand.

The Governors' Cup—Presented by the governors of the Rockaway Hunt Club. The cup and sweepstakes of $15 each. For bona-fide hunters. Minimum weight 180 pounds, thoroughbreds seven pounds extra. Distance, about four miles over a fair hunting country.

Hurdle Race—Sweepstakes of $10 each and added cup. For ponies or galloways 15 hands and under. Minimum weight 150 pounds. Distance, about one mile and a half over hurdles.

The entries for the Cedarhurst, Rockaway, and Governors' cups will be strictly confined to bona-fide hunters, that is, horses regularly hunted and kept for that purpose. Accordingly all artificial steeplechase jumps have been omitted from the course.

COLUMBIA CREWS OUT.

Five Eights Launched from Harlem River Boathouse.

Columbia's crews got on the water yesterday afternoon for a good spin, after having been balked by adverse weather condtions for nearly two weeks. Coach Goodwin was not able to accompany the crews on account of the launch not being ready. Five crews, three 'Varsity and two freshmen, were sent over the Harlem River course. Goodwin posted a notice at college yesterday morning calling on all candidates to meet him in the afternoon at the Harlem River boathouse. Some skeptical youngster who had been fooled before, thinking the notice a hoax, wrote "Rats!" all over it.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the first 'Varsity crew got on the river, going down as far as Washington Bridge. When the freshmen got out they showed their inexperience, and it was evident that they realized that pulling on a machine was a different proposition from pulling a real oar. The crews were made up as follows:

First 'Varsity.—Bow, Tounnelle; 2, Van Sicklen; 3, Cheadle; 4, Roy; 5, Ferris; 6, Post; 7, Boyle; stroke, O'Loughlin; coxswain, Spence.

Second 'Varsity.—Bow, Kendall; 2, M. Miller; 3, Braun; 4, Taylor; 5, Norris; 6, W. Miller; 7, Haight; stroke, G. Mackenzie; coxswain, Winslow.

Third 'Varsity.—Bow, Earle; 2, Snevily; 3, Willard; 4, Osterhout; 5, Perrine; 6, Short; 7, M. White; stroke, Mitchell; coxswain, Darsay.

The freshment went out in two squads and were boated as follows:

First Boat.—Bow, Spaulding; 2, Suarez; 3, Gascoigne; 4, Mackenzie; 5, Hodgkinson; 6, Gillies; 7, Cerussi; stroke, Jordan; coxswain, Hopping.

Second Boat.—Bow, Smead; 2, Hoag; 3, Kayser; 4, Willis; 5, Davidson; 6, Robinson; 7, MacLean; stroke, Taylor; coxswain, Durant.

Bartels Wins at Handicap Pool.

J. Bartels (90) defeated R. Hirsh (100) last night in the handicap pool tournament for amateurs played at the Broadway Billiard Academy. Bartels was in good form and ran out his string to 65 for Hirsh. The winner had one scratch and his high run was 14. Hirsh had a high run of 12. The players to-night will be Dr. Howe and G. Ricker.

AUTO EFFICIENCY TEST FOR A $500 GOLD CUP

Two Gallons of Gasoline Only for Competing Cars.

SILVER TROPHY FOR SECOND

Event to be Held in May and Will Be Conducted on Cylinder Displacement Basis.

An automobile test for distance and efficiency, allowing two gallons of gasoline to each car, will be held by the Automobile Club of America early in May. This will be the first of a series of tests now being arranged by the club for the coming season. The Board of Governors at the meeting yesterday in the clubrooms, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, appointed as the committee to draw up conditions and rules for this gasoline efficiency contest Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler, Charles G. Curtis, and George F. Chamberlin. Points will be allowed for weight of the car, cylinder displacement, distance traveled, general efficiency, and other factors that may enter into the serviceability of the machine.

Cars of any size and horse power may compete, but the large cars will not be unduly handicapped by the small ones, despite the fact that the latter may be able to travel a greater distance on the same amount of gasoline. The fact that the weight of the competing cars and their cylinder displacement will be considered makes the event fair for all. One of the most valuable lessons to be gathered from this test will be a satisfactory comparison of the different motors.

Many manufacturers have requested the holding of a test that will make cylinder displacement the prominent factor. The Governors of the Automobile Club a short time ago, indorsed this plan, and advised the American Automobile Association to give the plan serious consideration. No other organization has yet attempted to hold a contest on the cylinder displacement method, and its results will be looked forward to with interest.

The Automobile Club has also recognized the fact that prizes worth working for encourage competition. That the test is regarded as one of importance is seen in the generous offer of a gold cup of the value of $500 as the first prize. The cup will be won outright. A $100 silver cup will be the second prize, and a medal will be offered for third place.

"A good deal of the success of this contest will depend upon the ability of the observers," said Secretary S. M. Butler. "Each car will carry an impartial observer. I do not know where the run will be held—probably in a favorable locality in the city. Of course the cars will not go very far, and they will be strung out all along the line as the gasoline gives out. Considerable engineering ability and knowledge of automobile construction will be required of the observers, and from a technical standpoint their reports ought to be valuable."

George F. Chamberlin, who was appointed a month ago to prepare a plan for holding tests to determine different elements of automobile utility, presented a comprehensive report in which he outlined plans for alcohol motors, carburetor efficiency, dust preventives and other competitive possibilities. The Governors will meet again this week to discuss other events.

Notice was sent to the Automobile Club that a hearing would be held at Albany to-day and to-morrow on the Lee, Stanley, and L'Hommedieu bills now before the Legislature. The Stanley bill is the one originally drawn by a committee appointed by the club, and which was later introduced at Albany through the West End Association. The automobilists up the State are opposed to all these bills, chiefly on the basis that the present law is satisfactory and should be tried another year. Winthrop E. Scarritt, W. W. Niles, and S. M. Butler were appointed to represent the club at the hearing.

President Dave Hennen Morris presided at the meeting. Others present were George F. Chamberlin, Winthrop E. Scarritt, Col. John Jacob Astor, and Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler.

A general meeting of the club was held in the evening. Clarence B. Brokaw, Principal of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association Automobile School, gave an interesting talk on magnets, ignition, dynamos, and batteries.

HONORS FOR JOCKEY MILLER.

Rode Three Winners, Was Twice Second, and Once Third at Benning.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Two favorites, three heavily played second choices, and one outsider won the races at Benning to-day. Fair weather attracted a large attendance, both the clubhouse and the grandstand being comfortably filled. The card offered consisted of over-night events of no special merit. The time in all of the races was slow, the track being very heavy on account of the recent storms. It was in better condition, however, than it was yesterday. Jockey Miller, who appeared in the saddle in every race, rode three winners, two seconds, and a third, while T. Burns won twice and was placed in four times up.

Tickle, a strong second choice, won the first race, making a show of her field. In the second, a maiden affair with fifteen starters, Lady Vera had little difficulty in demonstrating her right to the title of favorite, although she was pressed at first by Botanist. The latter ran away before the race, and finally could do no better than fourth.

Disobedient, made the favorite in the fourth race, was beaten easily by Hocus Pocus. In the sixth race, a handicap for three-year-olds, Yorkshire Lad won handily, with Northville second. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—For fillies and mares, three years old and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Tickle, 94 pounds, (Miller,) 4 to 1 and 7 to 5, won; Daruma, 96, (Kent,) even and 1 to 2, second; Bivouac, 91, (J. Johnson,) 4 to 1 and 6 to 5, third. Time—1:19. Gotowin, Leonora, Andronike, and Society Bud also ran.

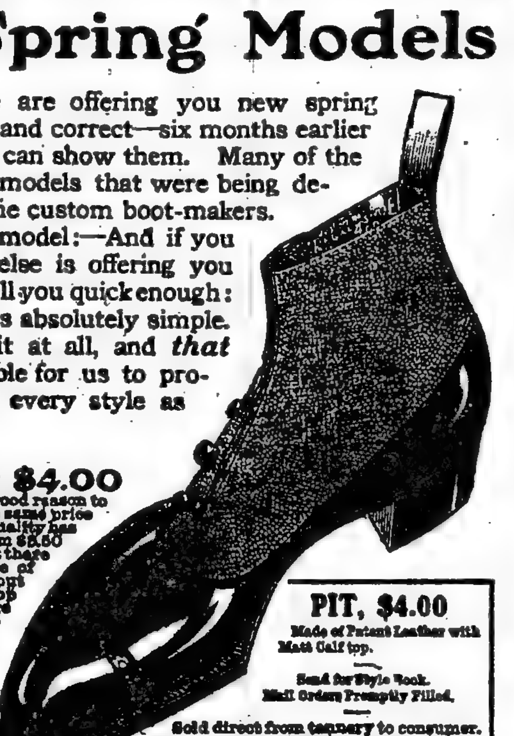
SECOND RACE.—For maiden two-year-olds; half mile, old course. Lady Vera, 104 pounds, (Miller,) 2 to 1 and even, won; Melting, 104, (T. Burns,) 11 to 1 and 6 to 1, second; Powderhorn, 107, (Robbins,) 10 to 1 and 4 to 1, third. Time—0:52. Tudor, Botanist, King Brush, Alegra, L'Orpheline, Eminola, Woodline, Fond du Lac, Miss Dixon, Manila, Mary Curtis, and Prosperity also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; six and one-half furlongs, Columbia course. Delphie, 104 pounds, (Powers,) 2½ to 1 and 6 to 5, won; Fiat, 107, (Chandler,) 25 to 1 and 8 to 1, second; Hyperion, 113, (Miller,) 4 to 5 and 1 to 3, third. Time—1:25. Setauket, Thomond, Kuro, Echodale, Winchester, and Dixie Andrews also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—For three-year-olds; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Hocus Pocus, 96 pounds, (Miller,) 2 to 1 and 3 to 5, won; Disobedient, 103, (J. Johnson,) even and out, second; Water Course, 98, (O'Leary,) 12 to 1 and 3 to 1, third. Time—1:32 4-5. Bribery and Old Guard also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Chieftain, 110 pounds, (T. Burns,) 6 to 1 and 2½ to 1, won; Judge White, 93, (Miller,) 3½ to 1 and 8 to 5, second; Parkville, 110, (Diggins,) 50 to 1 and 20 to 1, third. Time—1:17 3-5. Pirateer, Gallant, Cottage Maid, Edgely, Pulora, Vagatond, Lady Desdemona, Hindo Princess, and Gentian also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and forty yards, old course. Yorkshire Lad, 104 pounds, (T. Burns,) 7 to 10 and out, won; Northville, 100, (Miller,) 4 to 1 and even, second; Phoebus, 98, (J. Johnson,) 10 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time—1:50. Sailor Boy and Caronal also ran.



58 New Spring Models

As usual, this season, we are offering you new spring models that are really new and correct—six months earlier than any other manufacturer can show them. Many of the new Regals are duplicates of models that were being designed not six weeks ago by the custom boot-makers. Quarter sizes in every Regal model:—And if you ask us why it is that no one else is offering you shoes in quarter sizes, we'll tell you quick enough: The Regal selling system is absolutely simple. There's no complication in it at all, and that simple system makes it possible for us to provide twice as many sizes in every style as anybody else can provide.

$3.50 The cost of raw hides and leather has been rapidly advancing for two years and you now have good reason to be suspicious of any shoe offered you at the same price as last year until satisfactory proof of its quality has been given you. We maintained our uniform $3.50 price for all Regals as long as possible, but there is no longer any possibility of a lower price of leather and consequently there has been but one of two things for us to do: Either stop making some lines of Regal shoes or charge a price increased sufficiently to balance their increased cost. We have built into every pair of Regal shoes the best materials suited to that particular style, and we shall never change that policy. We have anticipated our needs for some time to come, and can still supply you with many styles at the $3.50 price. We guarantee that in every Regal model you will get absolutely the best materials suited to that style. $4.00

BIG HANDICAP YACHT CLASS.

Prospect of Thirty Boats Being Enrolled on New Plan.

With an assured entry of fifteen boats in Class P—the twenty-seven-foot class—alone, and the probability that thirty-two boats will enroll between eighteen thirty-three feet, the new Handicap Yacht Racing Class to compete on Long Island Sound this year promises to be the biggest thing in yachting in the small boat line. The plans outlined by the projectors of the scheme have been taken hold of with the greatest enthusiasm, and it seems certain that the class—or, rather, the divisions of the class, for there will be three divisions—will provide the best racing on the Sound. The plans were perfected at the New York Athletic Club last evening at a meeting of the yacht owners, and every provision made for proceeding with the permanent arrangements.

The election of an Executive Committee to conduct the class resulted in the choice of G. P. Granbery, H. A. Jackson, Jr., and Dr. J. B. Palmer. G. P. Granbery was chosen Chairman, H. A. Jackson, Jr., Secretary, and Dr. J. B. Palmer Treasurer. T. Granbery was chosen as official handicapper, and he will fix the allowances from week to week under which the boats will sail. The handicaps will be on a percentage basis, fixed originally by the records of the various boats last year, computed according to the time consumed in covering the same courses. No boats will be allowed more than 8 per cent. The percentages allowed will be figured after each race from the time made over the course by the winning boat.

After each race the handicaps will be changed to include the results of the last race, so they will alter from week to week, giving the losers a constantly improving chance. No boat will be considered which finishes more than 10 per cent. behind the winner in any race, and no account will be taken of a race in which less than two and a half miles an hour are made.

The boats that are expected to be enrolled include:

Opossum, T. M. T. Raborg; Nadji, B. R. Stoddard; Heron, John Le Boutillier; Montauk, D. P. Sheldon; Regina, F. G. Stewart; Okee, J. A. Mahlstedt; Grasshopper, H. A. Pryor; Acushla, E. C. Ray; Hanley, A. E. Bieling; Little Peter, F. M. Weeks; Alyce, H. A. Jackson, Jr.; Babs, C. S. King; Thelma, A. E. Black; Firefly, G. P. Granbery; Robin Hood, G. E. Gartland; Naiad, Dr. J. B. Palmer; Howdy, George Mercer; Firefly, Guy Standing; Maryola, H. E. Sayre; Scamp, W. Murdock; Ojibway, R. P. Morse; Answer, Donald B. Abbott; Kenosha I., W. R. Berth; Kenosha II., C. W. Voltz; Rogue, J. B. MacDonough; Cadeaux, William Swan; Snapper, F. S. Page; Ox, Louis Bevier; Cheewink II., A. E. Dick, and Wintji.

BRESNAHAN HIT WITH BAT.

New York Catcher Had Four Teeth Broken in Practice at Memphis.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—As the result of an unintended blow which was aimed at a ball, but which landed flush on Roger Bresnahan's mouth from a bat wielded by Pitcher Henry Mathewson in practice this afternoon, the New York catcher had four teeth broken and suffered considerable pain. Mathewson was in the act of smashing at a pitched ball. A backward swing struck Bresnahan, resulting in injuries at first feared serious. A physician who was called sent the case to the dentist.

Manager McGraw laid down the law to the Giants to-day at 'Varsity Park.

"I want more base running and team work at bat," said McGraw after he himself had been pitching to his men for several innings. "You fellows must hustle more to beat out the infield hits," he continued. "Many games are won by this method, for it takes the life out of the opposing team as well as benefiting yourselves."

Then McGraw entered the batter's box and hit the ball to the four corners of the miniature park, and occasionally he caused the infielders to get busy by the slow hits that came their way.

A game is scheduled for to-morrow between the Giants and the collegians, in which Henry Mathewson is programmed for his debut as a possible mainstay as pitcher. The youngster will meet a fast lot of collegiate players, some of whom have had minor league experience.

"Bob" Hall has been sold to the Baltimore Eastern League Club.

"Nick" Altrock of the Chicago American League team, to-day submitted to a surgical examination of a sprained ankle, which may prevent him from playing for many weeks.

Penalty for "Covering Up" Players.

CINCINNATI, March 27.—The National Baseball Commission to-day adopted new rules in regard to the "covering up" of players. Punishment for offenders was fixed as follows:

For the first offense of a major league club a fine of $1,000; Class A, $750; Class B, $500; Class C, $350; Class D, $200. A repetition of the offense will carry with it suspension from protection of the National agreement for a period of six months, players of clubs incurring this penalty being free from reservation until reinstatement takes place.

The commission also decided that no National agreement player could assume the management of any National agreement club, even if only to direct play from the bench, without first securing release from the club having him under reservation.

WHERE IS IT?

Easily among the five best sellers of this merry Springtime would be Commissioner GARFIELD'S report upon his probing of the Standard Oil Company. Why don't we get it? Is it the printers' strike? Or did the Administration discover that the Standard octopus is a lamb without an indictable tuft of wool on its little pelt?

"Non Hangli, sed hangeli," observed the Abbot of St. Andrea, gazing upon the fair-haired Cockney captives in the Roman slave market, and catching the accent. "Mr. President," the Commissioner may be conjectured to have said, "we can't do a thing to these men. They are veritable angels of light, selling oil on the square. ROGERS is a benefactor of his kind, WILLIAM is an altruist, JOHN D. is the very soul of philanthropy, and little JOHN D. is a squab seraph."

Is that what is the matter with the report? Or, remembering how the Beef Trust pulled the wool over his Commissioner's eyes, has the President concluded that the results of a mere anteroom inquest at 26 Broadway would fall too far below the literary standards of this Administration to warrant sending it to the public printer?

THE NET OUTCOME AT ALGECIRAS.

Naturally the result at Algeciras, as outlined in the most recent dispatches, draws most attention from the obvious fact that France wins and Germany loses on the points which the latter most stubbornly contested. The chief of these is the police, the next most important is the bank. In regard to the police it has been the general impression that what Germany most insisted on was that the police should be made up from representatives of the different Powers; but the difficulty lay deeper than that. The essential difference between the views of the two Powers was that France held that the police should be under the Sultan, should be officered by French and Spanish officers and sub-officers nominated to the Sultan and appointed by him, and that the Inspector General of the police should report to the Sultan, while Germany made a series of propositions in opposition to this general plan. First she wished to maintain an international police for all the coast cities and centres of trade; then she yielded to the French idea, except as to Casablanca, a port on the Atlantic Coast, where she proposed a separate police; then she yielded as to this port so far as to concede French and Spanish officers, but wished for an Inspector to be named by a small neutral Power, like Switzerland or the Netherlands, to report to the Diplomatic Corps at Tangier and to be subject to its orders. Finally she is reported to have yielded on all these points except that the Inspector, named by the Sultan, shall report to a Consular Court. That point may be compromised, or may be dropped.

It will be seen that the radical discrepancy between the plans of France and of Germany is that the former wished to act through the Sultan and to depend for any advantage she might seek on her influence with him, assuming, of course, before Europe the substantial responsibility for decent order and administration in Morocco, while Germany sought to bring the whole Moroccan business practically under the control of the European concert, requiring those Powers directly acting in Morocco to take a European "mandate" and to be subject to the interposition of the other Powers, of whom Germany counted on being an important one. The real question at issue was whether France was to be left as free to carry out her plans in Morocco as she could be while respecting the independence of the Sultan and the interests of the Mediterranean Powers—Spain, Italy, Great Britain—in accordance with the understanding she had reached with them. The question of the bank involved considerations of the same character but less pronounced. The main point of issue there was whether France, in return for surrendering the preference for her own financiers heretofore conceded by the Sultan, should receive additional shares in the new bank. She asked for four; Germany was ready to concede one; a compromise is reported on three. It is again a recognition of special interest on the part of France.

The turning point in the conference came on the 3d of March. The Italian plenipotentiary, on that day, submitted the question whether the police and the bank should be considered together, as France wished, or separately, as desired by Germany, the point of interest being that France was opposed to making concessions on one matter until it was known how the other could be disposed of. On this issue France obtained the support of Great Britain, Russia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, the United States, Belgium, and Holland. Germany was sustained by one European Power only, Austria, with the addition, of doubtful value, of Morocco. Sweden abstained from voting. Although the vote was in no direct sense on the merits of any issue pending between France and Germany, it was in effect decisive on the claim that those issues must be settled openly and finally and that what may fairly be called the teasing tactics of Germany must be abandoned. The significance of the vote was not lost on Germany. From that moment she gradually came around to agreement with the substance of all the French claims. In doing so her representatives at Algeciras and her Government at home sought sedulously to impress on the French their sincere desire to attain and to maintain the most friendly understanding with France. These are assurances that France cannot reject, though in view of the history of the past year she may accept them with some caution. She may in any case be congratulated on the dignity, patience, good-will, and tact her Government has shown in very trying circumstances. Meanwhile conditions in Morocco are reported as serious, and the task France has assumed there will not be a light one.

"SPEAK FOR YOURSELF, JOHN."

Everybody knows the happy results of John Alden's taking Priscilla's encouraging advice. The instant approval which followed Attorney General HADLEY'S speaking for his State warrants us in promising equally good results to public men courting coy public favor. And the advice is needed. Public prosecutors, instead of imitating Mr. HADLEY, turn their difficulties over to others; Mr. JEROME, instead of making his own decisions, puts it up to Judge O'SULLIVAN, and the Judge turns the matter over to the Grand Jury. President ROOSEVELT asked for legislation, and, upon getting what he wanted and being disappointed with the results, would like a constitutional amendment. Perhaps the worst case of dodging is the Inter-State Commerce Commission's. After taking testimony of frauds by shippers in some thousands of cases, Commissioner PROUTY said to the complainant railways: "Why don't you apply to the District Attorney of this county instead of asking the Commission to take any action? The misdescription of goods is a violation of the law, and when you find a shipper persistently and maliciously doing this you should apply to the District Attorney and have him indicted and punished." And a Washington telegram to the senior Administration organ asserts that this procedure is to be recommended officially.

If that is the law we should like to see it executed, but we take leave to say that the proceedings reported are not pending before any District Attorney or Grand Jury, and are pending before the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The Inter-State commerce law "requires" the Commission to execute and enforce the provisions of the act, and Commissioner PROUTY asks why the complainants do not complain to the District Attorney. Why should they? They brought their case as the law provides, and appear to have proved it. Why does not the Commission speak for itself? What is it for?

PASSES FOR LEGISLATORS.

The bill introduced by Senator BRACKETT on Jan. 3, amending the railroad law in relation to the issue of passes, is notable for a curious omission. It should wind up with this section: "All acts and parts of acts, and all sections of the Constitution found to be in conflict with the provisions of this bill are hereby repealed."

As reported from the committee the bill forbids corporations to issue passes, tickets, or tokens entitling the holder to transportation upon any railroad in the State without payment of fare. But it is declared that the provisions of the bill shall not prevent the issue of passes "to members of the Legislature and all other elective State officers, who shall be transported over the railroads of this State free of charge when in the discharge of their official duties, upon certificates which the Secretary of State shall sign and issue, but no such certificate shall be delivered to any member of the Legislature until he shall have assigned to the State of New York his mileage allowance for the year for which said certificate is issued."

Senator BRACKETT disowned the bill in this shape, and in the course of the debate upon it yesterday he asked that it be restored to the form in which it was offered by him. Thereupon Senators MCCARREN and GRADY nobly rose in defense of the deadhead privilege. In the Committee of the Whole Senator BRACKETT had his way, the provision permitting the issue of passes to members of the Legislature being stricken out. When the committee reported the bill to the Senate, however, this action, on motion of Senator GRADY, was reversed by a vote of 24 to 19.

This is a strange affair. Have the Senators mislaid their red books? Is there no copy of the Constitution of 1894 accessible to them? Are they unfamiliar with Article XIII., Section 5, which reads as follows:

> No public officer, or person elected or appointed to a public office, under the laws of this State, shall directly or indirectly ask, demand, accept, receive, or consent to receive for his own use or benefit, or for the use or benefit of another, any free pass, free transportation, franking privilege, or discrimination in passenger, telegraph, or telephone rates, from any person or corporation, or make use of the same himself or in conjunction with another.

That section of the Constitution would seem to be an obstacle of no inconsiderable magnitude in the path of the Brackett bill as it was reported from the committee. Was the committee's amendment a joke, or did its members wish thereby to record their deep personal conviction that the prohibition of passes is an outrage?

WORTH STUDYING.

A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Mr. GARDNER of New Jersey, at the request of Gov. GUILD of Massachusetts, providing for a systematic study and investigation of the industry of women and children. The bill carries an appropriation of $300,000, and it will undoubtedly be regarded askance by the economists of the House.

Yet we think, if the work is carefully and efficiently done, the money will be well spent. President ROOSEVELT in his last message urged very earnestly an investigation of this sort. The subject is of great and increasing importance, and it is impossible to obtain authoritative and complete information regarding it. There are a few State reports, but they are scattered over different periods, have no common standard or methods, and are necessarily very limited in scope. The National census does little but reveal the need of more thorough inquiry. It is ascertained that there are over 5,000,000 women engaged in occupations that take them away from home, and this class is increasing relatively more rapidly than the like class of men. The subject of the conditions under which these women and their children live and labor is certainly of vital interest and can be adequately studied only by a National agency. The Women's Trade Union League of Illinois is pressing the bill referred to, and it is supported by like organizations in other States. It is clearly deserving of the most careful attention of Congress.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN HAZING.

Our up-to-date and esteemed contemporary, The Congressional Record, contains reports regarding hazing cases at Annapolis which seem to us to gain significance when contrasted with the hazing reported by the cable as under investigation in his Majesty's Scots Guards. Lieut. KENNEDY, being unable upon account of his limited financial resources to contribute to the regimental expenses, was stripped, bathed in motor oil, covered with feathers, and otherwise despitefully treated to such an extent that he leaped from a window to escape from his tormentors. Whereupon the Secretary for War orders an investigation, all officers of the regiment are ordered to Aldershot for that purpose, and four officers are put under arrest. Be it remarked that the hazing was of a fellow-officer by brother officers, and that the offense was limited means.

In other words, the British Army is an aristocratic institution, and those possessing means enforce standards of their own based upon considerations apart from soldierly accomplishments. Unless an officer is a clubbable person his associates will have none of him. There can be no esprit de corps in such a body of men, and the dry rot resulting has been, still is, and threatens to remain, the source of regrettable incidents in the face of the enemy. It matters not that the dandy officers are personally brave to a fault and have demonstrated repeatedly that they are ready to die.

It is fortunate for us that the hazing which the House has been debating is of a different sort. We are well aware that American hazing has indefensible extravagances, but it is at least free from the taint of sordid or class distinctions. The hazing disclosed in the House debate was among boys, not among men in the service, and it was designed not to build up but to break down meretricious distinctions between individuals based upon accidents rather than upon personal qualities. It is the rich, not the poor, who are hazed in American educational institutions. It is those who assume to be a little better than their associates who are reduced to a more modest appreciation of themselves. When Gen. SHERIDAN'S son at West Point was made to read "Sheridan's Ride," with accompanying remarks and incidents by his hazers, according to Representative LACEY'S story, he was made to understand that admiration for his gallant father was not transferable until he had shown why. The sort of hazing which merely enforces democracy and discipline is a good thing.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Barkeepers and the Clerks.

One who may be sincerely troubled by a seeming superiority of vice to virtue, or, on the other hand, may be himself little better than the wicked and therefore cynically ready to put pain and confusion in minds now at rest, has submitted to us a problem that is at least curious and possibly deserves some discussion. "Why is it," he asks, "that the barkeeper is almost always a 'good fellow,' beside whom the clerk, at the ribbon counter, say, or in the shoe shop or the grocery store, almost always makes a comparatively poor showing as less manly, less intelligent, less polite, and less kind?" A large number of men, we half suspect, will be inclined to admit the truth of the assumption on which this question is based, or at least inclined at first thought to admit that there is an element of truth in it. The relation between the barkeeper and the patrons he serves is peculiar, and that doubtless accounts for the fact that the barkeeper so often exemplifies the "good-fellow" qualities that are in themselves and in season so much liked. He is obliged to cultivate a sort of delicacy, he must be able to accord to each customer just the shade of cordiality that is expected and appreciated, and to some degree he is, while on duty, in the rôle of host—one whose guests must pay, indeed, but pay without quite falling into the position of merely buying something as cheaply as possible. The ordinary clerk is not expected to possess these qualities, he has not been subjected to any such selection or development, and he does not meet his fraction of the public in its moments of relaxation, when thoughts of "business" are abandoned and everybody either is, or is trying to be, "pleasant." Here or hereabout lies whatever of truth there is in our questioner's assumption that the barkeeper, despite the generally admitted harmfulness of his occupation, is a better fellow, in the usual acceptation of that phrase, than the more respectable clerk behind the counter. There is more of seeming than of reality in the puzzle. The semblance of intimacy or friendship accorded to the barkeeper vanishes if he ventures to step outside of an extremely narrow circle, while the clerk, though not treated with familiarity as a matter of course, humorous and rather slighting, as the barkeeper is, has no such difficulty in "rising" if he has any ability.

"Pub. Docs." Under Heavy Fire.

Now that several Congressmen have rebelled against the burden placed upon them by the quality and the quantity of the books, pamphlets, and documents turned out by the Government Printing Office, it may be that at last such reforms will be instituted as will make that great establishment something like as useful to the public as it ought to be. For a time much longer than anybody can remember, there has been a general impression that this printing office was conducted as an end, rather than as a means—that much of the work done in it was to some, if not to a large, extent devised merely to give employment to a force unnecessarily large, using machines and methods intentionally kept far behind the times. Of late years many of these abuses have been remedied in whole or in part, but it is still common knowledge that much is printed in the office for which there is little or no demand, and jokes are as frequent as ever on the difficulty of getting people to take even as a gift the vast quantities of printed matter turned out at such cost to the Government. Many of these jokes, like some of the complaints made on the floor of the House this week, have no better foundation than simple ignorance. It is far from proof that a book is valueless because it contains many words which a Representative finds hard to pronounce and impossible to understand. Mr. LANDIS might well have refrained from criticising the language of hydrographic reports, and if Mr. COOPER has as little interest in, as knowledge of, the triassic cephalopods, it is no more to his credit than it is to his blame, and he should not have been as sure as he seemed to be that everybody would sympathize with his derision of the book he mentioned. Most of the faults and the extravagances of the Government Printing Office can be laid at the door of Congress itself. Its members have interfered far too much with work about which they had no knowledge, and too often their motives have not been of the best. The Government sins not only by printing too much of some things, but by printing too little of others, or by refusing to print them at all. What is needed is a better, or perhaps a freer, judgment at the head of the bureau, and a clear realization that it is not conducted to make jobs or work for employes of any grade.

Bernhardt Under Canvas.

What most of us had supposed was a mere jest or imagining of the theatrical press agent has been turned into an amazing reality, and Mme. BERNHARDT has actually carried out the announced intention of appearing in a big circus tent. We say "appearing," though the dispatches say "playing," for it could have been little more than a spectacle that was presented to the inhabitants of Dallas this week, and even the "golden voice" could hardly have reached more than a minute fraction of 8,000 people gathered in a place of such wretched acoustic properties as a great tent must always be. Those of us who have been to the modern circus know what painful efforts have to be made by men with leathern lungs carefully trained and exercised when they announce in brief phrases the names of the different performers and the nature of their "stunts," and it is almost unbelievable that Mme. BERNHARDT could make her marvelous art audible or even visible in distances so magnificent. She, however, is a genius, and perhaps she persuaded the assembled multitude that they both heard and saw. And, again, perhaps the size of the multitude was just a little bit exaggerated. Such things have been known. However, the episode is distinctly painful, and it will not add to the popularity of the men or the system that forced this remarkable woman to a resort so nearly desperate. Her fame, of course, is secure, but when theatres are closed to a Bernhardt something is very seriously wrong.

To Relieve Subway Congestion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having pondered with interest your recent topic, "Good Advice, But Not Needed," I crave a word or two on Subway conditions as reported by Engineer Rice.

It is true that most of us fail to heed the advice to move away from the car doors—but why? Because we have an instinctive dread of being carried past our stations while fighting for escape. This is a fault that can easily be remedied by the operating company, as has already been done in Boston, by the simple expedient of an exit door in the middle of the car, and the posting of notices that the end doors are for entrance and the middle doors for exit.

Thus a proper circulation and distribution of the "human freight" is reduced to a mere matter of natural draught.

But then—ah, me! It requires a few more doortenders. Can they be afforded?

What Became of the Glue?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I'm not a "kicker" in any sense of the word, but am simply one of a numerous body of citizens who find trouble in making their postage stamps stick on letters.

Official reports may show that 1,678,322 gallons of glue were used by the stamp department last year, but it must have been put into the bottles that long-suffering Post Office clerks pass out to a profane public instead of putting it on the stamps when issued.

SURRENDER VALUES.

Complaint by a Policy Holder That Companies Drive Hard Bargains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has been recently reported and not contradicted that enormous losses have been sustained by panicstricken policy holders in the large insurance companies surrendering their policies. This would seem to imply that the companies have been taking advantage of the panic they themselves have created to pay less than fair surrender values in such cases.

May I ask why this should be the case in the mutual companies? I can understand why stock companies might be inclined to drive hard bargains with their policy holders, but I fail to comprehend why the managers of purely mutual companies should not hold the scales fairly even as between outgoing and instaying partners. In the present condition of actuarial science the price of a policy to yield any given rate of interest can be ascertained as readily and with as much certainty as that of a bushel of wheat, and I do not understand why mutual companies, complaining as they do of inability to earn more than a fraction over 4 per cent. interest on investments, should hesitate to buy their own policies at a price to pay 5, 5½, or even 6 per cent. Could they possibly find better or safer investments?

I am the holder of a fully paid up whole term of life policy, which I recently wished to surrender at a reasonably fair price. I was quite willing that the company (the Mutual) should make a fair profit out of the transaction, and to sell at a price to pay 5½ per cent. without taking into consideration future dividends. The company's offer was at a price calculated to pay them about 10 per cent., which was of course absurdly unreasonable, and so necessarily declined.

I may add that the policy in question was twenty-five years old, and the price offered was just about one-third of what I had actually paid in premiums with simple interest at 4 per cent. added.

So much for insurance as an investment!

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Soon after the rumor got about that District Attorney Jerome had asked for warrants for Cortelyou, Bliss, and George W. Perkins, a couple of wandering newspaper men came up with Mr. Babcock of Wisconsin, who for so many years has been Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee. This year Mr. Babcock will not serve, regarding it as one of the years of lean kine.

"Any warrants out for you?" asked one of the newspaper men, by way of pleasantry.

Mr. Babcock gazed upon him gloomily. "Not yet," he said, and moved away.

John Sharp Williams was making an impassioned appeal to Sereno Payne for a revision of the tariff on antitoxin for the benefit of the poor sick children who need it. He had just started on his climax when the gavel fell, announcing the expiration of his time. When an extension had been granted he tried to resume, but before he got fairly started the gavel fell again. This time it was a message from the Senate. "I don't think there ever will be a psychological moment for this appeal," he said.

The Senate's messenger droned through his communication, bowed, and retired.

"As usual," said Williams, "the Senate has come to the rescue at a critical moment."

Senator La Follette of late has been in the habit of sitting on the Republican side of the Senate in the thick of the debate on the Rate bill. He sat to-day in Dolliver's seat in the back row listening intently to McCumber's speech, when Representative Babcock entered the chamber. The two are foes to the death. The Senator nearly bowled Babcock out of Congress two years ago, and has a long knife whetted for his scalp this year.

Babcock rolled along back of the seats in a preoccupied way and flung himself down in Alger's seat, which is next to Dolliver's. Then he turned about toward the Wisconsin Senator to see who his neighbor might be and shake hands with him in the customary manner of Representatives when they visit the Senate. When he saw who his neighbor was, a look of horror possessed his entire countenance, his jaw fell, and he hurriedly gathered himself together and fled through the side door.

La Follette sat through it all with a cast-iron smile.

Still Skeptical About Subway Air.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A vote of thanks is certainly due to Mr. William Hale Herrick, whose convincing letter on "Subway Air" appears in THE TIMES of March 25. Only the "dogmatism of ignorance" can persist in regarding the Subway air as impure merely because it gives off a suspicious odor, or because one has malaise after a Subway trip. It has oil in it, yes. And metal dust, yes. And grime from the streets, and exhalations from the crowds of human bodies. What of it? The scientists have taken out samples of this very air—bottles and bottles of samples—and analyzed them, and they say, with one accord, "This air is pure—in a sense. You must give the right sense to the word 'pure,' and then you will see that the air is pure."

What a relief! All we need to do is to change the Dictionary meaning of our little word, and thereafter we shall ride the Subway in "pure" air from morning to night.

Alabama's Red Cross Flag.

From The Birmingham Age-Herald.

Over the historic Capitol at Montgomery waves not the National flag but the Alabama flag, and not one Alabaman in a thousand would recognize it if he saw it elsewhere than on the Capitol. The flag in question has no history woven into it, for it was not adopted until 1895. It presents a St. Andrew's cross in crimson on a white field. Such a cross is shaped like a letter X, and the books suggest that the Apostle Andrew died on a cross of that design. Few if any other States indulge in flags of their own. A flag is the symbol of sovereignty, and State sovereignty is limited by the Federal Constitution. When we were a part of Georgia we granted to the Federal Government the executive power of punishing treason, and if any one becomes a traitor to the Alabama flag we might have to call in the Federal Government in order to punish him.

A Needle in His Heart.

From The London Express.

A remarkable discovery was made in the course of an autopsy of the body of Dr. Jeffrey Owen Parsons, a young Wimbledon doctor, who committed suicide while in a state of temporary insanity.

Dr. Barton said at the inquest that a common needle was discovered three-quarters of an inch above the apex of the left ventricle of the heart, and fixed across it with the point upward and toward the right side.

It had evidently entered low down in the front of the heart, near the apex, as the scar was plainly visible in the ventricular wall, but no mark could be found in the skin corresponding with the point of entry.

The needle was so black that it must have been in the heart a long time. He had been "suffering from heart disease for five years."

Death was due to acute delirious mania, consequent on chronic heart disease, and accelerated by the injuries Dr. Parsons had received by throwing himself in front of a train.

BY RAIL TO ALBANY.

Why Is the Fare Now Twice What the Projectors of the Road Fixed?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having occasion to go to Albany a few weeks ago, I was unable to get a seat on the Empire State Express at 8:30 A. M. I found room on the 8:45 train, leaving fifteen minutes after. While on the train my thoughts reverted to a pamphlet in my possession published in 1846. This pamphlet contains a survey made by John B. Jervis, civil engineer of the proposed Hudson River Railroad. The estimated receipts of the proposed railroad were as follows:

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS FOR THE EIGHT SUMMER MONTHS.

250,000 through passengers at $1.50	$375,000
250,000 way passengers at 70 cents	175,000
Freight, estimated	50,000
	$600,000

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS FOR THE FOUR WINTER MONTHS.

On freight and passengers, assuming receipts at 50 per cent. greater than the probable amount for the same months of the current year on the Western road, viz., $220,000	$330,000
United States mail	40,000
Total receipts per annum	$970,000

It seems ridiculous that the projectors of the road took into consideration the competition of the steamboats and placed the fare to Albany at $1.50, when passengers who pay now $3 cannot get a seat on a train at the present time. FACTS.

NEW YORK NOT AMERICA.

Mary Mortimer Maxwell Taken to Task by a Brooklynite.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with a good deal of interest the bright articles in the Sunday issues of your paper from the pen of an "English Woman in New York," and have also been interested in the replies from her many critics. I do not doubt but that everything she has written about relative to our homes, our manners, our dress, and our tempers she has actually seen in her peregrinations through New York City. Her description of life in our flats, its conveniences and inconveniences, its trials and its temptations, is no doubt true. But then New York City is not America, (indeed it is more cosmopolitan than American,) and he or she who judges our people by the sample of civilization to be found within its borders will in my opinion go very far astray.

Why, if Miss Maxwell can spare time to cross the bridge and spend a few days in Brooklyn she will get into an entirely different region and very different domestic atmosphere. She will find street after street of pleasant, well-built houses for single families, with little grass plats before the doors and nice little gardens behind, where grow roses and honeysuckles, lilacs, and golden laburnams, while along the sidewalks stand stately trees which form a cooling shade from the Summer sun. If she will walk out in the afternoon after school hours she will find troops of as healthy and rosy-cheeked children as are to be found in England or any other quarter of the globe. In the street in which the writer lives there are rows of houses with every modern convenience, renting from $45 to $60 a month, and from my knowledge of life on the other side of the Atlantic I can assert that in no English city can the privacy, the decencies, and the refinements of family life be better maintained. The women think more of the comforts of their homes than they do of the excitements of the theatres, and do not think less of their husbands because they pay proper attention to their children. In fact they have learned the art to perform faithfully both duties. In these houses there are doors to every room, and all the rooms are let from the street, and "Aunt Louisa" can have all the privacy she wants, while if she is inclined to be religious there is a church on every other block. Or if your bright and observing contributor could take a trip to some of our many suburban towns she would find comfort, privacy, and refined surroundings in abundance for people in moderate circumstances.

A short time ago the present writer paid a visit to a friend living in a Jersey village, and I venture to say there is not a prettier village in all England. All the houses are detached, standing on plots not less than fifty feet front by 150 feet deep. The lawns for the most part are well kept, and all the avenues are finely shaded by large trees, maples, elms, chestnuts, &c., which make an arch of loveliness for nearly eight months of the year. The most of the inhabitants own the houses they live in, which they are able to purchase on very easy payments. But opposite my friend's house there was a very pretty villa which was rented, and on inquiring the rental I was told it was only $35 a month! It stood on a plot 75 by 150, and it had every convenience for housekeeping to be found anywhere in the world. The owner had a sensible wife, three healthy children, and there is an excellent free school within ten minutes' walk of his home. There is also a free library with a pretty well selected stock of books, and all the magazines.

So, thank God, New York is not the whole of America, and all our families are not reared in narrow apartments where the light trickles in through a hole in an airshaft. T. G.

The "Englishwoman" Suspected.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I can see as far as most. I think the "Englishwoman in New York" is a fake. "She" is "a side-tracked husband" herself, and speaks from experience, no doubt. He is nothing more nor less than a reporter for your valuable paper, skilled in writing "ads" for department stores and apartment houses, nicely wrapped up in little sketches about Aunt Louisa and her wanderings to and fro. I congratulate him on his style. It is "without precedent."

Aunt Louisa better get home and put things to rights over there by looking after the ladies who hired the smoking car. That is indeed a fact "without precedent." We never do that in this country.

Let the Pot Boil.

From The Helena (Mont.) Independent.

We are now in the maelstrom grip of a seething vortex of municipal politics. The price of Spring vegetables remains firm and the demand is strong, especially for onions. The prevailing Montana storm is something adverse to the Administration. The vortices of the charybdis are seething. You can see 'em seethe any afternoon. Meanwhile the demand for local real estate is firm and strong. The banks have more money and are loaning more money than during any March month in their history. Let the seething vortex become still more ebullient.

WHY DESTROY NIAGARA?

Plenty of Water Power Available Without Despoiling the Falls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial printed in THE TIMES of Sunday, headed "'Niagara and 'Spier Falls,'" calls to the attention of the public generally the development of the water power of the Hudson River at Spier Falls and Mechanicsville by the Hudson River Electric Power Company. No natural wonders were effaced in either place. Dams were built and falls created, yet so great has been the energy thus made available that the company to-day is either supplying, or has contracted to supply, the major portion of the electricity in the territory from Glens Falls south to Albany, and west as far as Syracuse. The development of the water power in the rivers having their source in the Adirondacks has but just begun, and it is estimated that enough power is now going to waste in Eastern New York to supply all of that territory.

If this waste is conserved by proper water storage, the available power will be increased. With the same conditions existing in Western New York, and with immense posibilities in the rapids of the St. Lawrence, why should Niagara be despoiled? PAUL M. FISHER.

A Question for Young Mr. Rockefeller.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of this morning contains the news that next Sunday John D. Rockefeller, Jr., desires his Sunday school class, "after thinking it over during the week," to advise with him whether, in view of the Fourth Commandment, it is right for him to play golf on Sunday. I do not know what time of the day the class meets, but if one of its members happens to pass up Seventh Avenue, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets, on Sunday morning, from 10:30 to 11:30, he will see something which will extend the inquiry, for he will see a Standard two-horse van, with two men (every Sunday morning) delivering barrels of gasoline to a garage. Often it is Van No. 3,738, with the "Standard Oil" inscription on it, from "630 West Forty-sixth Street." The Fourth Commandment, though silent on golf, which troubles the school leader, is very explicit that "thy manservant and thy cattle" shall do no manner of work on the Sabbath. Maybe the manservant has no choice but to break the commandment or give up his job. C. Q. T.

Rickety Cars on Seventh Avenue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I desire to call your attention to the dilapidated condition of the Seventh Avenue street cars at present running from the Brooklyn Bridge to 130th Street Ferry. There are about twenty-five cars running on this line, which should either be sent to the scrap heap or be entirely rebuilt. The other evening I rode up town in a car in which only five of the fifteen electric lights were burning, the floor was covered with mud and water, the ventilators were broken, the doors had large cracks in them and did not fit, and one of the windows would not stay closed. As it was a bitter cold night, the wind came through the openings and the passengers stood an excellent chance of getting pneumonia, for the car was not heated.

These same cars were the first ones used when the electric underground system was introduced in New York some ten years ago, and it is high time for the trolley line operating in the fashionable west side section to have at least clean cars for its purpose. Can not something be done to have this matter brought to the notice of the company?

Benefits of Traffic Regulation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why is it that at the time that traffic regulation is most needed at Herald Square and Times Square it is suspended? From 7:30 to 11 P. M. the great theatre crowds which are compelled to cross Broadway at these points do so at the risk of their lives from the reckless driving of cabs, carriages, and automobiles, which dash along in every direction regardless of the safety of pedestrians.

I have witnessed many accidents at these points between the hours mentioned, and have suffered many narrow escapes from being run down. It strikes the person of average common sense that instead of urging the relaxation of the splendid traffic regulation at points which have hitherto been a menace to life, and which are now places of comparative safety during business hours, that its extension to cover the evening hours should be hailed as a blessing.

A Soldier's Complaint.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has the Civil Service Commission the right to approve of a promotion of a clerk in the Department of Finance with the same rating in an examination as a veteran soldier, who, though the records of the commission will show 90 per cent. to the soldier's credit, is ignored by the Controller in his generous increase of salaries?

The soldiers would feel very kindly toward the Controller for a little of his kindness, but it seems they can't bring the right kind of pull to get a piece of it, or does the Civil Service Commission stand for anything? J. J. S.

MODERN ECSTASY.

I breathe the Springtime air with zest,
I note the greenness of the trees;
I'm not unfavorably impressed
By these.

I hear the thrushes caroling,
And think the gladsome note they strike
Is, taken all in all, a thing
I like.

I mark the roses, blushing pink,
The bashful violets so blue,
And, on consideration, think
They'll do.

Yet, unlike some, I am not bent
On singing pretty songs to Spring,
Or playing on some instrument—
Bing, bing!

UNION OF BLIND CALLS AGENTS' METHODS CRUEL

Denounces Inquiries Made by Charitable Societies.

PENSIONS RAISE A STORM

An Article on Distribution of the City's Bounty Angrily Attacked at a Meeting.

About two hundred of New York's blind, members of the New York Adult Blind Protective Union, met last night at Teutonia Assembly Rooms, Third Avenue and Sixteenth Street, to protest against "the unlawful methods exercised by paid agents of humane, benevolent, and charitable institutions" in their treatment of the blind. Among the resolutions adopted was the following:

> We denounce as cruel, inhuman, and humiliating the methods adopted by paid agents of societies who without authority enter our homes, asking numerous unnecessary and insulting questions, seeking information from neighbors and questioning the butcher, the baker, and the grocer as to the amount of food purchased for every meal, and we demand the enactment of such legislation as will put a stop to this unbearable and unlawful practice.
> We are opposed to a system under which societies establish elaborate and expensive offices, employ assistants without reserve or question, pay high salaries to many incompetent men and women, thus involving an expenditure of from $4 to $10 for every $1 given to an unfortunate.

A separate resolution was adopted denouncing an article recently written for a charities periodical by James Forbes, Mendicancy Officer of the New York Charity Organization Society. The article, which appeared under the title "A Feudal Survival," dealt with the distribution of the public moneys appropriated for the relief of the indigent blind. This distribution, which takes place once a year on the pier of the Charities Department, was characterized by Mr. Forbes as a barbarism which should give way to a system where the money would be sent to the home of the blind pensioners.

Reference to the article occasioned the wildest outburst of resentment on the part of those in attendance. Ruben Simons, a former employe of the Street Cleaning Department, who was the principal speaker, angrily denounced Agent Forbes, and the hall rang with the applause, the hoots, and yells of the blind audience.

Mr. Forbes, who attended the meeting himself, was challenged to reply to the criticism, but refrained from doing so. Mr. Simons advocated the appointment of a committee to communicate the sentiment of the meeting to the organization employing Agent Forbes, and demanded a retraction of the statements made.

Agent Forbes said after the meeting that when he wrote the article he had in mind only the interest of the indigent blind.

"This storm," he said, "has been aroused by some persons interested in the cheap graft that is made possible by the distributing of the moneys in the way this is done now, but which would be impossible if the money was sent to the homes of the pensioners.

"The money is paid out on vouchers issued by the Bureau for the Outdoor Poor. Any one who has witnessed one such payday of the blind has seen how in many cases runners from the lowest dives in town are escorting blind mendicants to the paymaster's table, only to take them back in herds to their places, where the pension is often spent before nightfall.

"That would be impossible under the system suggested by us. Those blind mendicants would then be in institutions, where they belong, and there would be more for worthy persons afflicted with blindness. The blind in this class are not getting nearly what they should get."

'TWAS A REAL SPRING DAY

Despite the Drizzle, and Too Alluring for Hattie Kohn.

It was really Spring yesterday. It was an open-door, open-waistcoat day, the first of its kind this season.

By all the rules and regulations, Spring was due to come dancing in on March 21. But March 21 was no day for shopkeepers to throw open their front doors.

There was snow on the ground in parts of the city, and yet it was Spring yesterday. The snow was melting and rain drizzled from the skies, and it was muddy and sloppy under foot, and still it was Spring. Front doors were open and coats unbuttoned all day long.

There was no sun. Along the streets of the city men trudged in the mud. They could see nothing as bright as the color of a flower; they could hear only the rumble of traffic and the babble of bartering tongues. And yet Spring was in the air.

Spring was too alluring for Hattie Kohn, and last night she wasn't expected to live. She is 25 years old. She worked as a stenographer for Simeon B. Isendrath, an architect who has an office on the seventh floor of the building at 41 West Twenty-fourth Street. Late in the afternoon some leisure came to her, and she threw open a window and leaned out. A breath of the Spring was too much for her; she leaned too far out, and then tumbled out of the window.

Her body hit a projecting cornice on the second floor, hung suspended a moment while the crowd below gazed up in horror, and then it fell to the sidewalk. Dr. Cottle came with the ambulance from the New York Hospital. He found that the young woman's right arm was broken, and he thought that she had suffered internal injuries that would probably cause death.

Emil Blum, the office boy, was the only person in the room from which Hattie Kohn fell. He could not tell where she lived, nor whether she had any relatives. She seemed alone in New York. No person had gone to the hospital last night to tell more about her.

"She kept blabbin' 'bout Spring," said Emil. "Her head was a good piece out o' the window, an' her voice sorter had a faraway singin' sound. Now an' then she seemed like she was laughin' with a little gurgles like a baby; we got one home. I think I heard her say somethin' 'bout the place she was born in bein' far away somewhere in the country. On the level, I think somethin' went to her head."

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

RUMSEY—DAVIDGE.

Miss Frances Davidge, daughter of Mrs. William H. Davidge of 137 East Thirty-seventh Street, and the author of several novels, was married on Monday to David Rumsey, son of Mrs. William Rumsey, at the Davidge residence by the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix of Trinity Church. Mr. and Mrs. Rumsey are South on their bridal trip. The wedding was followed by a reception for relatives and intimate friends only.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Otis Skinner will close his engagement in "The Duel" at the Hudson Theatre on April 14. The following Monday, April 16, William H. Crane will begin an engagement in "An American Lord."

Owing to the many orders received for seats, and in consequence of the larger auditorium, Daniel Frohman has decided to have the entertainment in behalf of the Mrs. Gilbert Memorial Window take place at the Knickerbocker Theatre on April 17, instead of at Daly's Theatre.

To-night will be Columbia night at "Brown of Harvard" at the Princess Theatre. The two lower boxes will be occupied by the cast of "The Conspirators," the Columbia play recently presented at Carnegie Lyceum.

A special matinée of "Mlle. Modiste" was given by Fritzi Scheff and her company yesterday afternoon at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Many of the leading Broadway stars were in the audience.

William T. Keogh, manager of the New Star, Murray Hill, American, and Alcazar Theatres, has written a melodrama entitled "For a Human Life."

SARAH IN A TENT.

A Report of Art's Progress from the Divinity Down in Texas.

Camp meetings on the Texan plains no longer draw a mob; the human snakes and dog-faced boys are looking for a job. The lion tamers find no work, while former circus stars, like Rainbow Dan the Tattooed Man, are running trolley cars.

For Sarah Bernhardt the divine, in tents of snowy white, has camped upon the Texan plains—she's tenting there to-night. In Dallas she has done "Camille," with full Parisian cast, and done it in a way that Barnum couldn't have surpassed.

The Texans crowd into the tents and madly cheer and clap; the ceiling flounces to and fro; the walls bulge out and flap. Delighted cries of "Sarah!" sound amid the bravo! calls, till Sarah smiles and sweetly bows and then the canvas falls.

And yet there's naught but Sarah's art; she hasn't any clowns. She doesn't ride on dappled nags in insufficient gowns. "Camille" has no trapezes nor a jumping board on springs, and "Tosca," though it has three acts, gets on without three rings.

No side shows line the entrance into Sarah's circus new; there are no peanut stands around the portals to Sardou. You cannot stop and let the fakirs try to guess your weight or neatly twirl the gay baseball and crack the dodger's pate. Of twins imported from Siam great Sarah's troupe is short, and no wild men from Borneo appear in her support. Besides, no living skeletons before the tent door pass, and Sarah's leading man, they say, has never eaten glass. And (quiet, Forepaugh, Ringling, Sells! Down, P. T. Barnum's shade!) there is no sawdust on the floor and no pink lemonade!

McKEE GETS DALY'S THEATRE.

Broadway Hears That the Old Playhouse Will Have a New Manager.

It was rumored on Broadway, last night, that Daly's Theatre, which has been under the management of Daniel Frohman since the death of Augustin Daly, seven years ago, had passed into the hands of Frank McKee. At Mr. Daly's death, Mr. Frohman, together with Klaw & Erlanger, took an eight-year lease of the house. It is now understood that these managers have passed over the control for the remaining year to Mr. McKee.

When Mr. Frohman took Daly's Theatre, it was his intention to use it as a stock company house. This policy was followed for about three years. Mr. Frohman then found the house too large for stock purposes. In the meantime the Lyceum Theatre was remodeled.

It is probable that George C. Tyler will be associated with Mr. McKee in the management of Daly's, and that this playhouse will be used for the permanent New York house of Eleanor Robson of the Liebler forces.

"DESERTER" YARN UP AGAIN.

Gen. Ainsworth Thrown Into a Panic by Prospective Deluge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—"Heavens!" said Gen. F. C. Ainsworth, Military Secretary of the army, with a violent start. "Has that thing started up again?"

Then he turned to his clerical staff. "Gentlemen," said he in a voice that he strove to render firm, "you had better prepare for a season of hard work. The Irish story has come to life again after the usual period of hibernation."

The panic into which this statement threw the Military Secretary's office was unintelligible to the visitor, who had come to find out for a reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES whether there was any truth in the statement that a larger proportion of the deserters in the civil war were Irish than men of any other nationality. Gen. Ainsworth, commanding himself with difficulty, explained:

"That yarn," he said, "supplies this office with three-fourths of its work. At least so it seems to me. Every two years, as nearly as I can make estimate, some persons start that story on its rounds again.

"First we hear of it through single letters. Soon the communications come in batches. One clerk handles them as long as he can keep up with the deluge, and then we draft more, and finally we call for volunteers. Half the letters come from indignant Irishmen who want to nail the canard, and the other half from persons of other nationalities who seek to prove the charge.

"The deluge lasts for months. Then it begins to let up, and we think we are safe. But in a year or two it starts again. If it were not for this nightmare it would be possible to enjoy life in this office.

"Foundation for it? Of course not; not the slightest. Some wild-eyed man dreamed it many years ago. How long I don't know. I have been wrestling with it for fifteen years certainly, and I suppose I always shall, and that my successors to the end of time will do the same.

"Why, there is another yarn that ranks only second to this. It is the story that Washington once said, 'Put none but Irishmen on guard.' It doesn't come up with the frequency of the desertion yarn, but it comes up nearly as often and helps to keep us busy."

Gen. Ainsworth then made an official statement showing that it was impossible to ascertain from the War Department records what nationality the deserters of the civil war belonged to.

ORATORY FROM A HANSOM.

Between Cafes the Orator Was for the Auto and the Wheelbarrow.

A well-dressed man, about 30 years old, leaned from a hansom in Times Square at 10 o'clock last night and told the driver to stop his horse and keep the hansom steady.

"Going to make a speech," he informed the driver.

Standing in the hansom and clinging to the roof he held his right hand above his head, motionless. In thirty seconds at least fifty people had gathered about the cab.

"Gentlemen," declared the orator when he had secured his audience, "I'm for the workingman and the rich man."

"Horray!" called one of the audience.

"I'm for the automobile and wheelbarrow, that's what I'm for. Let us have all we can get in this world. The workingman is happy in his home, but he has his mother-in-law, the same as I have. Don't cheer, lads, don't cheer."

An incipient howl of delight and derision was choked off. Fully a hundred people were gathered about the hansom by this time.

"Now, gentlemen, I am the owner of a great newspaper; at least I think it's great, but Jerome says otherwise. Let us adjourn with three rousing cheers. All together now! One—two—three! Hooray!"

The cabman cracked his whip and the orator was whisked off to the next café.

W. H. McDONALD DEAD.

Well-Known Actor Was One of the Founders of the Bostonians.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 27.—William H. McDonald, the actor, one of the founders of the original Bostonians company, died here to-night of pneumonia. He came here Saturday with "The Free Lance" company, and became ill with a cold on Sunday. Mr. McDonald was born in Steubenville, Ohio, and was 56 years old.

William H. McDonald's family was composed entirely of musicians. When he gave promise as a singer, he was sent abroad to study. He spent five years of hard work in England, Germany, and Italy, under the best teachers. His début was made in Italy, in "Il Trovatore." He was successful from the start, winning fame with parts in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," "Ruy Blas," and "Forza del Destino." He returned to America in 1880 and joined the Emma Abbott Company. His versatility was such that he was as successful in light operas as in the more serious work.

He was one of the Boston Ideals when, in 1887, he, with Messrs. Karl and Barnabee, launched the Bostonians.

THE POLITICAL STUDENTS WANT A TRAFFIC SQUAD

Murderous Doings in the Streets Every Day Now.

HOOFS OVER TWO MEMBERS

Mrs. Judge Was All But Run Down by a Horse—A Warning to Bingham and a Talk on Ambitions.

The Society for Political Study talked about ambitions yesterday. It began the real discussion of the subject before the paper of the day had been read. This was when Mrs. Winifred Judge, the club President, told the members that one of her most cherished ambitions was to have the traffic squad of mounted police maintained in the same numbers and in the same places as when the squad was started. Mrs. Judge had been nearly run over while crossing the Columbus Circle on her way to the club, and there was not a mounted policeman in sight to look after her.

"We wrote to Gen. Bingham, ladies," she said, "and he told us that the traffic squad was to be continued, but as a matter of fact it has not been. Now I should like to have special observations made, to be reported at our next meeting, and then if we find conditions are as bad as they seem to be we will see if something can't be done."

Mrs. Judge appointed a committee to look after the matter, and the members gave their individual experiences.

"Why I was nearly knocked down by a horse," said Mrs. Elliot Jones, "and there was not a policeman in sight to help me."

"Nearly knocked down!" said Miss Theresa Barkalow. "Well, I was actually knocked down by a pair of horses on a big coal cart, and a friend who was with me was, too. We fell flat as flounders, perfectly conscious, and expecting every minute to feel the hoofs of those horses. We were not seriously hurt, but we might have been if we had depended on policemen to help us."

One of the good cooks of the club arose at that point to take exception to Miss Barkalow's remarks, thinking she had said "flat as an omelette."

"No good omelette is flat," she said indignantly, but, being reassured, sat down, and the business of the day went on.

"Is Ambition a Virtue?" was the title of the day's paper, given by Mrs. George W. Wallace. It presented the subject in a non-committal way for discussion.

"It seems to me that personal ambitions only bring sorrow and disappointment in their train," said Mrs. Jones. "When I was a little girl, I remember our family physician was on the School Board. He offered a prize to the child who could read the Beatitudes best. How we rushed home to read that particular chapter in the Bible. Then how badly we all felt when the doctor, who had coached his own little girl, gave her the prize. To be sure, the teacher decided to give a prize herself, and it went to a little boy who was a favorite with us all; but it was very hard."

"Ambitions are not always of the right kind," said Mrs. Prindle. "For instance, those of boys go more in the direction of athletics than to desires to be future Presidents. My small boy is so interested in athletics, that he seems gradually turning to stone with hardening muscles."

"The other day, when he came home from school, I asked him who stood best in his class for the month.

"'Why, Tommy Jones does,' he answered; 'he always stands highest; but, mother, I could lick him with one hand.'"

The "S. P. S.," as the Study Club is familiarly called by its members, voted yesterday to contribute $25 to the memorial for Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake. It will be a purse of gold given by the women's clubs in recognition of the work she has done for women by giving her life and her fortune to the work. The presentation is to be made at the house of Mrs. Esther Herrman. A reception will be given to Mrs. Blake there early in April.

Mrs. Blake, as representative of the Women's Federated Clubs, is to go to Albany on Wednesday next, when the hearing on the Dower Rights bill will be had. The S. P. S. members were invited to attend the hearing.

BURIED TOGETHER.

An Old Couple in Williamsburg Have One Funeral.

There was a double funeral yesterday at the Roman Catholic Church of the Transfiguration, at Hooper Street and Marcy Avenue, Williamsburg. It was that of James Foley and his wife, Margaret, an aged couple. For more than half a century Foley and his wife lived in the Williamsburg section. Foley died on Saturday of asthma. On Sunday his widow died of heart disease. The old couple were buried in one grave in Calvary Cemetery.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

At the wedding on April 26 of Cornelius Bliss, Jr., of this city, and Miss Zaidee Cobb of Washington, Miss Cobb's sister, Miss Elsie Cobb, will be her maid of honor and only attendant. Mr. Bliss's best man is to be Albert G. Milbank, and the ushers selected are Scott McLanahan, Hugh Auchincloss, Reginald Huiderkoper of Washington, Murray Cobb, a brother of the bride; R. B. Borden of Fall River, Mass., a cousin of Mr. Bliss, and Tyler Field of Cincinnati.

⁂

The Washington Heights Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will celebrate their chapter day on Monday in the Church of the Intercession, Broadway and 157th Street, with evening services. It is one of the oldest churches on the Heights. In the days when Mme. Jumel lived at the mansion, she attended the services held in it.

⁂

The Flonzaley String Quartet is to give a concert this evening at Mendelssohn Hall, 113 East Fortieth Street, for the benefit of Auxiliaries Nos. 10 and 16 of the Stonywold Sanitarium. Among the patronesses are Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Mrs. Edward J. de Coppet, Mrs. Frank Damrosch, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. Seth Low, and Mrs. H. F. Osborn.

⁂

The engagement is announced of Miss Louise Vanderhoef, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harman B. Vanderhoef, to Gustave Maurice Heckscher, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Heckscher of 622 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Heckscher is a student at Yale, and will not be graduated until June. Miss Vanderhoef made her début two years ago, at a large reception followed by a small dance, at which time her sister, Miss Nathalie Vanderhoef, also made her début. She is an expert golf player, the winner of many trophies, and the woman champion of the Ardsley Golf Club. No date has been set for the wedding.

⁂

The three performances of "Pygmalion and Galatea" at the Carnegie Lyceum for the benefit of the Arts Library Fund, will take place on April 23, 24, and 25.

Miss Georgette Phillips Park, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks of St. Bartholomew's Church, is the guest of Mrs. William Hazard Field and Miss Mary Field at Chatsworth Club.

Ex-Judge Herrick's Son to Marry.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Charles Jonathan Herrick, son of ex-Judge D Cady Herrick, to Miss Cara Wickes, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Fredenburgh Stephens, on Tuesday evening, April 17, at 8:30 o'clock, at the Reformed Dutch Church of Flatbush, Brooklyn.

HOMER WATSON, C. R. A.

Landscapes by a Toronto Painter in the Canadian Royal Academy.

One of the upper galleries at Cottier & Co.'s, 3 East Fortieth Street, contains a score of oils by Mr. Homer Watson, a landscapist from Toronto, who is not altogether a stranger in New York. Dowdeswell held an exhibition of his work at London in 1890, and the Pan-American gave him a gold medal when he showed some pictures as a member of the Royal Canadian Academy, an organization which enjoys a grant from the Government and makes exhibitions in the principal cities of the Dominion. The show will last till April 14.

Mr. Watson is a landscapist not of many moods, but of a few sturdy and somewhat sombre ones. One thinks of Old Crome and of Constable as one regards these broad stretches of arable land and weighty masses of foliage. "The Pasture Oak" impresses the power and invincible sturdiness of the tree upon one, and the landscape and sky correspond. Similar, but more rugged in texture, is "The Lone Cattle Shed." There is a big note in all that he does. "A Devonshire Cottage" has more atmospheric quality and a fine range of grays in the sky and the curious old rambling piece of artless masonry, and it also shows the tendency of this artist to seize on the simplest motives and carry them out with an avoidance of detail on a few notes of color which recalls the British landscapists before Turner. Among the French students of rustic scenes the closest to him seems Courbet, who painted with a heavy impasto and an effect of muscular power. "The Pit," a sand quarry, with a huddle of carts and horses, and "Grove and Gravel Pit" are of this description. One sees that he is not trying to render nature detail by detail, but trying to produce an impression by eliminating the unimportant. A good forest interior is "Smoldering Embers in the Beech Glade," but here we miss the vivid color effects possible to the flickering of a wood fire in the distance.

"Moonlight on the Creek" is equally massive, and one might say harsh, but it holds through the very singlemindedness of a nocturne lacking in delicate gradations of light.

It cannot be said that Mr. Watson reflects a peculiarly Canadian atmosphere in his landscapes, as Horatio Walker does; for, unlike the latter, he does not make a point of using for picturesque effect the habitans of French Canada. His method seems to be to study a landscape directly, and then work it up in his studio by a process of elimination. He loses thereby a good deal of the freshness of the first impression. He has exhibited with the Glasgow school and in London at the Royal Academy, New Gallery, New English Art Club, and International Society of Sculptors, Painters, and Gravers.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Its Fifth Concert Last Evening in Mendelssohn Hall.

The Kneisel Quartet, at its fifth concert last evening in Mendelssohn Hall, offered a programme that had some altogether unusual features. It played two single movements from two quartets, which it has not often done. One of these, by Mr. Frederick A. Stock, was new; the other from Schubert's G major quartet, is seldom heard nowadays. And, it played Beethoven's quartet in B flat, Op. 130, one of the five great works of his last years on earth, and containing in its finale the last piece of music he ever composed.

This, too, has not been played in New York within the memory of many assiduous concertgoers. Finally, there was Schumann's piano quintet, with Mr. Alfred Reisenauer at the piano. The playing of the quartet suffered somewhat in tonal quality at the beginning from the unfavorable effect of the weather upon the strings; nor was the intonation in the movement by Schubert so uniformly pure as Mr. Kneisel's audiences are accustomed to hear.

But the players accomplished wonderful things in Beethoven's quartet. Then they played as four men inspired; and it was a performance that will long be memorable. Only such skill and devotion as the Kneisel Quartet brings to it can show it forth as the composer intended it to be. In some ways it is the most difficult of all the later quartets; not only technically, for it presents the utmost difficulties in bringing the four independent voices together coherently and in perfect intonation, but also in spirit and in style.

Its mood is capricious and ever-changing, of less spirituality than its fellows. It is full of expansive energy, of sublimated gayety. The tragic note seldom appears in it. Only in the cavatina does the composer's spirit find uplift and serenity. Its six movements have the marvelous opulence of idea, of invention, of expressive power that flowed in an ever-widening stream in Beethoven's later years.

The performance was especially remarkable in the delicacy and finesse of the presto, and in the noble eloquence of the cavatina, but there was nothing lacking in the complete and intimate understanding that illumined the whole work.

The movement of Schubert's quartet is true Schubert in its essence and in its method, and it has many characteristic beauties. But the length and discursiveness of it suggest the reason why the quartet players avoid it. Mr. Stock, the conductor of the Theodore Thomas orchestra, has made some name as a composer, and the movement from his quartet shows him to be a musician of fertility and resource, if not exactly of distinguished originality. It is written in the vein of a scherzo, with fantasy and ingenuity in the treatment of the four voices, and it was admirably played and exhibited to the best advantage.

Alfred Reisenauer, who played the piano part in Schumann's quintet, played it heavily, clumsily, unrhythmically, and quite at variance with the evident intentions of Mr. Kneisel. The audience was very large, filling the hall to its utmost capacity, and it was deeply stirred by the remarkable performance of the quartet.

GLIMPSES OF MOROCCO.

Fez and Tangier as Seen by a Clever Water Colorist.

More than fourscore water colors by Mr. Arthur Schneider hang in one of the upper galleries of Clausen's establishment, 381 Fifth Avenue; they form an interesting commentary on a country which just now occupies the attention of the world. It is Morocco, the lamb regarded with so much disinterested devotion by the wolves of Europe that its future has become a problem for prophets. Mr. Schneider has a pretty eye for color notes, which does not betray him in various sketches having to do with that much-desired gentleman, the Sultan of Morocco.

We see the Sultan on a journey, the Sultan welcoming his chiefs, admiring fireworks, watching a fantasia ridden in his honor, contemplating the sea, and retiring to his tent. There is the royal camp at night. "Powder Play at Sundown" and "Start of Powder Play," "Horsemen Firing," and "Tent of the Camel Drivers" are realistic scenes seized upon from the picturesque side. Tangier is served up in bits—"Street of Tangier," "Outside Tangier"; and Morocco City furnishes many other illustrations—"Gateway at Morocco City," "Market Place at Night," "Slave Market," "Covered Street," "Café at Morocco City," "Jewish Quarter." From Fez come "Terraced Street," "Royal Gateway," and other townscapes curious and full of color. Character bits are not lacking—"A Saint," "Camel Driver," "Negro," "Begging Saint," "Tired Donkey," "The Gimbri Player," "Mule Driver," "Chief and His Soldier," "Pottery Seller," (Tangier is a great producer of pottery and tiles,) "Tattooed Girl," "Mountebank," "With the Water Jug." These are glimpses of a country where such occurrences as Rais Uli's kidnapping raid belong to the humorous events, while serious business is conducted on another scale. If one of the Mediterranean powers gets a protectorate over Morocco these picturesque people and scenes will have to go the same road taken by the Arabs and Moriscoes of Spain.

TICKET-O'-LEAVE CAT DESTROYS BIRD COLONY

Transported for One Murder, It Makes a Long Journey Back.

HARLEM TO 53D STREET

And Getting Into a Warehouse Destroys More Victims, Including Ikey Murphy, Sagacious Paroquet.

Six mysterious murders, five of which were committed yesterday morning, have wiped out the bird colony in the window of the Standard Storage Warehouse Company, in Broadway, below Fifty-third Street. That the culprit, a cat, was detected does not clear up the mysterious features of his crimes. How he gained access to the closely guarded offices puzzles the manager in some degree; but the most curious feature of the case is that the cat, captured after his first offense and sentenced to be transferred to a remote part of the city, promptly made his way back to the storage house, and destroyed the survivors of his first attack.

The little colony of birds, all of brilliant plumage, had for years been an object of interest. Charles M. Maxwell, in addition to two roomy cages, had constructed for his pets a curious stucco structure, full of little recesses, tunnels, and pillared avenues. Each bird appropriated for its own use some particular nook to which it could retire for rest or meditation. When they chose, they were at entire liberty to fly around the office, superintending the work of the bookkeepers.

As in human colonies, the bird colony had a boss. He was Ikey Murphy, a paroquet, whose name had been bestowed upon him in recognition of his emerald plumage and his beak. He was Mayor, Chief of Police, and head confidant of Mr. Maxwell, on whose shoulder he ordinarily sat all day, unless called to administer affairs in the show window.

On Monday morning, when Mr. Maxwell entered the office, Ikey Murphy was screaming and scolding, indicating something amiss. The manager a moment later saw on the floor the scattered feathers of his Japanese robin. The indications were that a cat was the culprit, and Mr. Maxwell, calling assistance, began a search. Ikey sat on his master's shoulder, and his cries of alarm when the searchers entered the piano storage room indicated that the trail was hot.

Soon the cat was found—an ugly, battle-scarred brute, with one black eye and ear, one black forepaw, and a white body and tail. He was seized and thrust into a bag. The most careful inspection failed to reveal how the cat had gained admission to the building.

Half an hour later, when the driver of one of the big vans started his team toward Harlem, he carried the cat, still in the bag, in the bottom of the wagon. At 124th Street and Columbus Avenue the driver halted his horses, opened the bag, and with a well-directed kick, heartily delivered, landed the cat on the sidewalk. The animal ran into an areaway, and the incident was supposed to be closed.

When Mr. Maxwell opened his office yesterday morning a scene of desolation was spread before him. Not one of his fathered pets had been spared by a ferocious enemy. Even Ikey, the strategist, had perished.

"Another cat!" exclaimed Mr. Maxwell, and again he sounded the alarm. The searchers went first to the piano room, and there, to their amazement, found the identical cat of the day before. There could be no mistaking the peculiar markings and the scars of battle. How the cat had found its way back from Harlem could not be explained.

The murderer was put in a bag again, but it did not go out in a van. Mr. Maxwell, when asked about the final disposition of the prisoner, tightened his lips and shook his head grimly. A van driver said he did not know what had become of the cat, but when he went to get a pail to water his horses he was told that the pail was in use, and he came back in ten minutes.

"It's a big pail," added the van driver, "and would hold a cat easy."

DR. ALLEN H. OLIVER DEAD.

Stricken While Dressing in His Room at Presbyterian Hospital.

Dr. Allen H. Oliver, who for eight years had been Assistant Superintendent of the Presbyterian Hospital, was found dead in his room there yesterday.

When he did not appear yesterday morning, a maid went to call him. She found him dead in bed. He was partly dressed, and had evidently been stricken with apoplexy while dressing.

Dr. Oliver was 58 years old. He was born in New Orleans, and came of a well-known Huguenot family. He was educated in Liverpool. In his youth he went to Marseilles, France, where he engaged in the silk business. In the Franco-Prussian war he served in the Garde Mobile. He came to America again, and in 1882 was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania as a physician. He leaves a widow.

Mrs. W. C. Carnegie Dead.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 27.—Mrs. Martha Gertrude Ely Carnegie of Pittsburg, wife of William Coleman Carnegie, a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, died at one of the Carnegie homes, known as the "Stafford Place," on Cumberland Island, last night, from kidney disease. She was 25 years old. Mrs. Carnegie had been spending the Winter on Cumberland Island. The funeral will take place to-morrow at Dungeness, the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lucy Carnegie.

C. A. Wyatt Dies Suddenly.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, March 27.—Charles A. Wyatt, 40 years old, son of the Rev. Dr. Wyatt, one time rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia and brother of William E. Wyatt, Judge of the Court of Special Sessions of New York City, fell dead on Asylum Hill early today. Wyatt's wife and daughter live in Boston.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The Western depression has now reached the Atlantic Coast, although somewhat diminished in energy. It has caused light rain in the Ohio Valley, the lake region, and in Atlantic Coast States, while thunder showers, with fairly heavy rains, have occurred in the Gulf States.

High temperatures in the interior valleys have been succeeded by a moderate wave of falling temperature, which will overspread Atlantic Coast States north of the Carolinas Wednesday. The weather Wednesday will be fair, except in the South, where showers will continue.

Winds along the New England Coast and Middle Atlantic Coast will be fresh to brisk northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light and variable; Gulf Coast, light to fresh north; Lake Michigan, light to fresh north.

Steamers departing Wednesday for European ports will have fresh to brisk west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and colder Wednesday; Thursday fair, fresh west winds.

Western New York and Western Pennsylvania—Snow flurries Wednesday; Thursday fair, fresh west to northwest winds.

	1905.	1906.		1905.	1906.
3 A. M.	50	46	4 P. M.	65	53
6 A. M.	58	46	6 P. M.	64	55
9 A. M.	51	51	9 P. M.	62	53
12 M.	59	53	12 P. M.	55	50

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 50; for the corresponding date last year it was 56; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 40.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 48, at 8 P. M. it was 54. Maximum temperature 55 degrees at 6 P. M.; minimum 46 degrees at 12:05 A. M. Humidity, 93 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 88 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The business world divides naturally into weeks. That publication which is not intended to give a record of the news day by day, but which is produced to offer entertainment, instruction and interest at frequent intervals, or as often as desired by the readers, finds a readier reception once a week than once a month.

The monthly magazine is good; the daily newspaper is good, both for the reader and the advertiser, but something is required in between—something with the character of a magazine, but more nearly the frequency of a newspaper—through which the advertiser can make his appeal at more frequent intervals—can take a quicker advantage of a change in his market, of a change in his methods of production—and can reach a large audience at times when the monthly magazine is unavailable and the daily newspaper undesirable.

The daily newspaper has not a national circulation unless you use a great many of them. The magazine has not the frequency of issue. Therefore, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, a weekly magazine, has a definite, necessary place for the advertising of the manufacturer.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Francis G. Saltonstall.

Francis G. Saltonstall, formerly a stock broker and one of the founders of the Consolidated Exchange, died Monday at his home, 241 West 101st Street, after a lingering illness. He was born in New London, Conn., in 1837, and was a lineal descendant of Gen. Saltonstall. When a young man he went to Chicago with his father and engaged in business. He finally returned to this city and was in the brokerage business for forty years. He was a member of the New York Stock Exchange and one of the oldest members of the Union League Club. Owing to poor health he retired from business about three years ago. A widow and three daughters survive him. Funeral services will be held at his late residence to-morrow morning.

Obituary Notes.

A. A. VAN VOORHEES died in Paterson, N. J., yesterday. He was proprietor of the United States Hotel for the last twenty years. He was born in Paterson and was 72 years old. For many years he was prominent in New Jersey politics.

Dr. WILLIAM J. MAHON of 131 East Forty-third Street, New York, died yesterday at the home of his parents in Hartford, Conn. He was a lecturer at the New York Polyclinic, a surgeon at the Metropolitan Throat Hospital, and belonged to the New York County Medical Society and the Celtic Medical Society.

The Rev. JOHN W. C. DUERR, a retired German Protestant Episcopal clergyman, died yesterday at Bethlehem, Penn., aged 70 years. For nearly half a century he was in active ministerial service at Cleveland, Ohio, where he was founder and rector for many years of one of the largest German Episcopal Churches in America.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duty Reduced on Chinese Shoes—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Marion De Vries, the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained yesterday claims filed by Quong Yee Wo and Tuck High of New York. It appeared from the testimony that the Chinese imported shoes from their native country which were composed of leather, cotton, and other materials. Collector Stranahan concluded that the articles came within the clause in the Dingley tariff for "cotton wearing apparel," with duty at the rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem. The duties were paid under protest, and an appeal taken to the Customs Court, where the importers raised the contention that the shoes should be permitted to come in at only 25 per cent. under the provision in the law for "shoes of leather."

General Appraiser Howel wrote a decision for the board denying a claim made by the firm of A. Mayol & Co., San Juan, regarding the rate of duty applicable to sandals used by the natives of Porto Rico. The Collector at San Juan levied duty on the merchandise at the rate of 60 per cent. under the provision in the tariff for embroidered cotton wearing apparel.

In a decision by Judge Somerville, the board overruled protests filed by E. A. Kline & Co., Robert E. Lane, and others of New York, it being held that Collector Stranahan was within his rights in including the Cuban Revenue Tax, amounting to $2 per thousand cigars, in the dutiable value of importations of cigars from Cuba.

The board partially sustained claims filed by J. & H. Rosenberg, A. Steinhardt & Brother, Leon Rheims & Co., and others, Neuss, Hesslein & Co., New York, and T. H. Davies & Co., Honolulu.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court of the State of New York, held at the County Court House, in the City and County of New York, on the 9th day of March, 1906. Present, Hon. Samuel Greenbaum, Justice.—In the matter of the application of C. F. BOND, INCORPORATED, for authority to change its name to C. F. BOND COMPANY.—Upon reading and filing the petition of C. F. Bond, Incorporated, a domestic corporation, duly verified by C. F. Bond, its President, wherein said petitioner prays for an order authorizing it to assume another corporate name, to wit, the name C. F. Bond Company, and upon filing the certificate of the Secretary of State annexed thereto, certifying that the name which such corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other domestic corporation or a name which he deems so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, and upon filing due proof by affidavit showing that notice of the presentation of said petition has been duly published for six weeks in The New York Law Journal, a daily newspaper published in the County of New York, and in The Sun, a daily newspaper published in the County of New York, in which county such corporation has its business office, and the court being satisfied by said petition and by the affidavits and certificate presented therewith that the petition is true and that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed, and that the petition has been duly authorized and that notice of the presentation of the petition, as required by law, has been made,

Now, on motion of Francis S. McDivitt, attorney for the said petitioner, and no one opposing, it is Ordered that said petition be, and the same hereby is, granted, and that the petitioner herein, C. F. Bond, Incorporated, be, and it hereby is, authorized to assume another corporate name, to wit, the name C. F. Bond Company, on and after the 16th day of April, 1906, and it is further ordered and directed that this order be entered and the papers on which it is granted be filed, within ten days from the date hereof, in the office of the Clerk of New York County, the county in which the certificate of incorporation of said corporation is filed, and that a certified copy of this order, within ten days after the entry thereof, be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and further that a copy of this order be published once a week for four successive weeks in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the County of New York, beginning within ten days after the entry hereof. REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—JOHN E. JONES and another, Plaintiffs, against WALTER H. JONES and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of the directions contained in the interlocutory judgment of partition and sale, duly made in the above-entitled action and filed and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the 9th day of March, 1906, I, Thomas F. Donnelly, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey St., in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 5th day of April, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain half lot, piece or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate in the Twenty-third Ward of the City and County of New York, in the State of New York, and which is known and designated as the northwesterly half of the lot known by the number (23) Twenty-three on a certain map of the Village of Melrose South, in the Manor of Morrisania, County of Westchester, and State of New York, now on file in the Register's office of the County of Westchester at White Plains, the said half lot being bounded and described from said map as follows:

Beginning at a point on the southwesterly side of Mott (now 148th) Street on said map at the most northerly corner of said lot number Twenty-three; thence running southwesterly along the line dividing lots numbers Twenty-two and Twenty-three, and at right angles to Mott (now 148th) Street one hundred (100) feet to the line dividing the Village of Melrose South from the Village of Mott Haven; thence southeasterly along said dividing line twenty-five (25) feet; thence northeasterly through the exact centre of said lot number (23) Twenty-three from the rear to the front, and at right angles to Mott (now 148th) Street one hundred (100) feet to the southwesterly side of Mott (now 148th) Street, and thence northwesterly along said side of Mott (now 148th) Street twenty-five (25) feet to the point or place of beginning. Said premises being now known as No. 532 East 148th Street, in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City of New York.

Dated New York, March 12th, 1906.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—ABRAHAM STURMAN and Another, Plaintiffs, against HENRY NATHANSON et al., Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment for foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 28th day of February, 1906, I, the undersigned Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesrooms, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 28th day of March, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Bronx, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northwesterly side of Timpson Place, distant 283.24 feet southwesterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the northwesterly line of Timpson Place, with the southwesterly line of Timpson Place, with the southwesterly line of 149th Street; running thence southwesterly along the northwesterly line of Timpson Place 100 feet, thence northwesterly and on a line at right angles with Timpson Place 100 feet more or less to the centre line of the block between Timpson Place and Southern Boulevard; thence northwesterly along the said centre line 100 feet; and thence southwesterly on a line at right angles with Timpson Place 100 feet more or less to the point or place of beginning. This mortgage being a Purchase Money Mortgage to secure part of the purchase price expressed in the deed to the defendant, Henry Nathanson, by the plaintiffs and their respective wives. The said deed was of even date with the said mortgage, and recorded simultaneously therewith. Said premises to be sold subject, however, to a mortgage for the sum of $3,000, with the interest at the rate of 5% per annum from the 2d day of December, 1905, now a first lien on the said premises, and also subject to a mortgage for the sum of $4,000, with interest thereon at the rate of 6% per annum, from the 2d day of June, 1905, now a second lien on the said premises.

ROBERT F. WAGNER, Referee.

JACOB HARRIS, Attorney for Plaintiffs, No. 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:

Market Sells Off on Indianapolis News—Demand Sterling Declines.

After a morning of cross-movements in the stock market, in which, however, the undertone of prices was generally firm, the announcement from Indianapolis that the representatives of the miners and operators on the sub-committee appointed to consider the wage question had failed to reach an agreement was followed by sharp declines in those stocks foremost in the rise of the previous day, including Reading, Copper, and Union Pacific, in sympathy with which movement practically the entire list sold off. The break in Reading was especially severe, amounting to some 3 points in all, although much of the fall in this issue, as in the half score others which dropped most sharply, was undoubtedly due in large measure to the elimination of the short interest, at whose expense the advances of the previous day had been brought about. From the low prices established at this time a slow and irregular recovery set in, and ran to the close of the day, when in a majority of instances final losses were confined to fractions. The announcement of an increased dividend upon Anaconda Copper shares served to stimulate a recovery in the copper stocks, since Wall Street took it for granted that this enlarged distribution by one of its subsidiary companies would doubtless be followed by a similar increase in the dividend upon Amalgamated Copper itself. A sharp decline in the foreign exchange market, bringing the rate for demand sterling appreciably nearer the gold-import point, likewise served to temper the disappointment caused by the news from Indianapolis, and still another matter working to the same end was the very favorable annual statement of the Lake Shore, whose earnings for the year, excluding extraordinary disbursements, amounted to over 23 per cent. upon the stock. Resistance to the main price movement of the day was shown by American Ice Securities, which rose 3⅞ points, largely as a result of manipulation; by Hocking Valley, and by the United States Rubber issues.

While the disagreement of the sub-committee on wages, known as the Scale Committee, was not final, inasmuch as its inability to reach an agreement upon the question of wages was to be referred to the general conference of miners and operators at Indianapolis for final action, this coming after the close of business in Wall Street, so far as yesterday's market was concerned the general impression was that a strike of the bituminous miners was the logical consequence of this disagreement. Two matters, however, have important bearing in the event of a disagreement in the conference at large. The first consists of the likelihood of continued production by the bituminous mines of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, since the greatest bituminous company of Pennsylvania, the Pittsburg Coal Company, has announced its readiness to agree to the scale of wages asked for by the miners. It is from this company that the United States Steel Corporation draws its heaviest supplies of fuel, while one of the Steel Corporation's subsidiaries, the Illinois Steel Company, works under lease large bituminous fields in West Virginia, the output of which will not be interfered with by a strike. Again, there is the barest possibility, although this now is nothing more than a possibility, that a strike of the bituminous miners will work toward a settlement of the differences between the anthracite miners and operators, the most powerful incentive to this end lying in the fact that with work suspended in both these great fields the income of the miners' union would be so seriously curtailed as to render a conflict almost hopeless from the start, especially so since the anthracite operators have on hand large reserves of coal.

Outside of the declines in sterling exchange rates, which, of course, brightened the outlook for gold importations, changes in money market conditions were unimportant, although the banks once again lost heavily to the Sub-Treasury, largely, it is understood, as a result of shipments of silver by that institution to interior banks, which are increasing their supplies of this form of currency, in anticipation of the Government's decision to suspend free transfers of silver, and which draw upon their New York balances to pay for the metal. Dividend and interest disbursements on April 1 are figured at some $40,000,000, and as a large part of this distribution will be made from this city, activity in money seems rather plainly indicated. Foreign markets were generally dull, although prices were firm, while purchases here for London account contributed to the steadiness of prices in the forepart of the day.

JOHN W. GATES ENTERS THE BANKING FIELD

Now a Director of the National Bank of North America.

ACQUIRES SOME BANK STOCK

He Is Expected to Get Corporation Accounts for the Morse Institution.

John W. Gates, it was learned yesterday, has been elected a Director of the National Bank of North America. This is the first banking institution which Mr. Gates has entered as a Director, his Directorships being almost exclusively in industrial corporations.

Mr. Gates is active in a number of companies, besides having large interests in Wall Street, and his addition to the Board of Directors of the National Bank of North America, it is expected by the bank's officers, will add largely to its business. It was said yesterday that among the accounts which Mr. Gates will obtain for the National Bank of North America is that of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, in which Mr. Gates and his associates recently purchased a controlling interest. It was said that Mr. Gates will also get a number of other corporation accounts, as well as many accounts of Wall Street houses with whom the firm of Gates & Co. does business.

The entrance of Mr. Gates into the National Bank of North America led to a report that he would also become a Director in the several other New York City banks in which C. W. Morse is largely interested, including the Mercantile National Bank and the New Amsterdam National Bank. This report was apparently without foundation. A man who is in a position to know the facts said that there was no likelihood of Mr. Gates entering the boards of these other banks.

Mr. Gates has for some time been desirous of taking an interest in the National Bank of North America. He has acquired, it is said, a substantial amount of the stock of the bank, although it is not suggested that his holdings represent any large percentage of the bank's capital. Those who learned yesterday of Mr. Gates's election as a Director expressed some surprise at his entering this new field inasmuch as Wall Street has not regarded him as a man who was likely to take an active part in the direction of strictly financial institutions. So far as is recalled in Wall Street, Mr. Gates has never acted as a Director of any bank.

John W. Gates has been a familiar figure in Wall Street ever since the formation of the American Steel & Wire Company, whose affairs he controlled up to the time of its absorption by the United States Steel Corporation in 1901. Many transactions in which Mr. Gates has been interested have served to keep him in the public eye. Among these was his purchase in the open market of a controlling interest in the Louisville & Nashville, which he later turned over to J. P. Morgan & Co. at a handsome profit. More recently he purchased with his associates a majority of the stock of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company. For a number of years he was the head of a Stock Exchange house which bore his name, and he is still a special partner in the firm headed by his son, Charles G. Gates. The Gates firm has been very active in Wall Street operations, having on numerous occasions acted for the moving spirits in extensive movements in the stock market.

The National Bank of North America has been rendered prominent recently owing to the activity of its President, Alfred H. Curtis, in the movement for the passage of a law requiring trust companies to maintain a substantial cash reserve. Mr. Curtis has just completed his first year as President of the National Bank of North America.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 27.—Trading to-day was only slightly better than yesterday in the favorite issues. Recessions were small at the opening, giving place later to substantial declines in several local stocks. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut 5-20s sold in fairly good volume at 93¾. Seaboard 4s reacted ¼.

Maryland Trust common declined 2 additional points, a total of 4 points in two days.

Baltimore Brick common declined 1 point. Seaboard new common showed fractional strength, advancing ⅛. G. B. S. Brewing 4s were the most active, selling steady at 60¾. Cotton Duck 5s, late in the day, sold up ¼.

The close was dull but firm. Sales—bonds, $35,000; shares stock, 1,452.

NEW LOS ANGELES TERMINAL.

Western Pacific Said to Have Franchise for Its Construction.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 27.—The Los Angeles City Council yesterday granted a franchise which is believed to be covertly for the use of Gould's Western Pacific for terminal facilities in Los Angeles. The franchise was for a steam railroad with switches, side tracks, and space for sections through a stretch of territory running from the eastern limits of the city along the Los Angeles River bed to Aliso Street, a distance of three miles.

DE FOREST WIRELESS WAS NOT ENJOINED

Published Reports of Court Action False and Inspired by Malice.

NO MARCONI SUIT DECIDED

President of Assailed Corporation Presents the Proof of Stock Jobbing Plot.

Washington, March 25.—The statement published last Thursday that the United States Supreme Court had handed down a decision against the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, is found upon investigation to be untrue and without any basis whatever, inasmuch as there is no case pending in the United States Supreme Court, or has been pending, in which the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company appears as a party to the suit.

Upon the publication of the erroneous statement, Abraham White, President of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, who is now in Washington, wrote to the Clerk of the United States Supreme Court the following letter:

To the Clerk of the United States Supreme Court, Washington, D. C.

Sir: I beg to inclose herewith a newspaper article which in substance states that "A decision rendered by Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme Court puts the De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company out of business and gives the monopoly of wireless telegraphy to the Marconi company. The De Forest company is forever enjoined from the manufacture, sale, or operation of any system of wireless telegraphy. In connection with the decision Justice Fuller issued an order of arrest for Abraham White, President of the De Forest company, who is held in contempt in that he was served with a subpoena to appear in the action to be examined as a witness, but instead he left the city," &c.

In view of the fact that there is not to my knowledge, any case now pending or recently before the United States Supreme Court upon which a decision has been asked, and considering the flagrant, malicious, injurious, and evident misleading statements above referred to in connection with the De Forest Wireless Telegraph system, I desire to obtain from you an official communication relating to this matter. More definitely do I ask whether or not any decision whatsoever has been rendered against the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company or any company bearing the name of De Forest in connection with wireless telegraphy, or whether there is any case now pending before the United States Supreme Court, or whether an order of arrest for me personally has been issued by Chief Justice Fuller for contempt in failing to appear in the action alleged.

While it is unnecessary to ask for this information on my own behalf, knowing as I do that the newspaper stories referred to are based upon malicious fabrications and unqualified lies, circulated by stock jobbers and rivals in business, and for the evident purpose of injuring the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, whose system is extensively used and indorsed by the United States Government, as well as by the President of the United States, in an authorized published statement given out by his secretary on his return from a sea voyage on the United States battleship West Virginia from New Orleans to Washington, in appreciation of the wireless service rendered by the De Forest system during that memorable trip, when for the first time in the history of the United States the President was beyond the limits of the country, but being at all times, as stated publicly, in communication with the seat of government, remained President, I ask for an official statement from you as an officer of the United States Supreme Court to correct the erroneous impression caused by the untrue statements referred to herein. Respectfully,

ABRAHAM WHITE.

In reply the clerk, James H. McKenney, wrote:

Office of the Clerk, Supreme Court of the United States.
Washington, D. C., March 24, 1906.

Abraham White, Esq.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir—Replying to your letter of this date, I beg to say that no case between the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America and the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company has ever been decided by this court, nor is there such a case now pending on the docket of this court.

Yours truly,
(Signed) JAMES H. M'KENNEY.
Clerk Supreme Court, U. S.

Mr. White said to-night: "In an old patent action between the Marconi Company and the first De Forest Company, which was succeeded later by the present American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, a decision was rendered about one year ago by Judge Townsend in the Circuit Court denying absolutely the patent claims of the Marconi Company relating to the broad field of wireless telegraphy, but allowing several minor claims relating to small parts of wireless apparatus long since discarded by the De Forest companies.

"It was an easy matter to obtain an injunction in that particular case on the minor claims involved, but this, as the Marconi people well know, has absolutely no bearing or effect upon the De Forest wireless system as a whole. Our company owns to-day more than one hundred and fifty patents covering various devices relating to wireless apparatus and the methods employed transmitting and receiving aerographic communications.

"It is ridiculous to assume that we are infringing the Marconi system. As we have been more successful, however, in our work the alleged imitation must be better than the original, as we have the backing and support of the United States Government and have to-day received the largest check ever paid by the Navy Department for wireless service—viz.: $33,500 on account of a single contract involving $55,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

It was erroneously stated in this column yesterday that United Copper closed on Monday at a decline. The stock closed at an advance that day.

⁂

The increase of the dividend rate on Anaconda stock from 14 to 18 per cent. a year, by the declaration yesterday of a quarterly dividend of $1.12½ a share, will doubtless stimulate talk of another increase of the Amalgamated Copper dividend at the next meeting in April. The regular date for this meeting is the third Thursday of the month. The habit of mind by which traders take profits immediately upon the announcement of a thing which has been expected led to some selling of Anaconda yesterday after the dividend was published. The stock advanced to 275½, reacted sharply, and closed at 272½, showing a net gain of only ⅝ per cent. Amalgamated Copper, which was the most active stock in the whole market, advanced in the forenoon to 109⅛, the highest quotation made since the decline from around 118 to par, then reacted to 106⅞, and closed at 107⅞, showing a net loss of ½ per cent. The advance to 109⅛ had evidently invited some profit taking.

⁂

Anaconda is a "quarter stock." Its par value is $25 a share, and it is quoted on the New York Stock Exchange on a per centum basis instead of dollars per share. Thus a quotation of 275 per cent. is the equivalent of $68.75 a share. Yesterday's dividend was at the rate of $4.50 a share, or 18 per cent. a year. But when the stock sells at $68.75 a share, or at 275 per cent., paying dividends at the rate of 18 per cent. on its par value, its yield to the purchaser is only about 3½ per cent., and Anaconda may be considered reasonably high, therefore, as a mining stock. Amalgamated Copper, paying dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. on par value, yields about 5⅝ per cent. on its present market valuation, which is much less than a mining stock ought to yield, but this valuation includes the prospect of an increase of the rate to 7 per cent. at the next period, and ultimately to 8 per cent.

⁂

A curious market fact concerning Amalgamated Copper is that the stock continues steadily to lend at a higher rate of interest than other stocks, ruling about ½ per cent. over the money rate. This has been the case for a considerable time. Certain brokers appear to have been employed to keep the stock on those terms in the loan crowd. Other brokers say that it looks to them like an arbitrary matter. Some believe it is done to make it hard for small brokers to carry the stock. When a stock lends over the money rate, it is generally a sign that the lenders are keener to lend than the borrowers are to borrow. In this case, the borrowers of Amalgamated Copper actually make a profit in the interest account, because the lenders pay them ½ per cent. more than the ruling rate for money to carry the stock. A stock for which there is a very active borrowing demand lends under the money rate. When brokers find that a stock is hard to carry, they are anxious to lend it, and might be willing to give the borrower the better of the interest charge, but that is not supposed to be true of Amalgamated Copper.

⁂

On leaving the floor yesterday afternoon, commission brokers declared that between 80 and 90 per cent. of the trading had been of professional origin. There was scarcely any outside business at all.

⁂

The market made a brave opening, starting at about a parity with Monday's final quotation and advancing ½ to 1 per cent. further, reaching its top about the end of the first hour. On this manifestation of strength there was a lot of profit taking. The House of Twelve Partners sold stocks freely in the forenoon, especially Steel and Amalgamated Copper. The heaviest selling of Steel common, at 39⅞ and 40, came from that quarter. On a report that the miners and operators had finally disagreed at Indianapolis, the market broke sharply at midday, Reading leading the decline as on Monday it had led the advance. The selling movement seemed to check itself. Stocks did not come in very freely on the reaction. Reading went from 136⅛ to 133⅛, Union Pacific from 154⅛ to 152¾, Amalgamated Copper from 109⅛ to 106⅞, Steel common from 40⅞ to 39⅜, and other stocks reacted proportionately. In the last half hour prices rallied moderately.

⁂

The manipulation of American Ice securities, which had a rise yesterday of nearly 5 points, is viewed with general suspicion, not so much on any question as to the intrinsic merits of the stock as because of the ill-repute in which the old Ice issues were held by speculators generally. It is a trite saying in the Street that no man but one was ever known to make any money in Ice stock, not even the friends of that one. The manipulation of the present reorganized Ice stock is understood to be in the same hands as was that of the former stock, and it appeals only to a later crop of traders. Few of those who got caught in the old securities will have anything to do with the new. On tactical grounds it might be argued that the handling of the stock yesterday was unscientific.

⁂

The dullness of the bond market is a by-word among brokers, and yet the head of a very conservative bond house said only this week that the difficulty of procuring good bonds at attractive prices was the only restraint upon business so far as he could see. People, he said, were not satisfied with 4 per cent. or less, the demand being for safe bonds yielding over 4½ per cent., and for investment securities on such terms there would be, in his opinion, an unlimited market. He would venture to say that he could place $10,000,000 in forty-eight hours. It could be argued, therefore, that one way to make a market for bonds would be to mark them down to prices at which investors would take them, just as those who merchandise in other commodities mark down their goods to meet the market. Several instances might be cited of bond issues, hardly advertised at all, that have been placed recently among investors without the slightest trouble. But these were bonds which could be sold to yield the investor between 4½ and 4¾ per cent. or more on his money.

⁂

Mr. Frick's operations in Reading appear to be a source of much anxiety to Wall Street at large. Every little while it is stated positively that Mr. Frick has done this or that in the stock, always turning over a big line of it at an enormous profit. After Reading had begun to break from above 160 it was known everywhere that Mr. Frick had let go of his speculative holdings. Now it is said that he repurchased his line between 125 and 130. If any of this be true, Mr. Frick must wonder how the information gets out. One would think it would embarrass his brokers. A man of Mr. Frick's prominence in the financial world sooner or later has the pleasure of seeing his speculations checked up in a public manner. The Street discovers that certain brokers have been employed by him, and anything that those brokers do in a stock in which he is supposed to be interested is promptly set down to his individual account, whereas in truth such brokers are likely to distribute that principal's business among other brokers instead of transacting it openly themselves, and at other times they receive large manipulative orders from remote sources, with the proviso that they shall be executed openly. This is done by manipulators, to get the impression abroad that Mr. Frick, or some equally prominent capitalist, is doing this thing or that in the market.

Union Pacific, the great guiding light of the bull element, advanced one-fourth of 1 per cent., to 154⅛, on the opening yesterday; declined 1⅝ per cent., to 152¾, and closed at 153⅜, showing a net decline of one-half of 1 per cent. Monday's demonstration in the stock was evidently not of the right sort. When the interests which control the movements of the stock turn it aggressively to the bull side of the market there is never any doubt as to the leadership. With the stock selling above 155, and so active as to dominate the general market, it would look more as if the right interests had taken hold again. In the meantime, it appears to be their policy to hold speculation in check. Brokers reported that there was a good deal of stock in sight yesterday above 154, presumably placed there to check the advance.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Steel Corporation to Take All Bessemer Obtainable for a Time.

The iron furnaces, according to trade reports, have sufficient business booked to keep in operation for two or three months. It is said that the Steel Corporation will take all the Bessemer offered in the next few months, which will have the effect of steadying the pig iron market.

The sales agents of the United States Steel Corporation, who have been holding a series of meetings in New York, report that shipments are breaking all records, with no falling off in unfilled orders. At the close of the year the unfilled tonnage of the corporation was put at 7,600,000, and latest reports show no diminution. The greatest yearly production of the corporation was in 1905, when the output was 9,300,000 tons. The year before it was 6,792,780, or less than the business left on the books with the first quarter of 1906 nearly completed.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal made another sensational rise in the London market yesterday, closing £1 higher for both spot and futures than the last quotations on Monday. Sales were limited to 600 tons of each. The closing was £84 5s. for spot and £80 5s. for futures. The closing prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of the preceding day:

	Tuesday. Bid.	Asked.	Monday. Bid.	Asked.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, March 27.—Money was in good demand and dearer in the market to-day, owing to settlement and month-end requirements. Discounts were weak.

On the Stock Exchange the steady tone was maintained, though the speculative business was small. The more favorable news regarding the Moroccan situation caused cheerfulness, while moderate investment purchases hardened consols and home rails.

American opened firmer and were moderately supported during the forenoon at a fraction over parity. They improved during the afternoon, but the Wall Street advices caused some irregularity. Prices, however, closed steady. Grand Trunk received a good amount of attention and hardened.

Foreigners were inactive. Peruvians recovered a fraction of yesterday's loss.

Kaffirs were cheerful and hardened.

Copper shares were in good demand.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104⅛.

Bar silver quiet at 30⅛d per ounce.

Gold premiums were quoted as follows: Madrid, 15; Lisbon, 4.50.

Bullion amounting to £53,000 was taken into the Bank of England to-day, and £130,000 was withdrawn for shipment to South America.

LIVERPOOL, March 27.—The Cotton Exchange here will be closed April 13, 14, and 16.

LONDON CLOSING QUOTATIONS.

MARCONI WIRELESS TELEGRAPH

The following is a complete certified copy of the injunction granted by the United States Circuit Court of New York against the DeForest Wireless Telegraph Company and

IN FAVOR OF THE

Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company OF AMERICA:

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,
To
DE FOREST WIRELESS TELEGRAPH COMPANY, its directors, associates, officers, attorneys, solicitors, clerks, servants, agents, workmen and employees.

GREETING:

WHEREAS, it has been represented to us in our Circuit Court of the United States for the Second Circuit and Southern District of New York that Reissued Letters Patent of the United States were issued upon the improvements and inventions or discoveries of GUGLIELMO MARCONI, in due form of law, on the 4th day of June, 1901, No. 11,913, for Transmitting Electrical Impulses and Signals and Apparatus Therefor, and that the said Reissue Letters Patent were duly assigned to Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, and that you, the said De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, have infringed the third and fifth claims thereof, which are as follows:

> "3. The combination, in an apparatus for communicating electrical signals, of a spark-producer at the transmitting station, an earth connection to one end of the spark-producer, an insulated conductor connected to the other end, an imperfect electrical contact at the receiving station, an end connection to one end of the contact, an insulated conductor connected to the other end, and a circuit through the contact, substantially as and for the purpose described. * * *
>
> "5. The combination, in an apparatus for communicating electrical signals, of a spark-producer at the transmitting station, an earth connection to one end of the spark-producer, an insulated conductor connected to the other end, an imperfect electrical contact at the receiving station, choking-coils connected to each end of the contact, an earth connection to one end of the imperfect contact, an insulated conductor connected to the other end, and a circuit through the coils and contact, substantially as and for the purpose described."

NOW, THEREFORE, we strictly command and enjoin you, the said De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, and your directors, associates, officers, attorneys, solicitors, clerks, servants, agents, workmen and employees, under the penalties that may fall on you in case of disobedience, that you forthwith and forever desist from, directly or indirectly, making or causing to be made, using or causing to be used, or vending to others to be used, or disposing of in any way, or advertising or offering for sale, any system of wireless telegraphy, or apparatus used therefor, by which electrical signals are transmitted and received, containing, embodying or employing, the said inventions and improvements or discoveries granted by and particularly claimed in the said Third and Fifth claims of said Reissued Letters Patent, or from infringing upon or violating the said claim of said Reissued Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

WITNESS, the Hon. Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the United States, at the City of New York on the 19th day of March, 1906.
(SEAL) JOHN A. SHIELDS, Clerk.

BETTS, SHEFFIELD & BETTS, Complainant's Solicitors.
(Endorsed) United States Circuit Court. Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. of America vs. De Forest Wireless Telegraph Co. INJUNCTION. Betts, Sheffield & Betts, Solrs. for Complt., 120 Broadway, New York City.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that on the 19th day of March, 1906, at the City of New York, in my district, I served the within injunction upon the within-named defendant, De Forest Wireless Telegraph Co., by exhibiting to Francis X. Butler, as Treasurer of said Company, at No. 280 Broadway, N. Y. City, N. Y., the within original, and at the same time leaving with him a copy thereof. Wm. Henkel, United States Marshal, Southern District of New York. Dated March 19th, 1906. U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. Filed March 19th, 1906. John A. Shields, Clerk.

A COPY:
JOHN A. SHIELDS, Clerk.

The effect of this most important injunction on the value of Marconi Securities can be easily inferred, and, we believe, makes the security worth double its present value, and the Marconi System should be a greater monopoly than the Bell Telephone.

BIG RUSH FOR SILVER COIN.

After April 1 the Government Won't Transport It Free.

The operations between the Sub-Treasury and the local banks so far this week have resulted in a loss in cash by the banks amounting to $1,846,000. One cause for this loss to the Sub-Treasury has been the unusually large orders for new silver coins by out-of-town banks, payment being made for this coin by their New York correspondents.

This unusually heavy demand for new silver is due to the fact that after March 31 the Government will discontinue the free transportation of these coins. The appropriation to defray the expense of silver coin transportation has been practically exhausted, and, beginning with the first of April, the banks requesting allotments of new silver coin will have to meet the expense of transportation. Anticipating this situation, the out-of-town banks are now providing themselves with new silver for some time to come. to come.

NEW DIAMOND MATCH ISSUE.

Special Meeting of Stockholders May 1 to Consider It.

The Diamond Match Company, one of the earliest of the "trusts," has called a special meeting of stockholders for May 1 in Chicago to pass on a proposal to increase the company's stock from $15,000,000 to $16,000,000. The additional capital is to be used partly in the liquidation of a debt incurred in the establishment of the company's plant in California.

The new issue, which falls short by 25 per cent. of the amount invested in the California plant, will be offered to stockholders at par to the extent of 6 2-3 per cent. of their holdings.

The subscription privilege will expire June 15, and payment for the new stock must be made between May 10 and that date.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICES.

WHEREAS, THE COPARTNERSHIP HERETOFORE existing under the partnership and business name of SIGMUND HEINE AND COMPANY, in New York, and LEUMANN, BOESCH AND COMPANY, in Switzerland, has been this day dissolved by the retirement of Sigmund B. Heine therefrom, and the purchase of all his interest in and to said copartnership by the copartners, Hans Leumann and Emil Boesch, both of St. Gall, Switzerland, constituting a majority of the members of said copartnership, and

Whereas, The said copartnership had business relations with foreign countries, and

Whereas, Said Hans Leumann and Emil Boesch, together with Isaac Weingart and David May, both of the City of New York, have this day formed a copartnership to continue in business at the several places of business of said old firm, and have acquired all the assets and property of whatsoever nature thereof, and have assumed all its debts, obligations, and liabilities.

Now, therefore, we, Hans Leumann and Emil Boesch, both of whom reside at Kronbuhl, in the Canton of St. Gall, Switzerland, and Isaac Weingart, residing at No. 2 East 127th Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, and David May, residing at No. 1,845 Seventh Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, do hereby certify, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, that we, constituting said firm as aforesaid, shall continue the use of the partnership and business name of "LEUMANN, BOESCH AND COMPANY," in connection with our business in Switzerland, and shall use the partnership and business name of "LEUMANN, BOESCH AND WEINGART" in connection with our business in New York City and County, our principal place of business being located at 593 Broadway, New York City and County, and we further certify that until July 1st, 1906, solely for the purpose of collecting and receipting for subsisting accounts and notes, and securing possession of goods and property now belonging to said firm of SIGMUND HEINE AND COMPANY, we shall continue to use in the City of New York the firm name of "SIGMUND HEINE AND COMPANY" when by us deemed proper for said purposes.

Dated New York, March 14, 1906.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading on the Curb Dull and Irregular.

After a Firm Opening the Market Falls Off on Light Selling—Some Gains at the Close.

In a day of dull trading yesterday curb stocks were markedly irregular. At the opening of the session there was a tendency to firmness, which quickly fell away, especially in the mining list, on light selling which appeared to be profit taking. The total of the day's trading was small, and at the close a slightly better tone prevailed. United Copper, after selling from 68 down to 66½, closed ¼ point above the opening at 68¼. Manhattan Transit lost some of its recent activity, though it continued yesterday to lead the industrial list in number of sales. It closed at 4¾, ⅛ above the opening, after selling 4,500 shares.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Shorts Were Driven to Cover by a Sudden Bull Attack.

Shorts who had picked up a little confidence on Liverpool weakness and absence of support in the early trading on the Cotton Exchange yesterday were subjected to a harsh round-up late in the session by brokers known to have connections with the bull clique. After sagging to 11.02, May was suddenly bid up 18 points, to 11.20, accompanied by a scramble to cover cotton sold earlier in the day. On the advance May gained 5 points over July, the latter reaching the high limit at 11.15. Following the sharp upturn, quiet was restored, and the market eased off, closing at 11.17 for May and 11.12 for July.

Prices were 3 to 4 points off at the opening in response to a five-point decline in Liverpool. The latter market lost another point, closing 6 points down for the day, the tone being steady, with a moderate demand for spot. There were 8,000 bales of spot cotton sold in Liverpool, of which 7,000 were American. Manchester reported a fair business in cloths, with yarns quiet but steady. The New York spot market was unchanged at 11.70 for middling, against 8.05 last year, and 11.95 for Gulf, against 8.30 last year.

A good many opinions expressed among operators at the ring were to the effect that the trade has sufficient supplies back of it, and a large crop ahead, and that it remains for the bull party to rally the market from recessions and sell what it can to the shorts. One broker said that if the campaign was carried into May the losses on poor grade cotton that would have to be accepted on contract to sustain prices would more than offset profits on futures.

The leading factor in cotton is still confident of his position, however, and declares that he has not modified his views. Literature was widely circulated yesterday purporting to disclose a backward condition of the new crop, exhaustion of supplies in farmers' hands, a world-wide demand for the staple, with spinners displaying more anxiety and indication of a spread of the boll weevil this year.

A Texan at the Exchange yesterday said that reports of labor scarcity in his State were exaggerated; that it commanded a higher price, and had to be imported, but that the acreage in Texas would be increased from 3 to 5 per cent. this year, and that the present outlook was promising. He said cotton had been planted very much earlier than usual as an experiment to mature a crop in advance of the boll weevil. An observer who has been traveling through the South on a tour of inspection reports that there was a great deal of cotton in evidence along his route.

The total receipts yesterday were 29,180 bales, against 21,964 last week and 38,623 last year. Exports were 8,083. Total receipts since Sept. 1 amount to 6,653,810 bales, against 7,719,327 last year; exports, 5,021,081, against 6,251,844 last year. Interior receipts were 14,521, against 13,502 last week and 21,952 last year. Shipments, 18,328, against 17,453 last week, and 23,582 last year. Estimated receipts for to-day are: Houston, 4,250 to 4,750, against 4,720 last week, and 16,410 last year. Galveston, 5,000 to 6,000, against 4,382 last week and 13,158 last year. New Orleans, 8,000 to 9,000 against 9,053 last week and 13,382 last year.

Cotton Opinions.

HUBBARD BROTHERS—Our local trade, while bearish, expects that the strength in May will sustain the market and change the foreign markets to-morrow.

ATWOOD VIOLET—Exports since Friday amount to 54,000 bales out of port receipts of 59,000 bales, leaving only 5,000 bales to help out the home mills. With port receipts running only 60 per cent. of those a year ago, and exports running equal to those at same time last year, port stocks will soon be at a very low ebb.

Following are the opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

New Orleans closed steady, 8@9 points up; May at 11.27, against 11.18 Monday, and July at 11.37, against 11.29 Monday.

THE GRAIN MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The wheat market was somewhat irregular and without much feature, either as to trade or the fluctuations involved. The market, in fact, closed unchanged from the previous night. Its greatest range was about ⅝c on the active months, with business confined principally to local operations. The market opened lower, but was strengthened by a sharp upturn at Chicago. For a time the undertone remained firm, yielding again toward midday. The foreign markets were all lower, the decline at Liverpool being ¼d, at Paris 5@10 points, at Berlin ¼ mark, and at Budapest 8 points. The export business amounted to 12 loads. Cash wheat was steady, closing as follows: No. 2 red, 85¼c; elevator, and 88½c, nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 88½c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—The corn market was very narrow all day, and closed about steady at a partial ⅛c net decline. Its main features were an early drop on increased receipts, a decline of ⅛d at Liverpool, and very light clearances. Subsequent rallies were inspired by covering, and the market closed fairly steady. There was an export business of 10 loads. The cash market in New York closed steady on the basis of 54c for No. 2 in elevator, and 51c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 52c, and No. 2 yellow, 52c, free on board, afloat.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A typographical error in THE TIMES yesterday morning made it appear that the stockholders of the Jefferson and Monroe banks "opposed" instead of approved the merger of these institutions at the special meeting held on Monday.

Thomas B. Bailey was elected to the Directorate of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company yesterday, to succeed George E. Bradley, who died on Monday. The retiring Directors were re-elected. All of the old officers were re-elected except C. J. French, one of the Vice Presidents, who was succeeded by Charles P. Ware.

J. W. Hardley was elected to the Directorate of the Mohawk Mining Company yesterday to succeed the late John Stanton. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

At a meeting of the Directors of the New Amsterdam Gas Company yesterday the retiring officers were re-elected.

Dominick & Dominick have published a pamphlet on the Southern Railway, showing its progress and setting forth facts of interest to investors.

At the annual meeting of the Orange & Passaic Valley Railway Company and of the Jersey City, Harrison & Kearney Railway Company, subsidiaries of the Public Service Corporation, held in Newark yesterday, the retiring Directors were re-elected.

These Directors of the Corn Products Company were elected yesterday at the stockholders' meeting, held in the Standard Oil Building: F. T. Fisher, J. A. Moffett, F. Q. Barstow, and C. L. Glass.

S. L. Blood, an old-time member of the New York Stock Exchange, has formed a copartnership under the firm name of S. L. Blood & Co., with Edward D. Jones and Charles Blackwood.

The engraved bonds and voting trust certificates for the common and preferred stocks of the new Interborough-Metropolitan Company, it was announced yesterday, will be ready for delivery about June 1. The holders of Morton Trust Company certificates of deposit for Interborough Rapid Transit stock may collect the 2 per cent. dividend recently declared on that stock by presenting the certificates of deposit at the Morton Trust Company on or after April 2.

TO ACT ON TOLEDO BONDS.

If Interest Isn't Paid Holders May Form a Protective Committee.

Holders of Toledo Railway and Terminal bonds, on which there was default on Jan. 1, are planning a protective committee to take legal steps to declare the bonds formally in default in case the interest on them is not paid by April 1, when the ninety days of grace will expire. It was said yesterday that no formal announcement of the formation of this committee is likely to be made until April 1, for the reason that the bondholders are inclined to allow every opportunity for an adjustment. If the coupons are not paid by April 1, it was said yesterday that in all probability steps would be taken immediately thereafter to collect both principal and interest by means of foreclosure proceedings.

So far the Morgan interests, who are in control of the company, have given no intimation of their intentions. The affairs of the Toledo Railway and Terminal Company, it was said yesterday, are regarded by the Morgan interests as a relatively unimportant factor in the general Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton situation, and it was added that action in regard to these bonds has been delayed pending the settlement of more important matters, including the lease of the Père Marquette Railroad, which the Morgan interests are attempting to set aside.

PERMIT TO ENTER SEATTLE.

Franchise Granted Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Road.

SEATTLE, Washington, March 27.—At the regular meeting of the City Council last night, the application of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway for a franchise to enter this city, which has been pending for more than two months, was granted. According to the statement given out by the Milwaukee officials, the construction of the Washington division of the new transcontinental road will be started with this city as the base of construction supplies, within the next two weeks.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Price changes on the local Exchange were irregular to-day. Causes for recent depression of local securities continued to have their effect. Illinois Brick and Western Stone sharply contrasted. The former met minor speculative liquidation, prompted by trade development forecast here for a fortnight or more.

The stock eased from 65 to around 63¾. On the other hand, Western Stone sold between 40¼ and 42. The higher figure—which is high record—was made for odd lots. Both of these companies have profited by the great building business in the Chicago district in the last year or so.

There are some minor pool operations in Western Stone, as there were in Brick some time ago. The competition in the stone trade, however, is not such as may develop in brick. Men who are selling their speculative lines of brick stock point to the fact that active competition is now in the field. The National Brick Company is supposed to be booking an agreement made when the Weber interests first went into the Illinois company. Litigation is on foot to prevent this company from pursuing its business, but probably this can be successfully fought by the Weber party.

The negotiations over the price to be charged for local electric light and power service seem to have disturbed some stockholders in Chicago Edison. To-day a few shares came out, and the price broke to 148. This is a decline from the high level of 173½ in 1904. The low price that year was 140. Unless Council action is such as to jeopardize current dividend rates, the stock is reaching a bargain-counter level. Doubtless the attitude of the general investment public toward public service corporation stocks is a factor in the situation.

Money, 5½ to 6 per cent. New York exchange, 5 cents discount to par.

BOUGHT BIG FOUR STOCK.

Lake Shore's Holding Now Increased to $18,752,700.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway purchased during the last year $7,528,700 of the stock of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway, commonly known as the Big Four. This increase in the Lake Shore's holdings of this stock was made known yesterday in the annual report of the Lake Shore. That road's total holdings of Big Four stock now amount to $18,752,700. During 1905 additions were also made to other stockholdings of the Lake Shore, including its holdings of Indiana, Illinois & Iowa Railway stock, which were increased from $4,872,600 to $5,000,000.

The earnings of the road for last year show heavy increases in both gross and net. As usual, however, large amounts were charged to betterments and additions, so that the final surplus of the year was relatively small. The earnings for 1905 compare as follows with those for 1904:

	1905.	1904.	Increase.
Gross earnings	$38,600,810	$35,161,053	$3,439,757
Oper. expenses	24,227,715	21,627,046	2,600,669
Net earn.	$14,373,095	$13,534,007	$839,088

This final surplus was added to profit and loss account, which at the close of the year, after sundry adjustments totaling $279,738, amounted to $17,118,973.

Referring to the large expenditures for new equipment the report says that during the year large sums were spent in bringing the equipment to a higher standard by replacing small capacity engines and cars with equipment of larger capacity.

The funded debt of the Lake Shore was increased during 1905 by $10,000,000, owing to the issuance of the balance of the authorized issue of $50,000,000 of 4 per cent. gold bonds.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 27.—The local money market is firm. Call loans, 5½@6 per cent.; time loans, collateral, 5@5½ per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds, 10c discount; clearings, $26,613,252; balances, $1,689,516; Sub-Treasury debit, $36,940.

Local copper shares opened strong and generally at an advance over Monday's closing figures, but later, in sympathy with the weaker tone displayed by the New York market, selling orders made their appearance, and losses were recorded throughout the list. Late in the afternoon the market showed some hardening tendency, on the increase in the Anaconda dividend. The closing was steady and at an advance over extreme low figures for the day.

Seattle a Bank Reserve City.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—All of the National banks located in Seattle, Wash., having requested the designation of Seattle as a reserve city, the Controller of the Currency to-day declared Seattle a reserve city, as authorized by the act of March 3, 1887, and National banks located therein may hereafter upon approval by the Controller act as reserve agents for other National banks.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The local market displayed considerable irregularity, and at the end prices were not far from last night's level. Reading and United States Steel common were the active leaders, but Cambria Steel, Lehigh Valley, Philadelphia Company receipts, Philadelphia Electric, and Philadelphia Rapid Transit also displayed some animation. The last named developed heaviness near the close, as no announcement was made up to that time as to what Mayor Weaver would do with the Market Street extension ordinance. To-day was the last day on which he could sign or veto the bill.

Commission house business was a little better, but the trading element is moving very cautiously.

Dollar Lots on Hot Water Street.

A tract of 510 acres, between Calverton and Riverhead, L. I., was offered at auction yesterday in the Real Estate Salesroom by Bryan L. Kennelly, and was sold to Minturn Post Collins for $7,250. The property was described as fronting on Hot Water Street and extending to within 60 feet of the Peconic River. With these boundaries Mr. Collins felt justified in buying the tract at the rate of $14 an acre, or about $1 a lot.

The McKnight Realty Company have sold the following plots in its property known as West Fenwood, at Bayside, L. I.: To Beers Frost, Blocks 3, 4, and 7, seventy-six lots, for $17,400; also, to Thomas C. Bell, Block 10, nineteen lots, for $3,550; also, to Harry E. Bramley, Block 2, twenty-two lots, for $4,000; also, to William Teller, Block 9, thirty-six lots, for $7,500; also, to a Mr. Bowles, Block 8, thirty-four lots, for $8,000. These transactions complete the sale of all of the McKnight Realty Company's West Penwood property, which was put on the market only a few years ago.

John Montgomery Ward, at one time Captain of the Giants, and who quit baseball to become a lawyer, has bought the property known as the Rod and Reel Club, at Babylon, L. I., formerly owned by Royal Phelps, consisting of 125 acres, with a handsome dwelling, adjoining the property of August Belmont. The broker in the deal, Jeremiah Robbins, also reports the sale of the Arthur Edwards farm of 100 acres, adjoining the August Belmont nursery farm at North Babylon, to John M. Zurn of Brooklyn. The Edwards farm has been held in that family since about 1820.

Brooklyn Flats Change Hands.

Charles Galewski has bought from Jennie Heineman 1,234 and 1,236 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, two four-story double flats, on plot 40 by 100.

Kupperstein & Lowenfeld, as brokers, have sold the following Brooklyn properties: 576 Myrtle Avenue, a three-story flat, 25 by 110, to S. Silverman; also, 519 Myrtle Avenue, a four-story double flat, 25 by 100, to J. Horowitz; also, to a Mr. Goldstein, 719 De Kalb Avenue, a three-story dwelling on plot 50 by 100.

FLORAL PARK.

20 Minutes From Broadway.

On completion of the Penn. R. R. Subway.

Lot $300. $10 Down & $5 Monthly

With improvements, running water, etc.; no interest or taxes for one year. Title guaranteed. This is without a doubt the most beautiful and attractive piece of property and investment that was ever placed on the market before. Everybody knows John L. Childs, the seed and flower raiser; this property adjoins his handsome estate; it is also right at the depot and trolley. Floral Park has the best railroad service on Long Island, owing to four branch roads running through it. These lots are as good as 100 per cent. investment and could not be bought for less than that in a year from now, and a beautiful home site for any one wishing to build. All the new Penn. R. R. tunnels and improvements go straight to this property. For free tickets, booklets, etc., apply to

SEABURY FREES M'CABE IN JURY-FIXING CASES

Says There's Lack of Definite Proof Against Lawyer.

WRIT READY, WASN'T SERVED

Tillinghast Swears He Received Money from Adjuster Bagg "In a General Way."

Judge Seabury discharged late yesterday afternoon Ambrose McCabe, an attorney for the New York City Railway Company, who had been under examination before him on the charge that he had been connected with the jury-fixing cases which led to the conviction of Tillinghast.

Previous to the discharge of McCabe, ex-Judge Hatch had obtained from Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court an alternative writ of prohibition, restraining Judge Seabury from sitting as a committing Magistrate. The writ was not served, because Judge Seabury had then already discharged the man. In doing so he said:

"Before I decide on the question of discharge I think the defendant ought to make a statement. It seems to me that there is not suffiecent proof here to hold the defendant for the Grand Jury. There is no definite proof that the money was paid by McCabe. There is lack of sufficient proof to hold the defendant, and I shall discharge him."

After the case was disposed of Mr. McCabe said:

"We did not serve the writ, for the obvious reason that it was not necessary. From the beginning we contended that Judge Seabury had no right, as City Court Justice, to sit as a committing Magistrate, but we let it go on, so as to dispose of it quickly, all the while reserving our rights.

"The idea that a reputable gentleman should be imperiled at the instigation of crooks and criminals!

"The whole affair was a conspiracy to injure me on the part of a lot of discharged employes who were sore on me because I discharged them. I cut down expenses when I went with the Metropolitan system and saved the company more than $200,000, and because I was working for the interests of the company these fellows put up a job against me, but it failed."

In moving for a discharge ex-Judge Hatch said there was no proof of the charge of bribery.

"I challenge any one to show that McCabe ever gave Tillinghast any money. Tillinghast's testimony only shows that at some time he received money. He doesn't know McCabe."

William H. Tillinghast, brought from Blackwell's Island, said that he had known Stanley S. Bagg, an adjuster for the street railway company, for sixteen years, having met him while serving as a juror in the City Courts. He swore that he had received money from Bagg "in a general way," and that he had never served on a jury without receiving money at the end of a case. This money was given to him, he swore, in a corner of the court corridors or in some hotel.

He said that he had been employed by the company after he had served on a jury. Previous to that he could not get employment. The witness acknowledged that before his recent conviction he had been convicted of forgery in Illinois, and that he had served a sentence.

Assistant District Attorney Kresel appeared in court with a bundle of papers, and he surrendered them to ex-Judge Hatch and then left the court.

"Do you reappear?" he was asked.

"No, we do not; we are still on strike."

ROSEY THE LAWYER QUITS.

Essex Market Court Not What It Was —He's Been There 35 Years.

"Rosey the Lawyer," whose fame as the head of the Essex Market Bar Association has reached all over the country, is going to retire from the practice of law. He announced it yesterday, astounding his fellow-members.

"Why is it?" he repeated, when Joe Levy, the Duke of Essex Street, ran excitedly into the law office in Essex Street to ask about the great news. "Why it's because there's nothing doing here any more. All of the old-timers have gone; the Judges are fining people 1 and 2 cents each. When I come into the court the cops are all the time saying, 'Sit down; sit down.' Nobody will spend money for good legal advice any more.

"I'm not used to it. I am Rosey the Lawyer, and I can't bear in my old days to see the traditions of our noble profession shoved aside while the grand old room where so many argumentative and oratorical battles have been fought is filled with Jerome's assistants. No, Siree! Deliver me from this."

Rosey, whose real name is Hyman Rosenschein, came over here from Prussia without a penny to spare. He has practiced in the Essex Market Court for thirty-five years, and is said to have got together a comfortable little fortune. Several celebrated cases have come to his hands. One of his clients was a woman who was arrested in Grand Street for begging.

"She had her hands out and was muttering," said the policeman.

"Had her hands out!" repeated Rosey, with all the indignation of an outraged constitutionalist. "Why, everybody on the east side has his hands out and uses them when he talks. He can't talk unless he does, Judge."

The court remarked that the point was well taken, and, learning that the policeman had no more evidence, said "Discharged!"

The Essex Market Bar Association, headed by J. Choate Pearlman, is preparing to mark the retirement of their chief luminary in a befitting manner.

WRIT DELAYS THE TRAVE.

Three Persons About to be Deported Saved by Habeas Corpus.

The North German Lloyd liner Trave was about to sail for Bremen yesterday from Hoboken, when, a minute before the gangplank was raised, an excited young man brushed by the guards, waving a document with the seal of the United States Circuit Court on it before their eyes.

In another minute the messenger was triumphantly descending it with these persons: Mrs. Theofila Okonienko, a widow, 62 years old; Nikola, her son, 25 years old, a violinist, and Mrs. Okonienko's twelve-year-old niece, Biflac Koflachna. The three had been brought to this country from St. Petersburg through the instrumentality of the woman's brother, Alexander Wanga, who is a wealthy man without family. The Board of Inquiry decided to send them back because the girl has not been legally adopted by her uncle.

Wanga sought the advice of Lawyer Elias Rosenthal almost at the last minute, when the trio were already on the Trave to be deported. Mr. Rosenthal obtained two writs of habeas corpus from Judge Lacombe. Whether the three can stay in this country or not will be argued on Friday.

STREETS WILL BE FLUSHED.

Although Ellison Thinks That a Lazy Way to Clean Them.

Owing to the intervention of Mayor McClellan, after the Departments of Street Cleaning and of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity had been in a dead-lock for about six weeks, Fifth Avenue, Sixth Avenue, and the streets of the east side below Houston Street will be thoroughly flushed in the next twenty-four hours, so that some of the accumulated dirt may be cleaned away.

Commissioner Ellison of the Department of Water Supply refused to allow Commissioner Woodbury to use this water for street flushing, saying that there was a water shortage, and that washing the dirt into the sewers was a lazy way of cleaning and merely clogged the sewers and cost the city more money. Commissioner Woodbury carried his case to the Mayor, who has now persuaded Commissioner Ellison to withdraw his objection, for twenty-four hours only, to allow a thorough cleaning.

HORSE HAD AUTOMANIA.

And Got Nervous Prostration After Being in Accident, Jury Hears.

Before Judge McCarthy in the City Court a jury awarded $250 to Reginald Rives yesterday in a suit against St. John Wood, whose automobile so frightened the near leader of the four-in-hand drawing the coach Pioneer that the animal has been practically useless ever since.

Reginald Rives is the whip of the coach Pioneer. Mr. St. John Wood is a jeweler and an enthusiastic automobilist. Mr. Rives testified that on March 20, while he was driving the coach through Central Park, the automobile owned by Mr. Wood came down the east drive at a terrible speed and so frightened one of his horses that the animal was seized with nervous prostration, never fully recovering his health, and had to be sold at a loss of $250.

Charles H. Wilson, a coaching expert, enlivened the testimony with his account of how he had tried to drive the horse after his fright. He said: "He seemed to be thinking of the automobile all the time. He was as timid as a woman, and utterly useless as a coach horse."

Mr. Wilson further testified that the nervous prostration of the animal was due to the collision in the Park when Mr. Wood's automobile caught the animal under the forelegs, throwing him down with great violence. After that the horse could not see an automobile without exhibiting every sign of terror.

SAILED AROUND THE GLOBE.

The Sachsen's Sailmaker Died at Sea— Was Going Home to Marry.

The sailing vessel Sachsen, Capt. Rottgers, which left this port March 9, 1904, returned yesterday after circumnavigating the globe. She brought the body of Herbert Nee, a sailmaker, who died of consumption last Saturday. He was to have left New York on the first steamer for Germany, where he intended to get married. His body was sent ashore last night, and Capt. Rottgers will write to the waiting sweetheart.

The Sachsen saw plenty of bad weather in her journeyings from port to port. She was struck by three big stern waves, which damaged her considerably, when off Cape Town.

MUST NOT SELL CIGARS.

Acker, Merrall & Condit's Bristol Building Lease Adjudicated.

The Court of Appeals affirmed yesterday the decision of the lower courts in the case of the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company against Walter J. Salomon and the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company. This decision was, in effect, that the latter company shall not be permitted to sell cigars or tobacco in the store in the Bristol Building, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street.

HORSE CARS MUST GO, SAYS THE EAST SIDE

A Volley of Red-Hot Protests to the Railroad Commission.

DEMAND FOR TROLLEY LINES

Complaints of Delay, Dirty Cars, and Rowdy Conductors—Electrification Waits on Bridge Approaches.

Twenty representative men and women of the lower east side, which has decided that it has had enough of the kind of cars supplied over there by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, appeared before the State Railroad Commission at 17 Battery Place yesterday morning to tell their troubles.

They had so much to say about how the Metropolitan system has subjected them to delay, dirt, discomfort, exposure to disease and robbery, and many other things, that, though some of it was submitted orally, the rest went down on record in writing. They argued for the installation of trolley lines on Canal, Madison, Spring, Delancey, and other streets in their part of town. The commission will render an opinion in a few days as to whether the horse-car system shall be abolished.

Oren Root, Jr., Superintendent of the system, was on hand to represent the company, and when questioned by the commission, he said that the company has long had the electrification of the horse car lines in view, but has been waiting for the final settlement of bridge approach problems before taking action.

Those opposed to the horse cars declared that the system was ten years behind the times. They declared that the cars now running were dirty and small; that during the rush hours they were packed, and that the company made no attempt to maintain a regular schedule. Furthermore, the crowded cars, lighted by lamps which furnished more smoke than illumination, offered a productive field for pickpockets, and the drivers and conductors were often brutal and insulting to women passengers.

Julius Blumberg, President of the East Side Civic Club, first addressed the commission, Commissioner George W. Dunn being in the chair. "The conditions as affecting this horse car proposition on the east side," he declared, "are shameful. The railroad management doesn't care for either the opinion or the comfort of its patrons. The cars are unclean, the service is slow, and we're neglected at every hand. The cars are so crowded in the rush hours that many of those who are able to get aboard the cars ride without paying a cent. The conductor can't push himself through the mass of men and women who are hanging on by the skin of their teeth."

James H. Hamilton, head worker for the University Settlement, quoted from Borough President John F. Ahearn, saying that the service was "execrable." Mr. Ahearn said: "The cars are positively indecent, reeking with dirt, and a menace to life and limb."

"The crosstown streets of the lower east side," added Mr. Hamilton, "present the most phenomenal spectacle in the world during the rush hours. Thousands of men and boys and girls are seen walking to and from work. They don't do it from choice, but because they are not offered the facilities for riding. Those who do ride do so at their peril. They are packed so closely in the cars that many of them hang on to the cars like flies. If they were beasts I should say that it would be a case for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is a crying shame that a public servant like this should have the service where it was twenty-five years ago."

Hamilton Holt said that he watched the cars in Delancey Street last Monday night and that they ran from nine to twelve blocks apart. "The Broadway cars run about two to a block at the correspondingly busy time," he asserted. "The east side has a population of 600,000, and is larger than Boston, or Baltimore, or St. Louis. Do you suppose that those cities would tolerate such an outrage? The trouble is that the people of the east side are mainly foreigners, and they submit to the indignities offered them without complaining."

Miss Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street Settlement said she waited for a car at Duane Street, and eight of them passed without stopping. Finally she boarded the ninth, and then had to hang on. She said the service was miserable.

Gregory Wienstein of the East Side Civic Club said that the railway system had a schedule, but it was a paper schedule.

"How long would it take to equip the lines with electric power?" asked Commissioner Dunn.

"About two years," replied Mr. Root.

"How many Inspectors have you, Mr. Root?" asked the Chairman.

"We have eight uniformed Inspectors on the horse-car lines," was the reply, "and besides this a plain-clothes force of men who are instructed unequivocally to report cases of impoliteness."

Wallace Kilpatrick, head worker of the Chrystie Street house, declared that passengers were crowded in a brutal way, and that the cars offered no rest for women who were going home from a hard day's work. Louis Lande said that on the Madison Street line the number of cars had been doubled within the last week and offered fair service.

Joseph Livingston, President of the James G. Blaine Club, said passengers were treated like savages. "Traffic would increase 300 per cent. over these lines if electric cars were installed," he asserted. "I want to direct attention to the fact that the board is a part of the Republican administration of the State, and ought in fairness to act."

Bernard Joyce of the People's Institute spoke briefly, and then Mrs. Florence Kelley of the National Consumers' League said that the cars were responsible for much tuberculosis and pneumonia on the east side. "The air in these soap boxes," she declared, "is the same I breathed seventeen years ago. Oh, where has this commission been all this time that it hasn't seen all this?"

"We haven't been Commissioners that long," replied Mr. Dunn, smilingly.

"I have seen cases," continued Mrs. Kelley, "where women have been sworn at by overworked drivers and conductors."

"I want to say," said Mr. Root when the hearing had closed, "that, in the matter of the electrification of these lines, the particular obstacle presented is the matter of bridge approaches. The whole of the east side transportation is to be controlled by the condition of the bridges and the future subways. Until these questions are definitely settled the company doesn't feel that it can go ahead with electrification.

"None of the officials of the company has any disregard for the welfare of the east side. The streets are narrow and the width of cars so great that there is not a vehicle that can stand in the street without blocking the cars. It is the controlling factor in the irregularity of the service.

"Additional service would increase the congestion. As for sanitary conditions, we have a larger force of cleaners upon these horse cars than upon any other branch of the service, and within the last week we have sent out forty fully repaired and newly cleansed cars for service."

"This is a matter," said Commissioner Dunn in adjourning the meeting, "which has been under investigation for some time. We will finish in a week and you will hear the result."

CIRCUS DRAWS T. McGOVERN.

Also T. McGovern, Jr., and They'd Like $500 a Week.

Terry McGovern, the ex-champion lightweight prizefighter, with his six-year-old son, Terry, Jr., were the guests of the press agent at Barnum & Bailey's circus at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon. According to the press agent, they were enjoying the show immensely during the equestrian acts, when Terry, Sr., suddenly remarked:

"Pshaw! I can ride as good as that. I used to do a good deal of riding when a boy, and those men and women out there in the rings haven't anything on me when it comes to fancy stunts."

"Indeed," observed Peter F. McNally, an old circus man, who sat near by. "That being the case, why don't you go into the business. You are a back number as a prize fighter, but your name is worth something yet."

Terry decided that it was a good idea. So he went to James A. Bailey and told him about it.

"You think you can ride?" asked Mr. Bailey.

"Sure," answered the pugilist. "I can ride for keeps, and so can this kid here. He's only 6, but, say! he can ride anything from a hobby horse to a Subway express."

"How much do you want—both of you?" asked Mr. Bailey.

"We'll ride for $500 a week," replied the elder McGovern, and the press agent says that Terry Junior, after mature consideration, approved the figure. Mr. Bailey said he would think about it.

The press agent further announced that Mlle. Octavie la Tour, the Frenchwoman who performs the automobile somersault, and Miss Isabelle Butler, the New York girl who drives the auto car in the "Dip of Death" at the Barnum & Bailey Circus, each believes her act to be the more difficult, and each says she is devoid of fear. The question will be left to two physicians, Dr. S. R. Ellison and Dr. R. F. Ivers. Just before each young woman mounts her automobile to-night the physicians will take her temperature and pulse. The same thing will be done immediately after each act. The one whose pulse and temperature are most nearly normal before and after the performance will get the decision.

FAVORS MOVING PLATFORM.

Mr. Stevenson Would Like to Try One on Williamsburg Bridge.

Commissioner Stevenson of the Department of Bridges indicated yesterday that he would like to see a moving platform installed on the Williamsburg Bridge. When the bridge was built a special bicycle path was constructed. This path has never been used, and it would be possible to put in the moving platform system without disarranging any of the present means of transportation across the structure.

Mr. Stevenson said that he would not be satisfied with a "merry-go-round" scheme that would merely take passengers across the bridge. What he will demand of the Schmidt & Gallatin Syndicate, which controls the moving platform system, is a scheme that will carry passengers to objective points on both sides of the river.

The engineers of the Bridge Department believe the plan feasible, and the owners of the system have long asserted that its use is the best solution of the bridge transportation problem.

Edward M. Grout, who was responsible for Mr. Stevenson's appointment as Bridge Commissioner, is counsel for Schmidt & Gallatin.

A LITTLE FRANCHISE JOURNEY.

Board of Estimate Committee to Inspect Connecting Railroad Route.

President McGowan of the Aldermen, Chairman of the conference committee which is to fix terms for the Connecting Railway Company's franchise, has invited the other members of the committee of the Board of Estimate to-day to go over the ground to be used by the proposed railroad.

With Nelson P. Lewis, chief engineer of the Board of Estimate, and Harry P. Lewis, Chief of the Bureau of Franchises, the committee, Borough Presidents Coler, Haffen, and Bermel will take a Dock Department tug from the Battery and inspect the Greenville freight yards and run over to Bay Ridge. From Bay Ridge they will travel by automobile around Brooklyn to Astoria.

Mr. McGowan says that he hopes to have his committee in shape by next week to meet the committee of the Rapid Transit Commission.

STOWAWAY SHOT THE CHUTES

Astonished Immigrants by Dropping Down a Ventilator on the Slavonia.

When the Cunarder Slavonia, in Monday night from the Mediterranean, was about to sail from Fiume, Robie Strynfel, a Hungarian, could not get transportation, because he had failed to obtain a passport from his Government. In some manner the Hungarian boarded the vessel, however, and escaped detection until Friday afternoon, when he scared a group of immigrants by sliding into the steerage quarters through one of the ventilating funnels.

When he recovered his breath Strynfel told why he was in the funnel. He said that every time the ship's surgeon inspected the steerage passengers he hid in the ventilator, resting himself on a big block of wood that the sailors place in it when washing the decks, in order to keep the water from running into the immigrant quarters.

Friday the block was missing, and when Strynfel jumped into the deck opening of the ventilator there was nothing to stop him and he slid twenty-four feet down the pipe into the steerage. He was not injured.

As Strynfel has sufficient funds to enable him to land, the Ellis Island officials, it was said yesterday, will probably give him a chance to become a good American citizen.

SAVINGS BANK WINS CASE.

Administrator Sued to Recover Deposit Paid to Dead Woman's Attorney.

Before Justice Amend, in the Supreme Court, a jury rendered a verdict yesterday in favor of the Union Dime Savings Institution of this city, defendant in the case of George Hoffman, as administrator of Julia Huff. This is the third time this case has been tried. The questions involved in the case are of importance to banking institutions.

The plaintiff sued the bank to recover $2,450 standing to the credit in the bank of Julia Huff on the day of her death in 1900, and which sum was paid by the bank to one George Thoma, the depositor's attorney in fact, upon his draft, the bank paying without knowledge of the death of the depositor.

The plaintiff held that with the death of the depositor the power of attorney became extinguished, and the bank paid at its peril, and was bound to make payment a second time to the plaintiff's administrator. The bank defended upon the ground that by the provisions of its by-laws, having paid in good faith without notice and after the exercise of care, it was entitled to protection.

$100,000,000 CONCERN JUST VANISHES AWAY

United States Sugar Refining Co.'s Fiscal Agents Quit.

NO MONEY LOST, APPARENTLY

Certified Checks Not Cashed—But Holman & Holman Won't Give Names —Many Subscribers Up State.

There is missing from Wall Street a $100,000,000 sugar corporation. A TIMES reporter who looked diligently for it yesterday came upon traces of it, but the corporation's whereabouts are still unknown. The most interesting thing the reporter discovered was that under the terms of its charter its size is somewhat restricted by a provision preventing it from incurring liabilities in excess of $5,000,000.

A telephone message to THE TIMES from an up-State banker started the search. The banker wanted to know if THE TIMES could tell him what had become of the United States Sugar Refining Company, and told of its enormous capital. Further delving into this mystery of Wall Street disclosed that several bankers from the upper parts of New York State were in the city trying to find out something about the United States Sugar Refining Company.

One of the bankers said that subscriptions to its stock had been sought for months past from up-State retail grocers and other merchants by Holman & Holman, a firm with offices in the Wall Street Exchange Building at 41 Wall Street.

What most mystified the up-State bankers was that checks given in part payment for subscriptions to the stock, some of them drawn months ago, had never been presented for payment, although they had been presented for certification by the banks on which they were drawn. The perplexity of the up-State men was increased upon the receipt this week of letters from Holman & Holman which said that pending the settlement of certain matters they were authorized to withhold payment on all these certified checks.

Holman & Holman were rather close with their information about the corporation for which they have been acting as fiscal agents. But they were willing to tell everything the reporter already know.

W. J. Holman, a member of the firm, when questioned about the collection of the certified checks and the letters which this week were sent out by the firm, admitted that the firm had notified the banks on which the checks had been drawn not to pay them. He supplied copies of letters sent to the banks as well as to the subscribers to the stock. Here is the letter to the banks:

Would Make 'Em Disgorge.

Certain things have come to our knowledge as fiscal agents of the United States Sugar Refining Company which makes the contract we have written with merchants on behalf of said company a misleading proposition; and we are placing in the hands of such merchants information that will enable them to cancel their agreement and recover their certified checks.

Through certain misrepresentations, however, we were induced to turn said contracts and checks over to the officers of the United States Sugar Refining Company, (to whom we have given due notice,) and we expect to require said officers to disgorge and return said checks and contracts to all merchants by proceedings which will be instituted for damages against the financiers, who are the real parties in interest, representing, in civilian attire, the power behind the throne.

Therefore, pending the settlement of these matters, you are hereby authorized and directed to withhold payment on all such certified checks which in the meantime may be presented for payment.

This warning was amplified by Holman & Holman in the letter which they addressed to the subscribers. This letter said:

Under your contract with the United States Sugar Refining Company, bearing our name as fiscal agents, in case active work ceases toward the formation of the co-operative combination therein referred to, you have the right to demand a return of your installment checks. Now, as such fiscal agents of the said company, having the sole right under contract to handle this form of the company's securities, we refuse, absolutely, to continue the placing of the company's contracts; and this action on our part stops all operations in the field and enables you, under your contract, to go to your banks and stop payment on all of your checks and demand of the United States Sugar Refining Company that said checks and contracts be returned to you accordingly.

This we advise you to do, as the financial backers of this proposition have thrown up their hands, and instead of putting in $1,000,000, or even $100,000, to effect this organization, as is indicated in your contract, until we called a halt, they were laying plans to capture your money through the leasing of an old beet-sugar factory.

Under the misrepresentations of the financial backers we were induced to turn your installment checks over to the officers of the United States Sugar Refining Company, (to whom we have given due notice,) and while under the circumstances they will never dare to present them for payment, this method is taken to kill any such scheme.

However, to make doubly sure against loss, you are directed to at once notify your bank to stop payment on all your checks, and to withhold payment on those which have been certified. By this method we can guarantee that you will lose nothing.

We are in a position to know what is going on here, and we do not propose that anything shall be done to the injury of the merchants who have confided in us.

What Subscribers Paid.

Mr. Holman also supplied a copy of the contract between the Holmans as fiscal agents and the subscribers to the stock. From this form of contract it appears that in payment for the stock subscribed for, each subscriber drew ten checks, each representing 10 per cent. of the purchase price and dated ahead, one month apart.

The form of contract sets forth the

LIVELY FIRE NEAR THEATRE.

But Proctor's Audience Didn't Know It—Three Firemen Hurt.

Traffic on Broadway was tied up for two hours last night by a fire in the basement and first floor of the six-story building at 38 West Twenty-eighth Street, which drew a great crowd and caused excitement out of all proportion to the damage done.

The fire originated soon after 9 o'clock in the stock of Abraham Brothers, paint dealers, and was accompanied by explosion after explosion. With the first explosion came a burst of flame which caught the crew of Truck 24 in the back draft, two of its members being seriously burned about their faces and hands. A second alarm was immediately sent in. A moment later a third fireman walked through an airshaft, falling twelve feet and breaking his ankle.

The ambulance call following these accidents had hardly been sent in when another explosion occurred. The police reserves from three precincts were summoned. Police Commissioner Bingham appeared in person to take charge if necessary. Inspector Schmittberger was already there, and the Commissioner took no active part in directing the police.

Patrick Kerwin and Michael Conrey were the burned firemen. Kerwin insisted on returning to work and was caught by the flames which followed a second explosion.

The first and second floors by this time were full of smoke and it was then that Fireman Frank Hurley of Engine Company 1 walked into the airshaft. An ambulance from the New York Hospital arrived and Kerwin and Conrey had their wounds dressed, going home. Hurley was taken to the hospital.

Chief Croker responded to the second alarm and took charge of the fight. Directly across the street from the burning building there was considerable anxiety among the employes of Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre. There was a large audience, and it was feared that a panic would result if it were known that there was a fire so close at hand. The audience, however, was kept in ignorance of what was going on, and, while the performance was cut to some extent, there was no alarm.

The lines of hose stopped the street cars both on Sixth Avenue and Broadway, and it was 11 o'clock before they could resume operations. By this time the lines of cars extended half a dozen blocks in either direction in both thoroughfares.

Interest in the fire was kept up by the continuation of the explosions. The blaze would be under control apparently when a barrel of paint or some other inflammable stuff would burst, and the firemen would have to start all over again. In 36 West Twenty-eighth Street, occupied by a furrier's establishment, a force of firemen was employed to keep the flames off. This building was not damaged.

Chief Croker estimated the damage at $15,000. While the crowd was largest Akira Kanamareo, a Japanese, felt some one tugging at his scarfpin, a large diamond. He caught the wrist of John C. Richards of 455 Sixth Avenue, and essayed a jiu jitsu hold. Richards gave in, and was arrested.

THE ERIE TO TAP NIAGARA.

To Get Power for Rochester Extension —Road's Other Interurban Plans.

A further addition to the announced plans of the Erie Railroad for capturing the interurban traffic along its branch lines up the State has been made by the management of the road. Surveys and estimates have been ordered for the electrification of the Rochester Division from Corning to Rochester.

The road has already started work on a system of paralleling electric tracks along the route from Corning to Schenectady which will undoubtedly be made to connect with the electrified branches running from Corning to Rochester. These include the Bath and Hammondsport Railroad, the branch to Conesus Lake, and the Mount Morris branch, from Avon to Mount Morris, with an extension to be decided on later.

A big power house is now in course of construction for the Erie at Hornellsville, but this is intended for the easterly interurban lines. It is proposed to draw power for the Rochester extension from Niagara Falls, and the company, having built the transmission line, may compete with the local companies along the route for power and lighting business.

The route named by the Erie management for electrification is practically the same as the route selected by the recently incorporated $4,000,000 interurban railroad company organized by Otto Schultze and other associates of the Heinzes in the United Copper Company. The Heinze company has obtained franchises and rights of way between Rochester and Corning, which, if the line is ever completed, would put it in direct competition with the Erie.

GARFIELD'S OIL INQUIRY.

All Data on Investigation in Hand and a Report to be Made Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Inquiries were made at the Department of Commerce and Labor to-day to ascertain the status of Commissioner Garfield's report on his investigation of the Standard Oil Company.

The report has not yet been made, it is stated at the department. Mr. Garfield has practically concluded his investigation of the oil field, and he and his assistants are now at work getting into shape the data they have collected. There is an enormous mass of material, and it is keeping the bureau busy licking this into shape.

When this work is completed the report will be begun and when completed will be turned over to Secretary Metcalf, by whom it will be submitted to the President. When Mr. Roosevelt has read the report it will be for him to decide how much of it shall be made public.

The opinion is expressed at the department that the report will be prepared before long. The actual work of preparing it, once that work is begun, will not take a great while, it is said, and the arrangement of the data is nearing completion.

Hill Overwhelming a Village.

BERLIN, March 28.—The village of Mülheim, near Coblenz, is threatened with destruction by a hill which has been gradually slipping into the valley for several days. Up to this time 150 houses have been damaged, and 500 persons have been rendered homeless.

'MEDICAL' CROWD QUITS; 3 NEWSPAPERS WARNED

Use of the Mails Denied to Fifty-two of the Concerns.

TRAP CAUGHT 43 OF THEM

Post Office, Police, and County Medical Society Work Together to Round Up the "Specialists."

Working together, the United States Postal authorities, the County Medical Society, and the local police have rounded up and nearly put out of business fifty-two so-called "medical" concerns which obtained their customers chiefly through advertisements in three newspapers of this city. Last week these newspapers were notified by the Post Office that these medical advertisements would have to be dropped or the papers could not go through the mails. The advertisements complained of were dropped.

Indictments were handed down late last week against three of these advertisers, others left hurriedly for the West or Canada at the first rumor of trouble, some broke down, confessed, and promised to go out of business, and still others, defiant, are seeking to continue by changing the form of their advertisements.

Without the newspaper advertisements these offenders, many of whom have been convicted in the past and nearly all of whom have been in trouble with the authorities, cannot do any business at all. The County Medical Society considers that the removal of the advertisements from the public prints is the death blow to a practice which has enjoyed prosperity in this city for more than fifteen years.

The final blow was struck by a clever trap laid by the Post Office, aided by the Medical Society's counsel, Champe S. Andrews, and his assistant, John S. Cooper. A decoy letter, manifolded fifty-two times and sent out from Boston, was the trump card.

The letter got fifty-two replies—one from every concern to which it was sent. Then all mail going to them in care of "General Delivery" was stopped and a formal notice was sent to each one, requiring identification of the addressee before the delivery of the mail. The notice brought representatives of forty-three out of the fifty-two concerns to the Post Office Building. Before they knew what they confronted the "doctors" and "experienced female specialties" had confessed damaging facts about themselves.

Among those indicted last week are William H. Crutchbey and Rose Houseman, who have done business, Mr. Cooper says, under the name of "Dr. and Mrs. Hale," in West Fourteenth Street near Fifth Avenue. Both "Dr. Hale" and his wife are myths, as far as anybody can find out. They pleaded "not guilty" and were held for trial in Part I. of General Sessions.

Adolph Newman was indicted for practicing illegally under the assumed name of "Dr. Schroeder." Newman, the County Medical Society's attorney declares, is really the head of an association the members of which earn their livelihood by illegal practice.

H. M. S. King, a physician, was arrested three week ago and is now held for trial. He did business, it is charged, under the name of "Dr. Jacques Mottimer." There is no such person as "Dr. Mottimer." Theodore Raxlan is another arrested.

At the instance of the County Medical Society, Postmaster General Cortelyou in February took notice of the use to which the mails were being put by these practitioners. He immediately sent Post Office Inspector William H. Snow to New York to report to Chief Inspector Mayer. The Medical Society helped them both with the records of former arrests and convictions. From the very start the advertisements in the three newspapers were made the basis of the investigations.

One day Snow went out on the street and bought copies of the papers in question. These contained the advertisements pointed out by the Medical Society, and the three are now on file with the Post Office authorities in Washington. Champe S. Andrews and John S. Cooper then made official reports to Snow, based on sworn affidavits of agents who had visited all places mentioned in the advertisements. Attached to the report on each offender was a clipping containing his advertisement.

The next move was a trip by Snow to Boston. There he prepared a letter, ostensibly written by a woman, and describing her condition. The name "Hattie Sanderson" was signed to the letter. Fifty-two copies of the letter were made by mimeograph.

His calculation was exactly true. By return mail replies came in by the dozen. Every "doctor" to whom "Hattie Sanderson" wrote told her to come straight to New York and promised her that she would be cared for.

The replies were all carefully filed and taken to Postmaster Willcox, with a request to hold up for identification all mail directed to the advertisers. He gave the necessary order and the mail was held up.

Then the printed notices were sent out. They named a particular hour at which the addressees should come to the Post Office and identify mail detained there for them. The forty-three who appeared were examined one at a time.

They were told that if they wanted the detained mail they could get it by making out affidavits swearing that it belonged to them. None accepted the offer.

A full report of the proceeding went to the Postmaster General's office in Washington, and at once an order denying the use of the mails to all these suspects was returned to New York. That practically puts them out of business.

The advertisers to whom the use of the mails has been denied are Dr. and Mrs. Hale, F. F. Moore, Mrs. Schwab, Dr. Howe, Mme. Matisse, Mrs. S. Hilbert, Mrs. L. Riekert, Mrs. Hoffman, Dr. and Mrs. Bell, Dr. and Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Schaaf, Josephine Anderson, Mrs. Hartman, Dr. and Mrs. Ayer, Dr. and Mrs. Hall, Mildred Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Phelps, Sarah Burns, Dr. Bork, Dr. and Mrs. Braun, Dr. and Mrs. Schroeder, Christina Hansen, Dr. John Justin, Dr. P. Lemke, Mrs. Bandomir, Mrs. Thilgen, Mrs. Eichinger, Mrs. Jaeger, Mrs. Geist, Mrs. Godarsi, Mrs. Faber, Mrs. Weick, Mrs. Brecht, and Mrs. Vetter. A great many of these names are fictitious.

CARS BLOCKED BY A FIGHT.

Motormen and Conductors Flocked to the Latest Transfer Row.

When a north-bound car on Seventh Avenue reached the barn at Fiftieth Street about 9 o'clock last night, there was a change of conductors. James Bradley, the new conductor, stepped upon the car the retiring one remarking:

"There's a man on board who hasn't paid his fare."

"Which one is it?" asked Bradley.

"That one," replied the other, pointing in a general way to three men standing on the rear platform. Bradley selected the smallest of the trio, who was Charles D. Ames, a salesman of 568 Amsterdam Avenue, and demanded his fare. Ames said he had already paid. They argued until they got to Columbus Circle when Ames asked for a transfer.

The conductor declined to give one. Ames stepped back and struck Bradley in the face, and the two men struggled on the platform. The car stopped and a big crowd collected. A signal man with a lantern at the cross tracks saw the trouble and rushed to the car. Leaving his post deserted, cars running up, down, and cross town were brought to a standstill.

In three minutes there was a vast congestion of cars and people surging about the two men who continued to fight. Conductors, motormen, switchmen, signalmen, transfermen and a crowd of a thousand jostled each other to see what it was all about. Finally Policeman Walsh of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station arrived and arrested Ames on a charge of disorderly conduct.

IDEA MINE, SAYS MRS. THAW.

Denies That She Borrowed One Used in Memorial Window.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 28.—Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, mother of the Countess of Yarmouth, to-day filed her affidavit of defense in the suit of the Willet Stained Glass Company for payment for a memorial window placed in the Third Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Thaw first had a window put in by Tiffany of New York. She did not like it, and engaged Mr. Willet to rebuild it. Mr. Willet asserts that she got his idea and had Tiffany work it out, was dissatisfied with the result, and went to him afterward to have the window built over.

Mrs. Thaw declares that the idea of "The Holy City," the subject in the window, was her own. She employed Mr. Willet, she says, to make some alterations in the window, and when they were completed she found they did not harmonize with the rest of the work, and in the end Mr. Willet replaced the entire window.

Mrs. Thaw says Mr. Willet's work was not worth more than $4,000, and he destroyed the Tiffany window, which cost her $5,000. Therefore she does not think she owes him anything, but that he is $1,000 in her debt. Mr. Willet demands $16,500 for his work.

TAFT TALKS ON MATRIMONY.

Believes That Young Army Officers Should Not Marry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Secretary Taft does not agree with his chief on the so-called anti-race suicide theory. This morning before the Senate Military Affairs Committee he took up the matter of the pay of Lieutenants, Captains, and Majors in the army. Senator Scott has a bill before Congress providing for an increase of pay in these grades.

Secretary Taft said that he thought the pay of these officers was now too low, but he was not prepared to approve of the increase at this time. He declared it seemed to him that young Lieutenants should not burden themselves with wives on the present pay. Gen. Corbin's recent utterances on this subject possibly went too far in suggesting that young officers be prohibited from marrying, but they were worth discussion at least.

SIX LABORERS MURDERED.

Bulgarians Slain in Fight in an Old Minneapolis House.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 28.—Six Bulgarian laborers were found murdered today in an old house at 245 Tenth Avenue South, and the police are uncertain how or when the murders were committed, although the evidence thus far secured indicates that the men were killed during a fight among twelve Bulgarians who had rented the house.

The police are convinced that robbery was not the cause of all the murders, as considerable money was found on the bodies. They also scout the idea of any secret society with motives of revenge. The dead are said to be Nicoli Dimitri, Kirle Dimintri, Agne Karofil, Kersta 1 Yovko, Unka Naudaba, and Baakon Kapanni.

Four of the bodies, slashed with knives, were found in a room on the second floor, while in the cellar were two others with their throats cut. Near the bodies were found five large bowie knives and a hatchet.

The police say that the men found in the basement may have been murdered for their money, and that a fight followed upstairs over a division of the spoils. Near the bodies found upstairs were two money belts containing $506 in gold. On one of the bodies was found a watch that was still going.

SAVED BOYS FROM RUNAWAYS.

Real Estate Man 65 Years Old Swerved and Stopped the Horses.

Two small boys were playing in Jerome Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I., yesterday when a pair of runaway horses rushed at them. They didn't see the horses, and several persons who saw them believed they would be killed. Peter W. Marlowe, a real estate man, who is 65 years old, was standing in the door of his office and saw their danger.

Without hesitating, he ran in front of the horses and got a grip on the reins close to their heads. He was able, by exerting all his strength, to haul them to one side, so that the wheels of the wagon missed the boys by a few inches. He was dragged for more than a block before the team came to a halt, and was badly bruised and shaken up. He was attended by a physician and then walked home.

The boys got away before their names were learned.

Mrs. Conant Dies of Grief.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 28.—Mrs. Amelia Conant, mother of James W. Conant, the Pittsburg theatrical manager who died suddenly in New York three weeks ago under sensational circumstances, died at her late son's home, 110 Gist Street, early this morning. She was 74 years old. Physicians who attended her say that her death was directly due to grief caused by the death of her son.

FINDING OF DYNAMITE JUST LIKE A POE TALE

Moran Marked Hiding Place by an Arc Light Ray.

POE'S HERO USED THE SUN

Jersey City Police Find 60 Pounds of Explosive Buried Just Where Confessed Dynamiter Said It Was.

Edgar Allan Poe's tale "The Goldbug" was brought to the minds of those who witnessed yesterday the discovery of sixty pounds of dynamite buried in the ground near the intersection of Secaucus and Summit Avenues, in the northwestern part of Jersey City, by Charles Moran, a member of the Housesmiths' Union, who is now awaiting sentence in the Tombs, having pleaded guilty to an attempt to blow up the Bliss Building in East Twenty-third Street on Feb. 24 last.

The search for the explosive was made by Chief of Police Murphy of Jersey City and some of his detectives. They were guided by information furnished by Moran, as well as by photographs of the vicinity which had been marked by him to indicate the location of the wooden box containing the dynamite.

It was the manner in which Moran, according to his confession to Assistant District Attorney Train, took bearings of the spot where he hid the dynamite which recalled the device invented by Poe for the location of the buried treasure in his tale.

But, while a ray of the setting sun guided Poe's hero, Moran got his bearings with a ray from an arc light which, when watched from a carefully noted spot, was seen to strike the top of a big boulder, thus making a landmark of a rock lost in a stony, bush covered field.

These are the directions which Moran gave Mr. Train, and which were verified into their minutest details yesterday by the Jersey City policemen.

"You must make the search at night, or you cannot get that electric light to help you. Go to the crossing of the Secaucus Road and the Erie Railroad tracks on the heights near the old Tyler Park Station. The road runs east and west. The tracks run north and south at the foot of the Palisades, and Summit Avenue runs the same way on the top of the Palisades. To the east of the crossing you will find a flagman's shanty. Near the shanty is an electric light, and that's the light you need.

"Go up the Secaucus road till you reach a fence, passing on your way the flagman's house, which stands about 100 feet back from the road on your left. When you come to the fence, turn and follow it about 100 feet till you see a hole in it. The electric light is then about 200 yards away from you, I should say.

"At the hole in the fence you turn into the open field and walk in a northwesterly direction. When you have walked about forty paces, or something like 125 feet, you will find that the electric light comes from behind you in such a way that it strikes a boulder that comes out of the ground about four feet. Go right on to that rock and then turn around toward the road. You'll then see between yourself and the flagman's house two small rocks which are only a couple of feet square each and rise only a few inches out of the ground. Between those two rocks the dynamite is buried in a hole four feet deep."

These directions were given to Chief Murphy Monday afternoon, but he did not think it worth while to wait till after nightfall. He found the field all right, but it was snow-covered. Nevertheless he went to work. In a short while he and his men had dug holes until the place looked as if it had been bombarded. Then the Chief concluded that the tale told by Moran was false and they gave up the search.

On Tuesday Mr. Train sent a photographer to the place. He would have liked to send Moran over, being sure that the man had told the truth, but there was no way of sending a prisoner waiting sentence out of the State.

So the man with the camera was ordered to photograph the field by sections. The proofs were shown to Moran in the Tombs Tuesday night, and he pointed out the spot where the dynamite was hidden. When Chief Murphy started out with the marked photograph yesterday morning he had no difficulty in finding the three rocks. The explosive was unearthed within thirty feet of the spot marked on the photograph by Moran.

William Tapp, a foreman in the employ of the Hudson Tunnel Company, declared the stuff found in the wooden box to be dynamite. He helped the police to cart it away without blowing up themselves. A bit of it was sent to Supt. Murray of the New York Bureau of Combustibles to be tested. The rest was carted off to Snake Hill. The hiding place was not very far from Moran's home, at 62 Nelson Avenue.

The importance of the find, according to Mr. Train, is that it corroborates the other parts of Moran's confession, implicating several prominent members of the Housesmith's Union, which organization is charged with conducting a sort of guerrilla warfare against Post & McCord ever since a strike was declared against that firm last November. The confession of Moran dovetails perfectly with the story told to the District Attorney by John Guthrie, the non-union iron worker who became a member of the union and a fellow-conspirator with Moran and Thomas Weir, after arrangement with Post & McCord.

Moran told Mr. Train yesterday that he and Weir were to have used the dynamite left after the attempt on the Bliss Building on Feb. 24 to blow up a building at Rochelle Park, N. J.

"I am a marked man," Moran said yesterday. "You know there is no spot in the whole world where I can go and feel safe, or where I can go without being spat on by other workmen. You have got me in a fine place—whether you put me in jail or keep me out."

Thomas Weir, who was indicted with Moran for the attempt on the Bliss Building and will stand trial, was taken before Justice Foster in General Sessions yesterday. On account of the crowded state of the calendar, his case was transferred to the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, and he will be placed on trial next Thursday before Justice O'Gorman.

Dr. Bella, Who Had 20 Broken in N. Y. Central Wreck, Gets $20,000.

Attorneys for the New York Central Railroad created a new basis for the settlement of damage suits growing out of accidents when they compromised yesterday with the Rev. Dr. Daniel Bella, a Slovak preacher, at the rate of $1,000 for every bone broken.

Dr. Bella was in the viaduct collision at 104th Street last Fall. When he was removed to St. Mark's Hospital it was found that twenty of his bones had been broken. Figuring on the basis of $1,000 a bone the railroad compromised the case for $20,000.

BERNHARDT QUITS TENT.

Gets a Theatre After Texas Attorney General Warned Managers.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, March 28.—Sarah Bernhardt to-night at Austin abandoned her tent campaign. She played in the Austin Opera House as the result of an offer from the management, and the house was packed to its capacity. Gov. Lanham, Lieut. Gov. Neal, Judges of the higher courts, and many members of the Legislature being in the audience.

It is stated on good authority that Attorney General Davidson notified the managers of the houses in the Texas circuit that if Bernhardt were not permitted to play in them proceedings would be instituted under the anti-trust law of the State.

Mme. Bernhardt visited the State Capitol this afternoon and held a reception in the hall of the House of Representatives.

FIGHT IN JAPANESE DIET.

Many Blows Exchanged—Police Are Summoned and Restore Order.

LONDON, Thursday, March 29. — The correspondent at Tokio of The Daily Telegraph reports that the submission of the Peers' amendments to the bill for the nationalization of railways to the House of Representatives on Tuesday night caused a free fight, the exchange of a considerable number of blows, and the tearing of clothes among members.

Eventually the police were summoned, restored order, and closed the doors in order to frustrate the attempt of the Opposition to leave the House in a body.

The bill was then adopted by a vote of 214, the members of the Opposition declining to record their votes, as they considered the Government's action in the matter inconsistent with the principles of constitutional government.

LOCAL OPTION BILL DEAD.

Assembly Committee, by a Vote of 8 to 5, Decides Against It.

ALBANY, March 28.—The Assembly Excise Committee to-night, by a vote of 8 to 5, all the members being present, refused to make a favorable report on the Tully-Wainwright Local Option bill, the most important excise measure of the session. As far as the Assembly committee is concerned the bill is dead, the only possibility of its resuscitation being a motion from the floor of the House to discharge the committee from further consideration of the measure.

It is learned from a reliable source that the three Democrats on the committee voted with five Republicans against reporting the bill, the remaining five Republicans voting to make a favorable report.

MRS. ELIAS TAXED HIGH.

Assessment of $150,000 Protested—Should Be $60,000, Lawyer Says.

Mrs. Hannah Elias, the negro woman who was sued by old John R. Platt for the recovery of the fortune he had lavished on her, objects because the tax officials have raised her personal property assessment this year to $150,000. Last year it was $100,000.

Augustus C. Nanz of 250 Broadway, her attorney, called at the Tax Department yesterday and protested. He said Mrs. Elias had reduced her $100,000 assessment last year to $79,000, and that this year she would swear it down to $60,000. He was told that she would have to appear in person to get the reduction. Two weeks were allowed for her to appear.

CRANK SEIZES ACTRESS.

Miss Maxine Elliott Struggles with Man in Hotel Elevator.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 28.—Miss Maxine Elliott, who is playing an engagement here, had an experience with a crank in an elevator at the Hotel Stafford late last night. The actress had just returned with her maid from the theatre.

An unknown man, apparently a foreigner, had been loitering around the hotel lobby and writing room all evening, as though waiting for some one. When the actress entered and stepped toward the elevator he accosted her. Miss Elliott, without replying, entered the car with her maid. The man followed, and as the boy closed the gate the fellow seized Miss Elliott's arm and tried to embrace her.

Miss Elliott screamed and struggled with her annoyer, and the elevator boy stopped the car and threw the man out. Several persons rushed and caught him, but the actress declined to order his arrest, and went to her apartments by the rear stairway.

SHROPSHIRE ARRESTED.

Ex-Vice Consul General Charged with Forging Wife's Name.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 28.—Clyde Shropshire, ex-Vice Consul General to Paris, was arrested here to-day on a warrant sworn out by Maj. Robert Bullock, Cashier of the Fayette National Bank, charging him with forging the name of his wife, Mrs. Marion Worley Shropshire, to a note for $400, on which he secured the money.

The note fell due to-day, and when Mrs. Shropshire was notified she pronounced the signature a forgery, and the arrest followed.

Shropshire gained much notoriety while in Paris by his conduct, which finally resulted in his dismissal. When he returned he was followed by Mrs. Hattie Delaro Barnes, an actress, who sued him for money she said he borrowed, and also for breach of promise. In the former suit the actress secured judgment for $3,000, and the breach of promise suit was compromised.

PERKINS IS ARRESTED AND DENIES WRONGDOING

But Says If There Was Crime, Others Shared in It.

CAMPAIGN GIFT APPROVED

New York Life Finance Committee Knew About It—McCall Aimed to Refuse Other Requests.

George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. and former Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company, was arrested just after noon yesterday in the office of Hawkins & Delafield, his counsel. The arrest was made by Detective Edward Reardon of District Attorney Jerome's staff on a warrant issued by Magistrate Moss, now sitting in the Tombs Court, and charging grand larceny of $48,702.50 from the funds of the New York Life. This was the sum which Mr. Perkins told the Armstrong Committee he had received as reimbursement for money paid by him on behalf of the company to Cornelius N. Bliss, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee in the campaign of 1904.

Before the prisoner could be taken to the police court for arraignment Reardon was served with a writ of habeas corpus granted by Justice Samuel Greenbaum and ordering the immediate production of Mr. Perkins in Part II. of the Supreme Court. When Mr. Perkins appeared before Justice Greenbaum with Lawyer Louis L. Delafield, Mr. Jerome was present in response to a writ of certiorari served on him as well as on Magistrate Moss. The Magistrate had previously certified that the prisoner was not in his custody and did not appear.

At the request of Mr. Delafield the hearing on the writ was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Perkins was meanwhile paroled in the custody of his counsel. In addressing the court on behalf of his client, Mr. Delafield said that, if any offense had been committed, every member of the Finance Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company at the time was equally guilty with Mr. Perkins. The other members of that committee in 1904 were Alexander E. Orr, John Claflin, George A. Morrison, Woodbury Langdon, John S. Kennedy, Darwin F. Kingsley, and Edmund D. Randolph.

Perkins Had a Bondsman.

With Mr. Perkins in court was Cleveland H. Dodge, who was ready to furnish bail for him if necessary. Mr. Delafield said before he left that ex-Justice William N. Cohen would argue the case for Mr. Perkins to-morrow. The people will then, as yesterday, be represented by Mr. Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Kresel.

It is understood that Justice Greenbaum will act with the greatest possible dispatch on the writ, and that, whether he holds Mr. Perkins or orders his discharge, the case will be immediately appealed by the losing side, so that it can be argued before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in April. On behalf of Mr. Jerome it was said yesterday that meanwhile his consideration of the insurance matter will not be permitted to rest, but that other ends of the evidence furnished by the report of the Armstrong Committee may be taken up and laid before the next Grand Jury.

The Perkins case had barely been disposed of yesterday afternoon when the Grand Jury appeared before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions and, through Foreman Edward Van Valkenbergh, addressed the court as follows:

"On Monday your Honor instructed the Grand Jury that it was their duty to ask for evidence in a case which your Honor did not specify. Not having received any further information, the Grand Jury now respectfully inquires: First—What was the case referred to? Second—Since your Honor instructed the Grand Jury, have any circumstances occurred which dispose you to make any change in your instructions?"

Judge Criticises Jerome.

Judge O'Sullivan answered at length. He said that, officially, he knew of no specific case to be acted on, and that his charge referred to the questions contained in the presentment made to him by the Grand Jury itself. He went on to explain his refusal the day before to act on the telegram which a morning newspaper had sent to all the members of the jury, and to which his attention was then called by Mr. Jerome. His refusal to act, he said, was caused by the failure of the District Attorney to present the matter before the court "properly" in the shape of an affidavit, bringing the charge home to some named individual. Judge O'Sullivan shouted out the word "properly."

Mr. Jerome was not in court at the time. Mr. Perkins, who is in charge of the Indictment Bureau; Mr. Kresel, and several other assistants were there, and listened in silence to what the Judge said. Mr. Jerome refused later to make any comment on the court's remarks. The Grand Jury left the room as soon as Judge O'Sullivan had finished speaking without making any reply or putting any additional questions to him.

Court Usually Acts.

Several lawyers familiar with criminal law and criminal procedure said yesterday that, although attempt to tamper with a jury or to communicate with it illegally constitutes at once a contempt of court and a criminal offense, it has always been the custom in such cases to report such cases with the least possible delay to the court concerned. This is done that the court may decide for itself whether to deal summarily with the offense as a contempt or to order a criminal prosecution and trial. And as a rule the court has dealt with it in the first way.

The Perkins warrant, which Magistrate Moss issued about 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the request of Mr. Jerome, was based on three affidavits sworn to by Vice President Darwin F. Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance Company, Treasurer Edmund D. Randolph of the same company, and Thomas A. Buckner, another Vice President. Appended to the affidavits were copies of a letter from Mr. Jerome to Mr. Perkins asking for information concerning the contribution to the Republican campaign fund, and of the reply sent by Mr. Perkins. In his letter the District Attorney warned Mr. Perkins that a compliance with the request on his part would not carry with it any immunity for possible wrongdoing revealed by the answer. The affidavit of Mr. Kingsley read in substance:

Payment Approved.

"In December, 1904, I was Secretary to the Finance Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company, but not a member of said committee. Some time in December a meeting of the committe was held, at which George W. Perkins was present. The best of my recollection is that all the members of said Finance Committee were present. Mr. John A. McCall, since deceased, and then President of said New York Life Insurance Company, was ex officio a member of said committee, and attended at the meeting referred to. At said time the said McCall, by virtue of his office, had power to make disbursements known as disbursements upon executive order. When the committee was in session it was stated that Mr. McCall on behalf of the New York Life Insurance Company had promised to one Cornelius Bliss that the said New York Life Insurance Company would give to Mr. Bliss, in his capacity as Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, and for use in the Presidential campaign then in progress, such sums as he should need, not to exceed $50,000, and that George W. Perkins, then a Vice President of said insurance company, had advanced to Mr. Bliss, pursuant to said agreement of said McCall, large sums of money, the exact amount of which I cannot now recall. The said McCall did not ask that the committee, as a committee, take official action upon this statement, but desired to inform the said committee of the facts. There was then and there conversation in regard to the matter, and the committee, not being called upon to deal with it in its official character, no vote was taken nor was any entry made in the minutes of the committee of the transaction, but it was the expressed opinion of those present that Mr. McCall should cause Mr. Perkins to be reimbursed for the sums so advanced out of the funds of the New York Life Insurance Company."

Mr. Randolph said in his deposition that he was present at the meeting of the Finance Committee. He added that his recollection of it was practically the same as Mr. Kingsley's, "except that I do not recall that the name of Mr. Cornelius Bliss was mentioned.

"But it was then and there stated," he said, "that the moneys referred to had been advanced for use in the political campaign for President of the United States in 1904.

"On Dec. 30, 1904, as Treasurer of the New York Life Insurance Company, I drew a check payable to the order of J. P. Morgan & Co. for $48,702.50 to reimburse George W. Perkins, referred to in Mr. Kingsley's affidavit, for the disbursement therein stated to have been made by George W. Perkins, a copy of which check is:

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.
No. 7,283. New York, Dec. 30, 1904.
FIRST NATIONAL BANK.
Pay to the order of J. P. Morgan & Co.
forty-eight thousand, seven hundred and two 50-100 dollars ($48,702.50.)
F. H. SHIPMAN, Ass't. Treasurer.
E. D. RANDOLPH, Treasurer.

"Said check was paid in the regular course out of the funds of the New York Life Insurance Company then on deposit in the First National Bank of the City of New York. On the stub of the check book from which said check was detached is this entry:

No. 7,283. Dec. 30, 1904.
Charge Hanover Office acct.
Order of J. P. Morgan & Co.
$48,702.50.

"Said check was drawn by me as Treasurer pursuant to the directions of Mr. John A. McCall.

"At this time George W. Perkins was a Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company and was Chairman of the Finance Committee, and he had nothing whatever to do with the books of account or the check book of said New York Life Insurance Company, and at no time gave any direction in regard to entries made therein in regard to this transaction. The drawing of the check and the entries upon the stub in the check book were entries made in the usual course of the business of the company and were in the form in which it was the custom of the company to enter disbursements made by executive order. For many years the President of the company had exercised the power of ordering disbursements out of the company's funds upon his sole personal authority, and, as far as I am aware, his right to do this had never been challenged.

Purpose Not Shown.

"Whenever the President ordered a disbursement to be made, the entry made upon the books of account of the company indicated simply the disbursement and that it was made by order of the President, but it did not necessarily show the purpose for which the disbursement was made. The entries appearing upon the books of account of the company in reference to the transaction referred to in Mr. Kingsley's affidavit are:

Dec. 30, 1904—Hanover Office Account Charged Treasury Department.
Check to J. P. Morgan & Co., $48,702.50.
Entry made by Mattison.
Hanover Bank Office Account:
Charged Ledger No. 3—Treasury Department.
Dec. 30, 1904—By order of President, $48,702.50.
Entry made in ledger by Mattison.

"These entries are in the form usually employed in the books of the company where disbursements were made upon the order of the President alone, and are in the accustomed form of entry of transactions had by the company."

Mr. Jerome's letter to Mr. Perkins reads:

Dear Sir: Some time since your attorney, Lewis Delafield, Esq., informed me on your behalf that if at any time in the course of my inquiry into matters connected with the insurance situation in this county I desired any information concerning you personally in your relations thereto, you would hold yourself ready at all times to give it to me fully. I now desire that you would fully inform me by a statement subscribed by you what you know and what you did in reference to a certain contribution of some $48,000 made by the New York Life Insurance Company to the Republican National Committee in the year 1904.

It is fair to you to say that I understood Mr. Delafield's offer to be made to me in my official character as District Attorney of New York County, and that it is in this character that I seek such statement and with the intention of using it in any way I deem proper.

Should such statement in connection with other evidence show wrongdoing there is not to be implied from this request and your compliance, should you see fit tto comply, any promise of immunity.

Perkins's Reply.

Here is the main part of Mr. Perkins's answer:

"In the early part of September, 1904, Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss, the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, informed me that Mr. John A. McCall, the President of the New York Life Insurance Company, had promised that such company would contribute the sum of $50,000, or so much thereof as might be necessary, toward the purposes of the Republican National campaign, and had requested Mr. Bliss to see me in reference thereto.

"Mr. McCall, upon inquiry, corroborated Mr. Bliss's statement.

"Mr. McCall stated to me that demands were being made upon him for other political contributions by the company, which it did not seem to him that it would be for the interest of the company to make, and he said that it would make it easier for him to refuse such demands if the payment to the Republican National Committee was not at that time made directly from the funds of the company. In substance, he asked me to see Mr. Bliss and to make the payments personally, and said that he would see that the matter was taken care of later on.

"Accordingly, from time to time, I advanced to Mr. Bliss as Treasurer, from my own resources, various sums amounting to $48,500.

"During December, 1904, the subject of my reimbursement for these advances came up between Mr. McCall and myself. It was concluded to take the matter up with the members of the Finance Committee, of which he was ex officio a member and I was Chairman, as well as Vice President of the company. Later in the month, at a meeting of that committee, at which I was present, President McCall, after explaining that at his request I had advanced to Mr. Bliss as Treasurer the above-named sum, stated that provision should be made for my reimbursement, and the conclusion was reached that the President should cause me to be reimbursed. Up to that time, so far as I know, none of the Trustees, except Mr. McCall and myself, knew of the advances to Mr. Bliss.

"On Dec. 30, 1904, a check to the order of J. P. Morgan & Co. was drawn by the Treasurer and the Assistant Treasurer of the New York Life Insurance Company by order of the President, as I have since learned, and was delivered to J. P. Morgan & Co. and credited to my account. Until the hearings before the Armstrong Investigating Committee in September, 1905, I knew nothing of the bookkeeping entries which had been made with respect to such payment.

Surprised at Question.

"When I made the advances above mentioned, and when I was reimbursed therefor, it never occurred to me that there could be any question as to the propriety of such expenditure, which I believed to be for the benefit of the company. It has come to me as a total surprise that the legality of such payments should be questioned. While so asserting, it is not my intention to dispute or to deny civil liability to account to the company for these moneys.

"You may make such use of this statement as you see fit. It is my purpose frankly to state my connection with the transaction, and advisedly and deliberately I waive any right, privilege, or immunity in connection with or in consequence of my giving this information.

"I derived no personal advantage of any kind from the transaction, and certainly I had no intent other than to serve the interests of the company."

Mr. Buckner said in his affidavit merely that he was familiar with the signature of Mr. Perkins, and that, in his opinion, the letter just quoted had been signed by Mr. Perkins.

The writ of habeas corpus and the writ of certiorari were issued by Justice Greenbaum between 11 and 12 o'clock yesterday morning. Reardon received the warrant about noon and went straight to the office of Hawkins & Delafield at 1 Nassau Street, where he met Mr. Perkins and said to him:

"I have a warrant for your arrest, charging you with a felony."

Before Mr. Perkins could say anything, a clerk in the employ of the law firm served the writ on Reardon. Mr. Perkins, the detective, and the rest of the party walked over to the County Court House, arriving in Part II. of the Supreme Court at 12:33 o'clock. All the proceedings were over by 12:50. Mr. Delafield began his address to the court by saying:

"George W. Perkins, a man of unimpeached character, has been placed under arrest pursuant to a warrant charging him with what I conceive to be a purely technical offense."

Reviewing briefly the facts set forth in the application for the writ, he said:

"Mr. McCall told Mr. Perkins that he would refer the matter of reimbursement (of Mr. Perkins for the money paid to Mr. Bliss) to the Finance Committee, not because its consent was necessary to the payment, or because it fell within the scope of the committee, but because that committee dealt with the general financial policy of the company. Mr. McCall attended the meeting of the Finance Committee and informed its members of what had been done, and that Mr. Perkins had made this advance for the company at his request.

Others Involved Then.

"It is disclosed by the records of the company who belong to the Finance Committee. If it be charged that any offense has been committed by Mr. Perkins, then the names—the honored names—of all the men who composed that committee are equally involved with that of my client."

"Is there any entry which discloses the nature of the payment?" asked the court.

"No, there is no ledger entry which shows that," replied Mr. Delafield. "Mr. Perkins knows nothing about the books. If there is any criticism with regard to the entries in the books, it cannot fall on Mr. Perkins. When this matter was mooted, it appeared to Mr. Perkins that, if any offense was committed, everybody participating in the transaction was a participant in the crime as well as he, and that every such participant could avail himself of his constitutional privilege to refuse giving testimony. Thus all doors by which evidence might have been had would have been closed.

"But Mr. Perkins said to his counsel that everything he had done had been done openly and honestly, and, at the request of the District Attorney, he made a full statement of the whole matter. Our books and accounts were thrown open to the District Attorney, and evidence not obtainable by process of law was freely given."

It was pointed out last night by persons familiar with the insurance situation that the statements made in court by Mr. Delafield concerning the appearance of Mr. McCall before the Finance Committee were strongly corroborative of the assertion made by Andrew Hamilton before the Insurance Committee at Albany that the Finance Committee was fully aware of the expenditures made by him for "legislative" purposes.

EQUITABLE'S LEGAL BILLS.

Henry W. Taft Will Be the Judge of Lawyers' Claims.

The Directors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and the three lawyers engaged in the controversy over mutualization, whose bills were held to be excessive when the board considered them at its January meeting, have agreed to leave the matter to Henry W. Taft as arbitrator.

The lawyers are ex-Justice William N. Cohen, who put in a bill for $50,000 or $55,000 for his services as one of counsel for ex-President James W. Alexander; William B. Hornblower, whose bill, similarly rendered, was $45,000, and Adrian H. Joline, also one of the Alexander counsel, who submitted a bill for $25,000. All the other lawyers engaged in the mutualization controversy were either settled with privately by the contestants or by the society before the sale of the majority stock to Thomas F. Ryan, so that the Equitable has only these three bills remaining as a legal memorandum of the wealth of learned advice heaped upon it during the troublous days last Winter.

The Directors at their monthly meeting yesterday elected John N. Beach, President of the Tefft-Weller Company, a member of the board.

SHEPPARD CASE UNSETTLED.

Registration Committee Renders No Decision in Charge Against Runner.

No decision was rendered last night in the case of Melvin W. Sheppard, the athlete whose status as an amateur is in dispute. The Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. only issued the following unsatisfactory statement after four hours of hearing testimony in the rooms of the Wyandotte Club, 232 East Fifty-eighth Street:

"Owing to additional evidence presented and further prospective testimony the Registration Committee defers action in the Melvin Sheppard case until the next meeting, subject to the call of the Chair."

During the testimony Robert Hallen gave the lie direct to a spectator, who made the sensational statement that he overheard a remark, savoring of conspiracy, between Hallen and Jacob Hegelman. A "rough-house" demonstration was narrowly averted in the room where the hearing was held.

William H. Greene, a member of the Star Athletic Club, who acted for the Registration Committee in a semi-official capacity at the Caledonian games in which Sheppard is alleged to have run against professionals, positively declared that Sheppard was not the runner Alvin Smith. Hallen and Jacob Hegelman declared he was, and there the evidence hung.

CITY BREVITIES.

August Blumenthal, brother of the President of the United Beef Company, who shot himself before a mirror in the Grand Union Hotel on Tuesday morning, died yesterday in Bellevue.

The trial of William H. McNutt on the charge of swindling John W. Whyatt, a Harlem saloonkeeper, out of $3,500 by making him buy a lot of worthless mining stock, began before Judge Foster in General Sessions yesterday.

Bernard MacFadden, publisher of a health culture magazine, and his manager, Gomer Reiss, both of 654 Broadway, were found guilty in Special Sessions yesterday of displaying indecent posters, advertising the Beauty Show in Madison Square Garden last October. The Court suspended sentence.

SAYS HALDEMAN TRIED TO HEAD THE MUTUAL

Failure Created the "Impossible Situation," Officer Declares.

SUPPRESSED GOOD REPORT

English Accountants Reported Company All Right, but British Policy Holders Don't Know It.

To THE TIMES there came yesterday from a high insurance company officer a statement shedding new light on what has been characterized by the English press as "the impossible situation" said to be responsible for the resignation of Donald C. Haldeman, Director of the British agencies of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Haldeman has been connected with the Mutual Life Insurance Company as head of its English branch for a great number of years. According to THE TIMES's informant, soon after it became known that Mr. McCurdy was about to hand in his resignation as President of the company Mr. Haldeman began to have hopes of stepping into the shoes of his fallen chief and becoming the head of the institution.

Long before any direct information regarding the ambitions of Mr. Haldeman came to the Trustees of the Mutual Life, two of the highest officers of the Mutual became aware of his alleged plans, through indirect sources. Although the British Director had shown himself a capable officer with great executive ability, and had the confidence of the Trustees and of the new administration in the highest measure, it was not thought that he was exactly the man to become executive head of the company.

"It is largely since Mr. Haldeman was discouraged in his aspirations for the Presidency of the Mutual," said this official, "that the 'impossible situation' has come to a head in the open distrust of the management of the company in this country which the British policy holders at present are manifesting. Mr. Haldeman has had the books of the company examined at the main office in this city by a firm of English accountants, who found everything all right, and who we know made a favorable report on the financial condition of the institution and the security of the policy holders to Mr. Haldeman.

"Mr. Haldeman might readily, upon hearing from these accountants, have set at rest the doubts and fears of the British policy holders, and no 'impossible situation' like the present would have arisen. He has failed to do so.

"It would be a falsehood to say that the present administration has not done everything in its power to assist Mr. Haldeman in restoring confidence among the policy holders over there. The rock against which these efforts have broken is Mr. Haldeman himself. What his present plans and ambitions are it would be difficult to say.

"Everything has been done to placate him. We sent Henry E. Duncan, head of the foreign agencies, to London several weeks ago to assist Mr. Haldeman. Augustus D. Juilliard, one of the Mutual's Trustees, is also in London. We expect him back soon with a report.

"Then some definite line of action may be decided upon with regard to the British situation. Mr. Haldeman is coming here, but I don't see how that can change matters in any way."

The officers of the Mutual, as far as could be learned yesterday, are entirely in the dark regarding the present plans of Mr. Haldeman, but it was not considered likely that he would be able to get a large enough following among the Mutual's policy holders in England to form a new company to affiliate with some of the existing concerns.

President Charles E. Peabody of the Mutual Life discussed at length yesterday the questions apparently at issue between the company and its British policy holders, involving the resignation of D. C. Haldeman, as general agent in England.

Augustus D. Juilliard is now on his way back here, and, according to private cable dispatches which Mr. Juilliard sent just before he sailed, he is bringing a message from Mr. Haldeman to the Mutual's management. There is an idea in the Mutual Life offices that Mr. Haldeman, who is himself soon to start for this side, will make his peace with the company. Elsewhere the idea prevails that Mr. Haldeman is coming to confer with representatives of the Mutual's policy holders with a view to mutual protection.

Mr. Peabody received reporters after the close of the Trustees' meeting. He was asked if he had heard what Mr. Haldeman wanted or why he was dissatisfied.

"No, I have not," said Mr. Peabody.

"Do you mean to do anything toward the protection of the English policy holders?"

Will Do All Possible.

"We are going to do everything possible for the English policy holders," Mr. Peabody said. "But what do you mean by the word 'protection'?"

It was explained that that was the term used in the cable messages expressing the views of the English policy holders.

"While I don't exactly know what is meant by the use of the word 'protection' in this particular instance," Mr. Peabody said, "I will say that we have $400,000,000 here for the protection of all the policy holders of the company, and will pay their policy contracts as fast as they fall due."

"Does the company intend to deposit funds in Great Britain for the protection of the British policy holders?" Mr. Peabody was asked.

"I don't see any more occasion for the Mutual Life to deposit funds there than for English companies doing business in this country to deposit funds here. I don't see why we should deposit funds there unless we are required to do so by the laws of England. We are here; we are doing business, and we are solvent. I will say, however, that we will do everything in reason that can be suggested for the protection of the British policy holders."

"Even to the extent of depositing funds over there?"

"Yes, if we are required by the laws of Great Britain to do it," said Mr. Peabody. "There has been no law we have ignored or failed to obey."

"If such a law is enacted you will obey it?"

"We will have to. We have no idea of withdrawing from Great Britain. We are going to remain there and build up our business."

Mr. Peabody's attention was called to the fact that American insurance companies were required to maintain in Prussia a certain reserve against the insurance outstanding in that country.

"That is true," he said, "and we have done it, but practically all the American companies have been driven out of Prussia in so far as writing new business is concerned."

"Has Mr. Haldeman made any demands for representation on the Board of Trustees for the British policy holders or for the maintenance of reserves over there which have been refused and which have led to his withdrawal?"

British Haven't Spoken.

"Not one single thing," said Mr. Peabody, emphatically. "The English policy holders have not designated whom they would like to have elected to represent them on the Board of Trustees, but Mr. Haldeman did suggest that the British policy holders should have at least one Englishman on the board. I presume that if the British policy holders should designate an acceptable man for Trustee the board would be very glad to agree to his election."

Concerning Mr. Haldeman's following, Mr. Peabody said:

"There is no association over there. There was a meeting of twelve policy holders there, and that is all."

"Mr. Haldeman is quoted in cable dispatches as saying that he represents about 25,000 policy holders who contribute an annual income of some £640,000," it was said.

"He is our agent in England," commented Mr. Peabody, "and I suppose you might say in a sense that he represents the whole of the English business.

"We have not got any definite complaint from Mr. Haldeman. Personally, I have had but one letter from him, and that was last January. That is the only personal correspondence I have ever had with him. He has been in correspondence, however, with the foreign department, which is under the supervision of the Agency Committee, and letters have gone back and forth. The English policy holders have their Parliament to protect them. We are in their hands. We shall have to do what they want. We can't help ourselves. Up to this time we have not been accused of disobeying any law of any foreign country."

"Don't you think it would be a good thing to deposit money over in England?" Mr. Peabody was asked.

"But," said he, "the Trustees owe something to the policy holders over here. Think for a moment what would happen. The American policy holders have definite claims on this fund, too. This fund is here for all the policy holders. What authority have we to send $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 of it to a foreign country?"

"Are not the companies able," was the next question, "to dispose of their funds as they see fit, as is illustrated by the fact that in former years some of them had $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 on deposit with certain banks and trust companies?"

"But," Mr. Peabody asked, "what right have we, when no law requires it, to send $20,000,000 out of the country and deposit it in Great Britain? We cannot scatter money around the world when the law does not require it. Our law here requires us to keep our money here, and in a particular way. Certainly if Parliament does not require us to keep part of it in Great Britain, we cannot do it at the suggestion of twelve policy holders.

"If the English Government requires us to deposit funds over there, it will designate some official of the Government who will be responsible for the funds. Until the Government does that, who would take that fund even if we did deposit there? We have to earn an income on this fund. We have got to invest it. On their securities we would not earn as much as we are doing now. Moreover, there has been no such request made formally at all by the British policy holders."

BRITISH CLUB FOR MUTUAL.

Company May Be Called Upon to Surrender Values of Policies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

LONDON, March 28.—The resignation of D. C. Haldeman as London agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York continues to be a leading topic here. I am told that there is no American company operating in London to-day which is not spending at least $2.50 for every dollar of new premiums on British policies. The American life insurance business in Great Britain is practically at a dead halt, and London insurance experts say that it cannot be revived unless the New York companies promptly respond to the call made on them to safeguard British interests.

But some of the Mutual's customers say they do not intend to leave the whole question of their relief to the home office. Of the £15,000,000 of risks which the company carries in Great Britain, considerably more than half, it is asserted, could be terminated by the policy holders to their own advantage. In other words, it is declared, the persons on whose lives the greater percentage of the Mutual's British policies is written could surrender the policies, reinsure in British companies, and make money by the operation.

A member of the Policy Holders' Committee, who is authority for this statement, tells me it is quite likely that if the company does not do "the right thing" in a reasonable time it will be called upon to surrender the values of the policies held by its best risks, and have left of its English business only the undesirable part, so that instead of drawing money from this country it will find it necessary to send money to London to meet its liabilities.

GILLETTE AND GRANNISS OUT.

Trustee Gerry Also Leaves the Mutual—Truesdale Report In.

At the meeting of the Mutual Life Insurance Company's Trustees yesterday the resignations of Elbridge T. Gerry as Trustee and of Dr. Gillette and Mr. Granniss as Vice Presidents and Trustees were announced. Mr. Gerry explained in his letter of resignation that he was not prompted by any dissatisfaction with or lack of confidence in the efforts of the present board to reform the company. The two Vice Presidents sent in their resignations on the ground that the way would be clearer for the Mutual's reorganizers if they got out.

The Truesdale Investigating Committee submitted a long report to yesterday's meeting embodying its ideas on the condition of the company's business. The report was not read, but was ordered to be printed and will be made public simultaneously with its distribution to the Trustees. It is said to contain no new "disclosures," as it has nothing to do with the results of the requisitions issued by the committee to the employes and Trustees of the company. It is understood, rather, to be a review of general conditions.

BIG BLAZE IN HOBOKEN.

Public Service Corporation Suffers $60,000 Loss When Gas Cylinder Burns

Expecting a gas cylinder containing 700,000 cubic feet of gas to explode, the police drove the residents out of a dozen tenements when a fire started yesterday afternoon in the gas works of the Public Service Corporation at Twelfth Street and Clinton Street, Hoboken.

The cause of the fire, which was the most spectacular seen in Hoboken since the big fire of 1899, is not known. A few minutes after 5 o'clock, as the day shift of workmen were leaving the works, a sheet of flame following a cloud of dense black smoke burst from the top of the cylinder on the Twelfth Street side of the works.

The flames and smoke shot a hundred feet into the air, being plainly visible from Manhattan. The air was so still at the time that the smoke arose in a column thousands of feet high.

The cylinder which caught fire was one of three 130 feet high, 85 feet in diameter. Near the burning cylinder was a tank containing 7,000 gallons of crude oil. The firemen worked hardest to keep this tank from becoming heated. Close to the burning cylinder was also a vast pile of coal, under which were buried many bales of excelsior, used for purifying the gas. These caught fire and proved a serious menace to the neighborhood, smoldering for hours.

A vast crowd assembled to view the fire, many people making the trip from Manhattan or delaying their homegoing as they left the ferries. The police lines were formed about four blocks from the actual fire owing to the fear that another gas cylinder or the oil tank would explode.

The police ordered the tenants from all of the houses in the neighborhood. Many of the residents got wagons and carted away their furniture. The policemen themselves evinced considerable nervousness and showed no diffidence about getting behind sheds and stone walls.

Those who are ignorant of the qualities of illuminating gas were amazed when the gas in the big cylinder burned like so much paper. Supt. Roeser said afterward that if air had gotten into the big holder there might have been a different story to tell. As it was, the cylinder sank into its well as the gas was consumed, and would have gone right to the bottom had not the plates become bent by heat and the collapsible structure jammed.

Chief Engineer Donahue of the gas works said that he had no idea how the fire began, but declared that the persistence of the flames after the gas was all consumed was due to the presence in the bottom of the cylinder of crude oil and tar.

"It isn't iron that's burning," he said, "and how long the gas holder may continue to sputter and flare depends upon the amount of oil at the bottom. It may go out in a few hours, or it may burn for twenty-four hours."

At 9 o'clock last night the flames had died out. The residents of Hoboken and outlying parts supplied from the Twelfth Street gas works were given light last night from the West End Works in Jersey City.

No one was injured. The damage was estimated at $60,000.

INSURANCE BILL PASSED, UNOPPOSED, BY SENATE

Legislates the Boards of the Mutual Companies Out of Office.

MALBY NOW FOR THE BILLS

But Urges Due Care—Grady, Who Opposed Armstrong Committee Last Week, Keeps Silence.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—In spite of the voluble assertions of a number of Senators last week that they would not be moved by public clamor, there was a marked falling off in opposition to-day to the first of the bills, which legislated out of office the Directors and Trustees of the Mutual New York Life, and Mutual Reserve Companies, and it was passed after some debate by unanimous vote.

Senator Armstrong had the bill made a special order as he said he had to return to New York. It was late in the afternoon when the Senate got through with the Elsberg bill, and the insurance matter was only taken up on the assurance of Mr. Armstrong that it would take only a short time to dispose of it. This was the first inkling that the opposition had broken down.

Senator Malby, who made the chief speech against hasty legislation last week, opened the proceedings again to-day. Senator Grady did not say a word, and some surprise was manifested at his attitude.

Mr. Malby showed at the start that the newspaper comments had affected him. He began by saying that any one who opposed the insurance legislation or who taught caution was called an obstructionist. He declared that the present agitation had cost the policy holders a greater sum than it had cost Japan to fight Russia, and he knew not how many more millions it would cost them unless the Legislature proceeded with due care.

"Crucify him has been the cry here just as it was 2,000 years ago," cried the speaker, "and the number of Pontius Pilates is just as great as it was then. Instead of nailing to the cross the hands and feet they would nail the reputations and honor of the men they seek to destroy. I insist that good sense and judgment shall rule in the deliberations on these measures. It has even been insisted here that these Directors shall never be allowed to hold positions of public trust again."

"I said that," cut in Brackett, "and I repeat it. These men who stood by and helped or permitted this thievery should be ostracized."

He then referred to Mr. Malby's remark about crucifixions.

"The only likeness of the honest Trustees to Christ that I can see, is that when there are six in a row every one of them is between two thieves," he said.

"I never said anything," returned Mr. Malby, "that could lead any one to believe that I wanted a thief retained in a position of public trust, but I don't say that every man in the insurance companies is a fraud. If that were true, it would include the only living ex-President and a Judge of the Supreme Court among those whom it is sought to make outlaws. My argument has been to proceed along safe lines."

Mr. Malby then made this significant statement:

"I think that in the end I shall vote for all these bills. My opposition to this one has been to branding many men of high moral character and undoubted integrity as scoundrels."

Mr. Malby then denounced Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, and said there was danger of "vandals" being elected as Directors, because men like Mr. Lawson would get proxies while men like Grover Cleveland and Justice O'Brien would not beg for votes.

"My objections were presented honestly and conscientiously," he said, "and if Senator Armstrong sees nothing in the bill to rouse his suspicions then I'll vote with him."

Mr. Armstrong in closing the debate said that there never was a real mutual life insurance company in this State, but that the management in the stock companies calling themselves mutual consisted of stockholders, and in the mutual companies of an oligarchy of intrenched Trustees kept in by proxies obtained by the agents. He said that the bill did not affect the Equitable.

"Why doesn't it?" asked Senator Marks. "It strikes me that the thievery was about as rampant there as anywhere else. What has the committee done in the matter of the Equitable?"

Mr. Armstrong said that the committee was now trying to frame something that would fit the situation there, and Mr. Marks said that if they did not he would have a bill presented to get at the Equitable as well.

The bill affecting elections was then passed without dissent.

DR. HUNTINGTON ON FLATS.

Necessary, but Have Drawbacks, He Says—Progress of Cathedral Work.

The need for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine as a rallying place for the Episcopal Church, and not merely as a monument, was expressed by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, at a lecture in the home of Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, 225 Madison Avenue, yesterday. The reception room of the house was filled with fashionable folk.

"I have no sympathy," said Dr Huntington, "with people who rail against living in flats and apartment houses. Apartment houses are a necessity caused by the narrowness of the city, which cannot be helped. On the other hand, they hermetically seal their occupants from the parish minister. If he calls at an apartment house he meets a man at the door who treats him much as a charity applicant who is told to go to the Associated Charities office is treated.

"The new cathedral will give us a rallying place where we can show our strength."

C. Grant La Farge, one of the cathedral architects, showed stereopticon views and demonstrated the work that had been done on the great house of worship. He explained that the high sweep of masonry now visible will only reach one-third of the height of the cathedral and will be invisible when the structure is done. It is nothing less than a part of the higher foundations of the completed structure.

Mr. La Farge explained the great difficulty in finding the right kind of rock bottom upon which to build the great foundations for the massive arches. Although fourteen years have produced only the single great arch to the view of the distant Harlemite, Mr. La Farge is apparently satisfied with the work that has been accomplished and believes that it will go forward rapidly from now on.

fact that a bonus of $400 par value of the stock was to be given with each $100 share subscribed for at par. This offer appeared in the contract to have been limited to those who were to become agents of the company. The agents, however, seem to be identical with the subscribers, it being explained that the concern was to be conducted as a co-operative affair which planned to do away with the middleman in the sugar trade. Hundreds of subscriptions, Mr. Holman said, had been received from people all over this part of the country, from Delaware to New York State.

The application blanks for stock distributed by Holman & Holman set forth the fact that the United States Sugar Refining Company, capitalized at $100,000,000, divided into shares of a par value of $100, was incorporated under the laws of Maine. Names of individuals, however, were entirely lacking. Neither the officers nor the Directors were given.

Mr. Holman wouldn't hand any of them out, either. Nor would he tell who were the "financial backers" who had agreed to provide the $1,000,000 underwriting fund.

"They are men of financial standing," he said. "That is, they have money, in a way, I believe. That is, through negotiations carried on by us they probably could get the money needed. But they haven't supplied the million dollars they agreed to. But I presume that they would not have underwritten a million-dollar proposition unless they were in a position to get funds."

Mr. Holman wouldn't go any further to enlighten the public concerning the financial responsibility of the men behind the $100,000,000 United States Sugar Refining Company.

The officers and Directors, he said, were not the real parties in interest. They were irresponsible, but naming them would immediately lead to the discovery of those who were back of them. This Mr. Holman was entirely unwilling to do. He laid stress on the fact that he was giving no information except that which is already "generally known in certain channels."

"Those checks will never be presented for payment," Mr. Holman said. "If they are there will be a scandal in the financial world like some of the other recent scandals, but they will return the checks without doubt; we are sure of that."

Checks Returned.

Some of the checks, it appears, have already been returned to certain subscribers. It was reported yesterday that a number of subscribers residing in Rome, N. Y., recently hired a lawyer of that city to get their checks back. The demand was made upon Holman & Holman, who promptly canceled the subscriptions, and relieved the subscribers of all responsibility. Mr. Holman admitted that these subscribers had demanded the return of their checks. He explained that his firm willingly canceled the subscriptions of these people and of others as well, numbering about fifty all told. They did not return the checks themselves, but they had cut out the signatures and returned that much of the checks to the subscribers. Mr. Holman explained that they retained the checks in order to keep their accounts straight.

Later in the day it was learned from another source that the United States Sugar Refining Company was incorporated in Minneapolis in May, 1905. The Directors and officers named in the incorporation papers were Louis W. Campbell, President, Treasurer, and Director; George C. Andrews, Secretary and Director, and S. F. Campbell, M. A. Campbell, and E. C. Gale, Directors.

To "Cover Up the Tracks."

Mr. Holman was asked for their addresses. He replied that none of these men was now in the company. He said that they were named merely for the purposes of incorporation, and that they withdrew subsequently and that this was all part of the plan to cover up the tracks of the "real parties in interest."

The firm of Holman & Holman, it was said yesterday, consists of W. J. Holman and H. G. Holman. The firm has occupied the present quarters on the eighteenth floor of the Broad Exchange Building since last April, a month before the United States Sugar Refining Company was incorporated. It is said that the firm does not intend remaining long in its present offices, as it lease has not been reewed.

Special to The New York Times.

ROME, N. Y., March 28.—Last Fall a man came through this section soliciting subscriptions to stock in the United States Sugar Refining Company. He said he represented Holman & Holman of New York, and allowed that those who were chosen to be subscribers to the stock would get a good thing.

There were many investors in the country villages. The solicitor traveled in an automobile, and made a good front. He went to the proprietors of country stores and said that they were evidently the leading merchants of the section and he had a good thing to offer them. He said he represented a syndicate that was preparing to handle the sugar output of the country, with a capital of $100,000,000. He was looking for dealers to act as distributors of the output.

But in order to be appointed agents each one would have to take a block of the stock of the company. The minimum amount of shares which the company would sell, and only to dealers, was $300 worth, but they would rather make it $500. It would not be necessary to pay the whole amount down; purchasers could pay on the installment plan, giving a check for $50 each month until the whole amount was paid. The first check, however, must be certified. The scheme worked well, and many subscribers were obtained.

It is said that in Boonville two merchants who were not seen by the solicitor chased him ten miles in an automobile in order to get in on the ground floor. Several country merchants in this vicinity woke up after they had made their first payment and came to Rome and laid the case before a lawyer.

He set on foot an investigation and with so much success that a man who gave his name as Holman came on and made good the checks that the investors had forwarded. He also carefully gathered up all the reading matter in relation to the sugar company and took it with him. It is believed that many thousand dollars have been invested by dealers in Central and Northern New York.

TRANSIT BILL PASSES; ELSBERG IN A RAGE

Senator Says That as Adopted It Is a Belmont-Ryan Measure.

BEATEN BY GRADY, 25 to 23

Fails to Have Reinserted Clause Providing Separate Contracts for Construction and Operation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—Without a dissenting voice the Senate to-day passed Senator Elsberg's Rapid Transit bill in what Mr. Elsberg calls its "emasculated" form. Senator Grady won out in his fight to have stricken from the measure the clause which permits separate contracts for construction, equipment, and operation. This, Elsberg says, robs the bill of all its competitive features.

Elsberg said that, while the bill as passed was not at all what he had intended it should be, yet he considered it distinctly a step in advance over the present rapid transit law in that it put squarely up to the Board of Estimate the proposition whether or not it would let the contracts for future routes so as to admit outside bidders, or tie the building up to the present merger. Elsberg said he would try to have the clause put back in the bill in the Assembly and have the bill come back to the Senate in its original form. He hopes to have the original bill finally passed.

Elsberg brought up his bill as a special order to take from the table his motion to reconsider the vote by which Grady succeeded in having the clause in question stricken from the bill. The vote to reinsert the clause was beaten 25 to 23.

The motion to reconsider precipitated a hot debate. Twice during the voting there was a close call of the session and three Senators were brought in under arrest by the Sergeant at Arms.

When Elsberg got the floor he said the City Club had approved of the bill in the shape it was before Grady had it amended and had acted on Grady's amendment. "That change in the situation strips away all pretense of opposition to the bill except the opposition of the corporation which now has its grip upon the throat of the city and seeks to still further tighten its clutch," said Elsberg.

Senator Grady in reply said: "Mr. Elsberg has told you that all opposition to the bill had passed away. I want to reiterate that the bill would never have come out of committee if it was suspected that in its unamended form it interfered with any of the routes already laid out. I do not purpose to have a bill pass here which will interfere with the routes already laid out. What the people of New York want is more subways, and they want them quickly. In taking that stand I have harkened to the voice of no private interest any more than has the Senator from the Fifteenth." [Elsberg.]

"I know where this amendment came from," said Elsberg, in a rage, worked up to an excited pitch. "It didn't originate with the Rapid Transit Board, but it originated in the office of the counsel for the Belmont-Ryan crowd who, after succeeding in getting one competitive feature cut out of the bill, went over it again with a fine tooth comb to see if they could not find something else that interfered with their grip on the city's throat. As it came originally from the attorneys of the railroad it may fairly be assumed that it was intended that the amendment should be in the road's interest.

"We in New York know that we have little chance in any event. The merger has everything on its side, existing lines, clever men, and all the rest of it, but we don't want to be bound up to them body and soul and be tied hand and foot. Unless we have lines capable of independent operation how can there be any competitive bidding? Does any one believe that an outsider will bid for the building of a road that will only act as a feeder for the Belmont-Ryan merger?

"The issue to-day is the railroads against the people, and it would be just as well to have every man come out in the open and tell where he stands in the fight."

"That's not the fight at all," thundered Grady. "I was advised by a prominent member of the Rapid Transit Commission that the bill should be amended."

"Who was he?" asked Elsberg.

"The Mayor of New York," said Grady. "The Mayor said the bill in its original shape was a menace, a public calamity."

Senator McCarren said the people did not care who built the roads if they could ride from Coney Island to Yonkers for one fare.

On the vote to reconsider the Senators lined up as follows:

MORTGAGE TAX BILL CHANGE.

One Wade Amendment Adopted, but Assembly Defeats All Others.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—The Assembly to-day amended the Dowling Mortgage Tax Repeal bill so that all mortgages filed up to June 30 shall be subject to the present tax. This was a part of what Chairman Wade, the special champion of mortgage taxation, was contending for. The repeal bill provides that there shall be a recording tax at the ratio of 50 cents per $100.

The Wade amendment limiting interest charges, with the intent of making the lender pay the tax, was defeated 81 to 28. This indicates the relative strength of the opposition to mortgage taxation as provided at present and practically shows that the Page-Dowling bill will pass the Assembly. Other amendments except the one accepted by Dowling were also defeated.

Chairman Wade read from THE NEW YORK TIMES an open letter by B. Aymar Sands relative to repeal of the law fathered by Wade. He ridiculed the stand of Sands on behalf of the borrower as being insincere. He held that the "poor borrower" could never have been behind the expeditions of high priced counsel who came to Albany to urge mortgage tax repeal.

No Defense to B. L. Duke's Divorce.

Mrs. Alice Webb Duke, the wife of Brodie L. Duke, did not offer any defense to her husband's suit for divorce, which was considered by Justice Blanchard and a jury in the Supreme Court yesterday, and the jury returned an affirmative answer to Duke's charges. A decree of divorce will follow.

ANTI-MERGER BILL BEATEN.

Oliver the Only Assembly Democrat to Oppose the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—The Shanahan Anti-Merger bill, designed to prevent the formation of holding companies in the consolidation of public service corporations, was defeated to-day in the Assembly after a three hours' fight, being twelve votes short of a majority. Oliver of New York was the only Democrat to oppose the measure. These Republicans broke from their leader and voted for the bill: Steffens, O'Neill, Cunningham, Murphy, Francis, Hartman, Winters Green, Lee, Story, Hubbs, Hoffman, Coine, Palmer, Farnan, Rock, Springer, Hooker, Degroot, Brennan, Dowling, Donohue, Weber, Foelker, and Surpless. The Hearst men and independents all voted for the bill.

When the contest began many Republicans were undecided, but when Majority Leader Moreland made a speech against the bill, enough followed him to seal the fate of the measure.

Oliver charged that the bill was primarily for its effect on the stock market. Shanahan asked if anybody would say that it was anybody's bill but his. Oliver dared him to deny that he hadn't consulted others about the measure.

Shanahan said he believed his bill would prevent a merger of the Consolidated Gas Company, and the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. In his opinion, great evil resulted from the political strength which accrued to men who were the most important factors in large holding corporations.

SENATE BARS EX-SENATOR.

Brown Turned Out, but Let in Again After Talk About Lobbyists.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—Ex-Senator Elton R. Brown of Watertown was turned out of the Senate Chamber this morning. He came here to-day in the interest of persons who want to beat the proposed constitutional amendment to abandon part of the Black River Canal. The former Senator had to get out of the chamber because Senator Merton E. Lewis's single vote defeated the unanimous consent motion to give him the privileges of the floor.

"I don't think is is necessary or dignified for a former member of this body to enter this chamber, to circulate about it, sit in members' seats, and discuss pending legislation," said Senator Lewis.

Some of Brown's old friends then got busy, and had the rules amended so that a former member may enter the chamber without any motion having to be made, but he may not sit in members' seats.

Brown, not at all feazed, re-entered it as soon as the new rule was adopted, and was escorted to a seat beside Lieut. Gov. Bruce.

LOWER STREET CAR FARES.

Assembly Passes Bill for Six Tickets for a Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—By the Krulewitch bill which passed the Assembly unanimously to-day the New York City Railway Company would be compelled to sell tickets at the rate of six for 25 cents.

This bill was fought by the railroad company when it was before the Railroads Committee. Assemblymen Krulewitch and Hartman, both Republican and Municipal Ownership men of New York, appeared before the committee and detailed how even the slightest reduction would help the working classes. Mr. Krulewitch said the rate prevailed in many other large cities, and New York should have the same benefits.

When the bill came up to-day there was nobody who cared or dared to uphold the cause of the company, for the measure went through flying.

Recount Bill Advanced.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 28.—The Raines-Murphy Recount bill was advanced to a third reading to-day in the Assembly unanimously. Minority leader Palmer gave notice that he would debate it on the third reading. Lafetra, personal representative of Charles F. Murphy, said, "I am unalterably opposed to this bill." Nothing more was said, and advancement followed as a matter of course.

STERILIZED BETTING OUTLOOK

Followers of the Races Don't Know What Changes to Expect.

The action of the Senate Codes Committee on Tuesday in practically killing the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-Racing bill aroused much interest here yesterday among the men in control of racing affairs. It was especially interesting to a small group frequenting the corridors of the Waldorf-Astoria. The chief figures in this group were J. H. Bradford, a Steward of The Jockey Club, and Philip J. Dwyer, President of the Brooklyn and Queens County Jockey Clubs, but neither would talk about the case. Of the plans for "sterilized" betting they were equally silent.

Other men affiliated with the race track interests of New York were unable to foresee what changes might be made in the management of the betting rings of the New York race tracks, since the news has come from Washington that the betting on The Jockey Club course at Benning is conducted in exactly the same manner as in New York last season.

All the men interested in betting agreed that as long as racing was conducted on the plan adopted in New York last season and again in Washington this Spring, whereby the racing clubs declined to receive any revenue from the betting ring, the connection of the racing clubs with betting was severed. They could not see how the various associations could act to make any change in the betting arrangements without renewing the control of betting which the New York track managers repudiated last year.

The only change from the old plan that was made at Washington was in reducing the number of the clubhouse Commissioners from forty to six. This, it was said by the managers of the Washington Club, was not with any view to regulating betting, but simply because the Commissioners had grown so numerous as to interfere with the comfort of club members and guests.

The six men who were permitted to go on as clubhouse Commissioners were required to furnish sponsors, and, though it was said in Washington that the same Commissioners will be required to give $5,000 bond each, the only effect will be to guarantee the responsibility of the club members' agents, without increasing in any way the revenue to the clubs.

POLICEMAN SAVES CHILDREN.

Sheridan, Discus Thrower, Stops Runaway at the Risk of His Life.

Patrolman Martin J. Sheridan of the Tremont Station, who is the champion discus thrower of the world, and is soon to go to Greece to take part in the Olympic games, saved several school children from injury yesterday afternoon by stopping a runaway horse at Tremont Avenue and Bryant Street, the Bronx.

Sheridan escaped without injury, but the horse dragged him through a deep pool of water, in a vacant lot, into which he turned the runaway.

The horse was owned by P. J. Heaney, a dealer in building material, whose office is at West Farms Road and 176th Street.

The animal, attached to a light runabout, was standing in front of the office when an automobile scared him and he bolted up West Farms Road. He ran through West Farms Square and dashed onward toward a group of children on their way to Public School No. 6, at Bryant Street and Tremont Avenue.

Just outside the square Patrolman Raymond of the Tremont Station attempted to stop the runaway, but was flung off into the mud.

Near the front of the school, the runaway encountered Sheridan. Children scattered in terror, but there was a large group in front of the school that would not have escaped but for Sheridan's quick work. Sheridan threw himself upon the right shaft, held on with one hand, and tried to cut off the animal's breath.

He succeeded in diverting the runaway's course out of the children's way into a vacant lot at the side of the avenue, where he got a hold on the horse's nostrils and choked it into submission.

Mortgage Insurance.

Many things can happen to a mortgage even on New York City real estate. The interest may be defaulted; the property may depreciate; the original appraisal may be erroneous; there may be a flaw in the title; taxes and assessments may not be paid; it may have to be foreclosed.

Yet if the mortgage is guaranteed you are insured against loss from any cause. You receive your interest and principal just the same.

2 JERSEY SENATORS SAID TO HAVE SOUGHT BRIBES

Charged with Offering to Kill Bill Aimed at Pawnbrokers.

BOTH WARMLY DENY THIS

Senator Shinn of Ocean County Threatens a Libel Suit, but Will Clear His Honor First.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 28.—A sensation was caused here late this afternoon when a Newark newspaper sent to the Capitol before the adjournment of the Senate session charged that Senators Shinn of Ocean County and Martens of Hunterdon, members of the Senate Committee on Labor and Industries, had attempted to extort $200 apiece from the New Jersey Pawnbrokers' Association for holding up Senate Bill 184, which seeks to protect workmen whose tools are stolen and then pawned.

Philip Krimke, President of the Pawnbrokers' Association, has made affidavit that he was sent for by a lobbyist and told to bring lots of money to Trenton; that he came and was ushered into the Senate committee rooms, where Shinn and Martens demanded $1,000 for holding the bill up. He refused to pay so much, and they demanded $500. He again refused, and then compromised on $400. He was to bring the money the next day, and when he did not come the bill was advanced to third reading and then pulled back for a more drastic amendment than ever by Shinn.

Krimke says he then took counsel and made the affidavit which will be forwarded to Gov. Stokes.

This affidavit has not reached here, but the newspaper with the text of the affidavit has, and was read by the Senators before the session closed this afternoon. Shinn was in his seat, but Martens went home early in the afternoon.

Senator Shinn says the affidavit is a base calumny; that he had a talk with some one about this bill, but no money was spoken of, nor was there any consideration offered or demanded for his aid in defeating the bill. He points to the fact that he inserted yesterday a more drastic amendment, and says he will sue for libel after first rising in his place in the Senate on Monday night, the next session of the upper House, and demanding that the matter be fully investigated, that his honor may be cleared.

Senator Martens of Hunterdon entered an equally strong denial to-night.

Mr. Krimke is a member of the firm of Feist & Krimke, pawnbrokers, of 29 Academy Street, Newark. It was learned last night that his affidavit has been taken to Trenton by City Attorney Malcolm MacLear, of Newark, who will place the matter before the Legislature. Frederick Kissam, an employe of the Jersey City Board of Works and a personal representative of "Bob" Davis, the Democratis boss of Hudson County, is named in the affidavit in addition to the two Senators.

Krimke alleges that Frederick Kissam, an employe of the Jersey City Street and Water Board, called the attention of Daniel Cohen, a Hoboken pawnbroker, to two bills, and told him to go to Trenton with money if he wanted them defeated.

Cohen, according to the affidavit, consulted with the Pawnbrokers' Association, and with Krimke and others went to Trenton. There Kissam introduced them to Senators Shinn of Ocean County and Martens of Hunterdon. Cohen and Krimke went into a room back of the President's chair in the Senate Chamber, Senator Martens accompanying them and Senator Shinn entering soon afterward.

When Krimke asked about the bills Senator Shinn, according to the affidavit, said they were good ones and ought to pass. "But we can stop the first," he added.

"How?" Krimke asked.

The affidavit says Senator Shinn replied, "Why, money."

"How much?" Krimke inquired.

Senator Shinn responded, according to the affidavit, "One thousand dollars."

ORDERS EAST SIDE TROLLEYS.

Speedy Changes in Several Lines Recommended by Railroad Commission.

The Board of Railroad Commissioners, after an examination of the traffic conditions of the lower east side of the Borough of Manhattan, have made the following recommendations:

1. That the New York City Railway Company cause the tracks of what is known as the Cortlandt Street Ferry line, now operated by horse power from Cortlandt Street Ferry to Grand Street Ferry, to be equipped for the operation of electric cars.

2. That the New York City Railway Company cause what is known as the Chambers and Grand Street Ferry line, now operated by it between Grand Street Ferry and Pavonia Ferry by horse power, to be equipped for the operation of electric cars.

3. That the New York City Railway Company cause the tracks of what is known as the Grand and Desbrosses Street line, now operated by horse power, to be equipped for the operation of electric cars.

4. That the New York City Railway Company cause the tracks in East Broadway, between Canal Street and Chatham Square, to be equipped for the operation of electric cars, and that additional tracks be equipped for electric operation and connected with the tracks in East Broadway and Park Row.

5. That the New York City Railway Company provide cars and power for the proper operation of the above-mentioned lines at the date of completion of the electric equipment of the tracks.

6. We further recommend that work be begun on these absolutely necessary improvements at the earliest possible date, and we request that the New York City Railway Company promptly notify this board of their intentions as to compliance with the recommendations made herewith.

Recommendations of the commission are practically orders, though they are not called so.

MARCH 1906

NO COAL SETTLEMENT; HINT OF ARBITRATION

Mitchell Blames Railroad Ownership of Mines for Trouble.

BOOKS CONCEAL THE PROFITS

No Bloodshed Even If We Strike, Says Mitchell — Robbins Offers 1903 Scale.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 28.—The joint conference of the coal miners and operators of the central competitive district adjourned to-day until to-morrow afternoon with no apparent settlement of their wage differences in prospect.

A motion to continue the present scale for two years made by the operators' was defeated by the solid vote of the miners. An amendment to President Mitchell's motion to restore the scale of 1903, offered by F. L. Robbins of the Pennsylvania operators, to make the restored schedule effective for two years, was accepted by Mitchell, subject to ratification by the National Miners' Convention, which will meet to-morrow morning to consider the question.

This was the only action taken during the day. The rest was argument, during the course of which great earnestness on the part of the miners and both factions of the operators was shown. Mitchell charged that many coal companies are owned by railroads, and the profit on coal is not indicated by the books of the coal companies, as much of it is absorbed by the railroads. He announced that the miners would continue in the future to ask for more wages if the market justified, and stated positively that the miners would adhere to their demands for an increase at this time.

There were a number of suggestions and hints at an arbitration commission during the day. R. R. Hammond said the complications of the coal situation would never be understood by the public until they had been examined by a commission, and he was willing that the differences should be settled by a commission.

When the conference met G. W. Traer, the Chairman, announced that the question was on the substitute motion offered by J. H. Winder to reaffirm the present wage scale with conditions as they existed when that scale was adopted, the scale to include the cost of mining, loading, shooting, and timbering.

R. R. Hammond of the Illinois operators said that the ramifications of the coal situation were so complicated that the public would never be able to understand them until they had been examined by a commission, and, so far as he was concerned, he was willing to leave the differences to such a commission. He said the operators' profits were not such as to warrant a further increase.

President Mitchell replied to Hammond. "If Mr. Hammond," he said, "wants to close his coal companies forever, he will find us waiting when he wants to open them again." This statement was loudly applauded by the miners.

"The American people," said Mitchell, "are going to ask, and insist upon knowing, why the operators cannot pay an advance of 3 cents a ton. And we are going to ask you why you can now charge the American people an advance of $1 per ton and not be able to pay us an advance of 3 cents a ton." Mitchell said many coal companies were so closely allied with other interests that the real profits on the coal taken from the mines are not shown by the books of the coal companies.

"I have said, and I repeat now," he continued, "that so long as I am connected with the miners' organization, and so long as they give to me the same confidence, the same respect that year by year they have, if market conditions justify us, we shall ask for more and more wages. But I make that reservation; as I did heretofore, that it will be if market conditions justify us in doing so. And I say to you if there comes a great depression, if there comes to our country conditions that justify it, I have no doubt but that the miners will again accept their share of the burdens. But now it is obvious that the commercial and industrial conditions of our country are more prosperous than at any previous time. And yet we miners, when we ask for even a small advance, are met evidently with a flat denial."

"The miners, so far as we are concerned, in case of a strike, will have no riots and no bloodshed. We may, if a prolonged strike takes place, have hunger and we may wear poorer clothees. We may endure greater hardships, but the miners are just as law-abiding and just as patriotic as are the gentlemen on your side."

F. L. Robbins called for President Mitchell's motion to restore the scale of 1903, and moved to amend it by making it cover a period of two years. Mitchell seconded this motion, subject to ratification by the miners' convention. Robbins opened the debate on the motion. He was applauded when he said the miners were entitled to some of the present prosperity of the country.

Mitchell moved that an adjournment be taken until to-morrow afternoon, as a session of the miners' National Convention would be necessary before the miners could vote on his motion to restore the 1903 scale to be effective for two years. This motion carried, and a session of the miners' convention was called for to-morrow morning.

Mitchell said to-day he had taken no action on the anthracite situation. "The anthracite committee has not been called together," said he, "and nothing whatever has been done. There is no change in the situation."

PITTSBURG MINERS READY.

Will Walk Out Saturday If Strike Is Declared—Coal Now $2.50.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 28.—Every miner in the Pittsburg district is preparing to walk out Saturday, and they declare they will not go to work until the scale is signed for the entire district.

The price of coal went up with a bound here to-day. Run-of-mine coal is now quoted at $2.50 a ton, an advance to-day of 50 cents. This is almost a hundred per cent. over the price a week ago. It is believed it will be $3 by Saturday.

The district convention reconvened to-day, and a riotous session resulted. Some of the delegates were in favor of adjourning until called by the chair. The delegates say the operators are stringing out the Indianapolis conference to bankrupt the union. It is costing the workers about $7,500 a day to maintain the expenses of the delegates to Indianapolis and those here.

Despite the threatened strike nearly 2,000,000 bushels of coal were sent out to-day to Southern points by water.

Miners in this district say that they will not work even if given the advance unless the whole bituminous field goes to work. They blame all the trouble on the Illinois shot-firer question, and think Illinois should be left to settle it by itself.

COAL PRICES UNCERTAIN.

Local Dealers Say Rates May Go Up Soon.

The coal dealers and brokers in this borough have not as yet advanced the price of domestic anthracite, but they will not guarantee to take any orders to be delivered after April 1 at present prices or give any guarantee as to its prompt delivery.

The Brooklyn coal dealers increased the prices of all kinds of domestic anthracite 50 cents a ton yesterday. Ordinary domestic anthracite, according to the circulars issued by the Brooklyn dealers, is now $7 a ton and red ash $7.50 a ton to families and 25 cents a ton less to manufacturers and restaurant keepers.

The large dealers who are in touch with the operators said that while an anthracite strike is feared they do not believe there will be any suspension of work pending the conference with the anthracite operators' committee of seven which has been asked for by Mitchell even though it should not be held until after April 1.

The anthracite operators issued a statement last night to show that if there is an anthracite strike this year the same violence may be expected as characterized the strike of 1902.

MORE GOLD COMING HERE.

National City Bank Bringing $1,000,000 from Russia Via Berlin.

The National City Bank, it was learned yesterday, has secured $1,000,000 in gold abroad for import to this country. This is the third import by the National City Bank arranged within the past two weeks, $1,250,000 having been secured in London and a similar amount in Berlin. The source from which the bank secured the $1,000,000 engaged yesterday was not made known.

In some quarters it was said that the gold had probably been secured in Berlin as had the last amount engaged by the bank. The gold taken in Berlin was part of a shipment received in that city from St. Petersburg and was said to have been secured by the National City Bank directly from the Mendelsohns, the Berlin bankers for the Russian Government.

International bankers who learned of the engagement of gold by the National City Bank said that it was quite possible that the gold represented a further shipment from Russia, which may have been secured either through the Mendelsohns in Berlin or through Paris bankers. The point was made that through whichever channel the gold may have been secured, it was to be regarded rather as a gold import from Russia than from either Germany or France. New York exchange on Holland was at the gold import yesterday, but bankers expressed the opinion that the unwillingness of the Dutch banks to part with their gold for export would prevent any engagement of the precious metal in that country.

The weakness of Dutch exchange was directly attributed to purchases of American securities for Holland account. European investors have recently bought very large amounts of our securities and their purchases have largely been responsible for the position of the international exchange market, which have made possible the imports of gold arranged by the National City Bank.

Sterling exchange in this market was practically unchanged yesterday, closing, as on Tuesday, at 4.8525 for demand. Time money was unchanged yesterday, but call money was quoted substantially higher than on any day recently.

AN EQUINE CARRIE NATION.

She Smashed Two Saloon Windows and Injured Three Persons.

The name of the flighty gray mare may not have been Carrie Nation, but the police have so named her. She came near putting two saloons out of business and injured three persons. John Spath of 563 West Forty-second Street was driving his long wagon down Sixth Avenue at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was a scenery wagon, belonging to the Walton Theatrical Transfer Company.

Why the gray mare began to run nobody knew, but she did it at Fortieth Street. Spath was sitting high up in the air on the end of a sort of springboard that was bolstered on the forward truck of the wagon. At the first jump of Carrie Spath went shooting forward like a boy going into a swimming hole on a hot day. His hitting Carrie didn't moderate her gait. Spath rolled off into the street covered with bruises and fuming with language relative to the good sense of horses.

Carrie went on. At Thirty-ninth Street John Rost, a laborer, of 1,743 Avenue A, stepped into the street, waving his arms like a windmill and calling out to Carrie to stop. She knocked him down, and swerved in toward Henry Deckert's saloon at the corner. She flipped her trailing wagon against two plate glass windows and tore away a windowed vestibule. The saloon was full of people. They thought Capt. Hodgins was making a raid, and they went out of all the rear doors not slowly.

Carrie didn't leave the sidewalk.

Mrs. Catherine Myer, who was going to the store of her husband at 664 Sixth Avenue, didn't get out of the way. Between Thirty-ninth and Thirty-eighth Streets Carrie struck her, knocking her down so that two wheels of the wagon passed over her. Her skull was fractured.

Carrie reached the saloon of P. J. Flanary, at the corner of Thirty-eighth Street, and again flipping her wagon she smashed the plate glass windows, and caused another panic of drinkers.

By this time Policemen Christensen, Gilligan, and Kaulback of the Tenderloin Station were after Carrie Nation. She took the street again. The three policemen halted her at Thirty-seventh Street.

A Bellevue ambulance surgeon attended Jacob Rost and took Mrs. Myer and John Spath to the hospital.

MRS. KANGAROO HAS TWINS.

Some Circus Natural History Explaining the Menagerie Man's Surprise.

No keeper of kangaroos can tell exactly what day was the birthday of his kangaroo's bouncing little child, because long after little kangaroos are born they stay in the pouch of the mother kangaroo, getting strong and fat, occasionally poking out a cold little nose and peeking at the world with bright, wondering eyes.

Every day for two weeks George Conklin, the menagerie Superintendent for the Barnum & Bailey circus, has noticed a little nose poking out in this fashion, and has been expecting a new kangaroo baby to abandon the pouch of its mother and become a member of his menagerie. Yesterday the little fellow decided to make the move. But after him another little fellow hopped, and Conklin was surprised.

"What puzzles me," he told his assistant, "is which one of them kangarooIets I've been acquainted with for the last two weeks."

The twins did not peek out at the same time, but did it in turns, and thus the Superintendent was led to expect only one.

The examination by Conklin of the twins, in the hope of identifying the kangaroo baby he had met before, so annoyed the mother that she pocketed both last night and went calmly to sleep an hour before her regular bed time.

RICH AMERICAN'S WIFE A SUICIDE IN LONDON

"Marie Derval" Was Mrs. J. P. Cushing, Formerly of Boston.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY SISTER

Mr. and Mrs. Cushing Separated Some Years Ago—Former, It Is Said, Is Now in New York.

LONDON, March 28.—The mystery which surrounds the suicide of a woman who under the name of Marie Derval poisoned herself in a small hotel in Pimlico on March 16 was partially unraveled to-day when Gertrude Wood, the wife of Harvey Wood, an American speculator, identified the dead woman as her sister, Laura Cushing, and the wife of John P. Cushing, formerly of Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Cushing, Mrs. Wood said, had been separated from each other for four or five years. Mrs. Wood had not seen her sister for about a year. The last time they were together Mrs. Cushing told her sister that she had been crying all night and intended to kill herself.

Since Mrs. Cushing's separation from her husband, who was a millionaire, Mrs. Wood explained, Mrs. Cushing had had a considerable amount of trouble. After she left Mr. Cushing she was no longer able to spend the large sums of money which she previously had been accustomed to use.

Letters written by Mrs. Cushing showed that she had been in Paris, Vienna, and Monte Carlo since she left England last October.

The Coroner said he was unwilling to accept the evidence of the identity of the deceased as conclusive, and thought it wiser to secure the evidence of handwriting experts. The inquest thereupon was adjourned for three weeks.

Mrs. Cushing arrived on March 14 at the hotel where she died, coming direct from Paris. Five empty laudanum bottles were found in her room.

In one of the letters left by Mrs. Cushing she asked that her body be cremated, and that no autopsy be held, begged that all publicity be avoided, and ended with the following statement:

"No one can claim me, as I am without family, relatives, or friends, and the name under which I am registered is not my own. I am an American."

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 28.—Mrs. John P. Cushing was formerly well known in the Back Bay district, where she and her husband lived. At that time Mr. Cushing was at the head of the firm of J. P. Cushing & Co., manufacturers of electrical goods here. About four years ago he sold his business.

It is believed that Mr. Cushing is now living in New York, and it is understood here that he is very wealthy. His wife was Laura T. Woods of Brooklyn. Her parents were poor. The couple were married in 1894. Miss Woods was connected with the theatrical company of Donnelly & Girard. It was while playing with the company that she met Mr. Cushing.

Mr. and Mrs. Cushing lived happily for a time in a beautiful home in Beverly. Later on Mrs. Cushing's sister, Miss Gertrude Woods, went to live with them, and soon after that Mr. and Mrs. Cushing separated.

It is sai dthat there was some question regarding the legality of Mrs. Cushing's first marriage. Before she met Mr. Cushing Miss Woods was the wife of Nathaniel Ward of Brooklyn, N. Y. The Wards were separated by divorce proceedings, but after the Cushing marriage, it is said, the divorce was set aside as illegal.

Gertrude Woods married Harvey Wood, and it was she who identified her sister's body in London.

LABOR M. P.'S ANGRY.

Government Bill Does Not Give Entire Immunity to Union Funds.

LONDON, March 28.—The Trade Disputes bill, which is a direct outcome of the Taff Vale decision, which held that trades union funds are liable for the illegal acts of individual members of a union, was introduced in the House of Commons this afternoon by the Attorney General, Sir J. Lawson Walton.

The bill provides that no act of a trades union shall be held to be unlawful if such act is lawful when committed by an individual, sets forth in express terms the right of peaceful picketing, and defines the law of agency as applied to trades unions, making it impossible to claim redress from union funds for any act unless it is perfectly clear that the act was authorized by the governing body of the union.

In regard to the demands for the complete immunity of trades union funds from attack the Attorney General declared that he did not think it right to create a special privilege for the proletariat. This statement was greeted with shouts of "No!" from the benches occupied by the Labor members, and it speedily became evident that the Government's measure was not at all to their liking. They want complete immunity for union funds.

MANY THREATS TO KILL WITTE

It Is Again Said He Will Retire—He Sends a Message to Roosevelt.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 28.—Many threats have been made against the life of Premier Witte. Yesterday he received warning that unless he left the Government in a week he would be killed.

Rumors of impending Cabinet changes continue to circulate. The Russ declares that beyond doubt the state of Count Witte's health will force him to retire, and also predicts the resignations of Interior Minister Durnovo and Finance Minister Shipoff.

Ethelbert Watts, the American Consul General, and his family left St. Petersburg to-day for a three months' vacation in the United States. Before departing Mr. Watts was received in audience by Premier Witte, who told him to tell the American people that he believed Russia would eventually emerge from the present crisis regenerated and greater than ever.

Count Witte also charged Mr. Watts with a personal message to President Roosevelt.

RELIC FROM GRANT'S CABIN.

Roosevelt Presents Part of a Log to the War Department.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—President Roosevelt has presented to the War Department for its historical collection a section of a log from the cabin which Gen. U. S. Grant built for his family near St. Louis after his resignation from the regular army before the opening of the civil war. The section is from a log which was used in making a frame presented to Andrew Carnegie, acknowledging his gift of $1,000,000 to the library association.

The relic was sent to the President by C. F. Blanke of St. Louis, who purchased the cabin and presented it to the City of St. Louis for preservation in Forest Park. Grant built the cabin for his family in 1854 at a time when he was considered a failure by his relatives and friends.

KNOX SPEAKS ON RATES, DEMANDS COURT REVIEW

Declares the Hepburn Bill Is Unconstitutional at Present.

CONSCIENCE HIS ONLY GUIDE

Senator Declares His Motives Are Patriotic—Tillman to Get Information About Passes.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Senator Knox of Pennsylvania made his first set speech in the Senate to-day. He spoke on the railroad rate question, and dealt almost exclusively with the legal features of the problem.

He indicated several provisions of the House bill which he considers unconstitutional, and also expressed the opinion that Mr. Bailey's amendment depriving the United States Circuit Courts of the power to grant temporary injunctions would not stand the test of the courts. The speech was received with the most careful attention, and at its close the speaker was generally congratulated by his colleagues.

"I agree," said Mr. Knox, "with the Senators who have contended: First, that the power to fix railroad tolls for transportation is a legislative power, and that when the Legislature has laid down a rule for the establishment of rates the application of such rule to specific cases is a matter of administration, which may be delegated to a commission; and, second, that the power to investigate the reasonableness of a proposed rate, and to fix a rate for future observance, is a nonjudicial power, which can not be conferred upon courts exercising the judicial power of the United States."

He reviewed the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission under the present law, and said that a very simple law would suffice to correct evils not now reached. For this purpose, he said, the bill he had introduced was the best before the Senate. It was drawn in general terms on the idea, as exemplified by recent decisions of the Supreme Court, that general words would be more effective in reaching the evils aimed at than specific prohibition of evils in the forms in which they had appeared.

He went at length into his court review provision.

"I have no hesitation in saying," he declared, "that a bill drawn upon the theory that the orders of the commission shall be final and unassailable in the courts would be unconstitutional."

His court review section, he said, provides that the question to be submitted to the courts is solely whether the order of the commission violates the complainant's rights.

"It is the heritage of every English-speaking man, or association of men, to have his rights determined in a court," he continued. "It is for the court to decide what those rights are. An attempt to specify what right shall be determined by the court might be fatal to the constitutionality of the legislation."

He advocated a provision "against the suspension of the commission's orders by interlocutory decrees without requiring a cash deposit or a bond to secure the parties entitled to repayment the difference between the commission's rate and the railroad rate if the commission's rate were sustained."

He thought that the weight of an order of the commission, made upon the authority of an act of Congress, would prevent courts from granting injunctions suspending the order, unless abundant proof were submitted to justify such a course.

Warm praise was bestowed by Mr. Knox upon the men who prepared the Hepburn bill, but he said he was sincerely convinced that as it now stands "it utterly fails to accomplish their beneficent purposes, and, indeed, wholly defeats them."

He reiterated that he regards the bill unconstitutional, and gave these reasons:

"First—It does not provide any method for challenging the unlawfulness of the orders of the commission in a direct proceeding against the commission.

"Second—It prohibits parties affected and aggrieved by the commission's orders from defending proceedings to enforce them upon the ground of their unlawfulness.

"Third—It so heavily penalizes the disobedience of the commission's orders as to make any attempt to secure a judicial hearing in any form of proceeding impracticable."

Commenting on statements of Representative Hepburn and Senators Dolliver and Clapp that the right of review exists under the pending measure, Mr. Knox said that in several cases the commission is authorized to sue, but in no instance is there specific authority for a suit against the commission, and he asked:

"How can a commission administering a law of Congress be sued without the consent of Congress?"

In closing Mr. Knox said this great subject should be discussed and considered in a spirit of sincerity and courage; that it would be a reproach to all the lawyers of the Senate "if for lack of intellectual integrity, for want of courage, because of expediency—for any reason short of absolute conviction—we should urge this bill, or, sitting silent, should supinely permit it to become law, although believing it to be unconstitutional or illegal and unjust on any ground."

"Mr. President," he added, "the sense of this responsibility weighs upon me, and has guided me in all that I have thought or said or done in this matter. I trust I do not need, here or anywhere, to give assurances as to the spirit and motives actuating my public conduct. But it is fitting for me to say in closing my remarks, that my course on this important subject of debate before the people of the United States reflects the deliberate judgment of my mind on the legal questions and the deep convictions of my conscience as to my patriotic duty."

The resolution presented yesterday by Mr. Tillman calling upon the Inter-State Commerce Commission for information relative to free transportation, including tickets issued to newspapers in pay for advertising, was passed without opposition.

Senator Daniel to-day introduced an amendment to the Rate bill making railroads liable for damages to employes resulting from negligence or mismanagement or insufficient railroad equipment on the part of the railroad. It provides that contributory negligence on the part of the employe shall not be a bar to the recovery of damages when such negligence is slight compared with that of the employer. It provides that no contract for insurance, relief, or indemnity of any kind that may have been entered into between employe and employer shall be a bar to an action on the part of the former or his heirs to recover damages for personal injuries or death.

LINER ITALIA DAMAGED.

Arrives Badly Leaking at Palermo After Having Grounded.

PALERMO, March 28.—The Italian steamer Italia arrived here to-day after having been ashore.

She is leaking badly and must discharge her cargo and go into dock for repairs. Her passengers are being landed here.

The identity of the Italia is in doubt. There are two steamers of that name trading between Italian ports and New York. As yet the agents in this city of neither vessel have received news tending to show which of the two Italias is damaged. The agents of La Veloce Line, however, say they are certain it is not their Italia.

The agents of the Italian General Navigation Company, whose Italia left New York on March 7 for Messina, say she should now be in the vicinity of the Sicilian coast.

CANNON COMPELS HOUSE TO MAKE RADICAL RULE

Appropriation Bill Not to be Delayed by Points of Order.

SOLUTION OF A BAD TANGLE

Big Appropriation Bill Had Been Riddled by Points of Order That Were Upheld.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—By adopting the most radical proposition that has ever emanated from the Committee on Rules the House this morning voted itself temporarily out of the tangle into which it had got itself over the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill, because of points of order made and upheld against many items.

The rule reported by the committee provided that no point of order should lie against any item in the Appropriation bill which had not yet been reached, except that section dealing with superannuated clerks, and that all those items and paragraphs already ruled out could be reinserted at the will of the House. Also it provided that any amendment offered by the Committee on Appropriations should be in order, but amendments offered by other members of the House should be liable to the point of order as under the regular rules of the House.

The object of this action was not to gain some great party advantage, but simply to help the Committee on Appropriations out of the hole it had dug for itself in the preparation of the bill.

To effect this relief the House had to adopt the special rule in flat violation of its standing rule, and in direct disregard of the statutes. But the proposition came from the Committee on Rules, the subservient organ of the Speaker's will. The party whip was loudly snapped, and the obedient majority jammed the rule through by a vote of 169 to 109. Twenty Republicans voted with the Democrats and six Democrats, all from Louisiana, went over to the Republicans. They were all interested in the New Orleans Mint appropriation, against which a point of order might lie.

"The points of order on which so many items have been stricken out of this bill were well taken," said Representative Dalzell in reporting the rule. "The difficulty which confronts the House arises out of the fact that the law fixing the number and salaries of employes of the various departments is old, and since it was passed the Government service has changed and its necessities have increased. These changes ought, perhaps, to have been made by general law.

NO STATEHOOD AGREEMENT

House and Senate Conferrees Are Close Together on Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The conferrees on the Statehood bill met again to-day and disposed of some minor amendments relating to school lands in Oklahoma in lieu of mineral lands, and also fixing more definitely the boundaries of the section of the new State where prohibition is to be enforced as a condition of Statehood.

The conferrees reached no conclusion on the main question as to the admission of the two States. The House conferrees are willing to accept the Foraker amendment providing for a separate vote in Arizona and New Mexico at the next general election on the question whether the two Territories shall come into the Union as one State.

This amendment will not be accepted by the Senate.

To Rearrange New York Anchorage.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Secretary Metcalf has decided to rearrange the anchorage ground of New York Harbor and vicinity to meet the requirements of the increased commerce of the port. He has appointed a committee of five, headed by Lawrence O. Murray, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor, to investigate and report. Hearings will be held in New York, the date to be announced later.

FAST FOREIGN AUTOS FOR VANDERBILT RACE

John R. Drexel and Foxhall Keene May Enter Mercedes Cars.

CUP COMMISSION CHANGES

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Will Attend First Meeting of A. A. A. Racing Board Next Week.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will not be the only American who will own and enter one of the new Mercedes racing cars in the Vanderbilt Cup race this year. John R. Drexel of Philadelphia has recently placed an order with the German factory for a car similar to the one ordered by Vanderbilt during the latter's visit abroad, and it was learned yesterday that Foxhall P. Keene and Robert Graves are negotiating for similar cars. A wealthy automobilist of St. Louis may be another purchaser. There seems no doubt, therefore, that five of the best Mercedes cars will be seen in the big road race. All will be of the six-cylinder type, and their horse power will be between 150 and 200. Very little definite information is yet known concerning the mechanical details of these powerful racers, and none of the cars ordered by Americans will be delivered until a short time before the race in October. They will be thoroughly tried out abroad, and will need very little tuning up to get in shape for the contest over the Long Island course.

Mr. Vanderbilt is due in this city next Tuesday, and he will probably be able to furnish some interesting information regarding the new Mercedes racers as well as the possibility of other foreign cars being sent over for the race. The Darracq cars are virtually assured entries. The Darracq racer this year, it is learned, will be equipped with a differential, the absence of which on the winning car last year caused some of the criticisms that were made against the activity of the Racing Board. With the differential there will be no necessity to change the racing rules in this respect, although it is possible that some alterations may be made.

It is quite possible that Hemery will drive a Darracq in the coming race. He is now preparing for the Grand Prix, the big automobile contest to be held in France in June, and which takes the place of the Gordon Bennett Cup race. Other new cars that have been built for this event are three De Dietrichs, three Brasiers, two or three Panhard, Hotchkiss, and Clement-Bayard cars. Most of these cars are now finished, and are being tried out. Some of the new six-cylinder Mercedes cars will be ready for the Grand Prix, as the German factory expects to turn out ten or a dozen of these powerful racing machines in order to supply the demand for them abroad.

Chairman Jefferson De Mont Thompson of the American Automobile Association Racing Board said yesterday that he had decided not to call a meeting of the board until next week, when W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will be able to attend. The meeting will probably be held in connection with the regular Directors' meeting of the American Automobile Association, which is set for Thursday at the Automobile Club of America. President John Farson and Secretary S. S. Gorham will be in the city then. Mr. Farson is especially anxious to attend the first meeting. Definite announcement will be made at that time of the closing of entries, which will be between May 15 and 30.

Mr. Vanderbilt has some important statements to make to the Racing Board on certain changes that are to be made in the deed of gift, and he is expected to announce his plan of giving foreign clubs representation on the cup commission. While in Paris Mr. Vanderbilt saw a number of leading automobilists in the French Club and discussed the probable changes with them. The Technical Committee this year will insist upon a stricter compliance of the racing rules, thereby obviating every possibility of complaint at the close of the contest.

DOG BITES FIVE PERSONS.

A Brooklyn Policeman Then Killed It with His Club.

A small black dog bit five persons yesterday afternoon in the neighborhood of Myrtle Avenue and Hudson Street, Brooklyn, before he was killed by a policeman. The injured were attended at the Brooklyn Hospital and then sent home.

A man saw Mary Farrell of 222 Johnson Street struggling with the animal first and ran to her assistance. As he approached the dog ran off, snapping at every one it came near. It was found that Mrs. Farrell saw the animal snapping at some children and tried to frighten it away. It sprang upon her, biting her on the arm.

A panic seized the crowd in the streets, as the cry "mad dog!" was raised. Men, women, and children fell over each other in an effort to get into doorways as the animal ran down the street.

Finally Policeman Battle of the Adams Street Station saw the commotion and cornering the dog, killed it with his club. Before this had happened, four children had been bitten.

OUR BANKNOTE CURRENCY.

National System Ridiculed by Charles A. Conant.

Charles A. Conant, Treasurer of the Morton Trust Company, delivered an address before the students of the New York University School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, last night, in which he bitterly attacked the National banknote currency and ridiculed the assertion of its upholders that the present system is at least safe, if not elastic.

The speaker declared that the banknote circulation, as it exists to-day, is a "rigid sodden mass," with no relation to metallic reserves or to business conditions.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Deliveries Being Made at Record Rate—Large Orders for Rails.

The prevailing conditions in iron and steel are summarized as follows in The Iron Age:

"Deliveries of crude and finished iron and steel are proceeding at a record rate, and in some of the heavy lines contracting for the future is going on at an extraordinary pace. This is notably so in steel rails. With what the mills have on their books, and with what is now under negotiation, the majority of the plants are provided with work until near the end of the year.

"The most interesting transaction in the rail trade during the past week has been the sale by the United States Steel Products Export Company of 50,000 tons for delivery this year to the Grand Trunk Pacific Railroad. It is understood that this order came to an American mill simply because the Canadian rail mills were utterly unable to make the rails.

"Steel prices have hardened all along the line. In Pittsburg the Carnegie Steel Company has announced an advance of $2 per ton, which makes the official price for open-hearth and Bessemer billets $27 per ton and for tin plate bars $28 per ton, random lengths.

"The plate trade is very quiet so far as new orders are concerned. Deliveries, however, continue heavy."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 28.—The Iron Trade Review to-morrow will say:

"The exceedingly heavy selling of rails was decidedly the feature of the market the last week. Contracts were closed for about 150,000 tons with considerably larger tonnage still to be placed if mills can guarantee delivery. These orders went almost entirely to Eastern mills and are for this year's delivery. The Santa Fé contracted for 40,000 tons from the Pennsylvania Steel Company and 10,000 tons from the Cambria Steel Company. The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern ordered 30,000 and 20,000 tons respectively from the Lackawanna Steel Company, and the Cambria Steel Company booked 10,000 tons each for the Georgia Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio. Traction roads are buying heavily.

"The coke market has felt the coal strike influence most strongly, and prices have stiffened to from $2.40 to $2.60 for furnace coke and $3.10 to $3.15 for foundry coke at ovens.

"While the volume of current business in high iron continues comparatively light, increasing sales and inquiries are reported, especially in the West, and furnace men predict that the long-expected buying movement is soon to start. In finished materials a somewhat lighter current business is noted, owing, it is believed, to the known inability of mills to make prompt deliveries. Specifications of structural materials continue at an enormous rate."

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal in the London market yesterday closed at £84 5s. for spot, which was the high price reached at Tuesday's close, and at £81 17s. 6d. for futures, an advance of 10s. over Tuesday's last quotation.

The closing prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of the previous day:

UNITED RAILWAYS DIVIDEND.

Declared Yesterday on San Francisco Investment Company Preferred Stock.

The Directors of the United Railways Investment Company of San Francisco declared yesterday a dividend of 4¾ per cent. on the company's preferred stock, payable May 1. This dividend represents the arrears of dividends which accumulated on the stock up to Sept. 30, 1905. The company's preferred stock is entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. a year. The accumulation of arrears amounting to 4¾ per cent. was due to the fact that the company had been paying only 4 per cent. on its preferred stock.

In reference to the funds available for dividends the following official statement was made:

> The dividend on the United Railroads of San Francisco preferred stock, owned by the Investment Company, accruing for the half year ending March 31, 1906, together with surplus funds now in the hands of the company, will not alone enable the Investment Company to pay the regular semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. on the preferred stock for the six months from the 30th day of September, 1905, to March 31, 1906, but will leave a considerable surplus undistributed, the application of which will be considered by the Directors at a later date.

This statement indicates that the accumulated earnings of the company were sufficient to pay an initial dividend on the company's common stock. The postponement of a dividend on the common was due to the fact that the regular semi-annual dividend on the preferred stock covering the six months ended March 31 will not be payable, according to the by-laws of the company, until July 1.

It was considered by the Directors that a strict interpretation of the company's charter required, before any dividend on the common stock be paid, that not only the arrears of dividends on the preferred stock but also the dividend for the current half year should be paid. Rather than change the period for the payment of the regular semi-annual dividend on the preferred, which would have necessitated an amendment of the company's by-laws, the Directors decided to postpone action on the common stock dividend until a later date.

WESTCHESTER & BOSTON R. R.

Board of Directors Practically Unchanged by Yesterday's Election.

The stockholders of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company at their annual meeting yesterday re-elected practically all the old Directors. The road, which waged a spectacular fight for its franchise from the City Hall to Albany and back again, has made considerable progress in construction work in the Annexed District and Mount Vernon. Saturday bids were received on the power plant equipment.

Its rival for franchise rights, the New York & Port Chester, has remained in the background since the hearing on that road's franchise application at the City Hall last January. Just before that the New York Railroad & Development Company, organized by the Port Chester interests to construct the road, was taken under control by the New York, Westchester & Boston. The Directors elected at yesterday's meeting were: L. Bull, Marsden J. Perry, Frederick W. Whitridge, Robert E. Robinson, Frederic Bull, R. C. Colman, Andrew Freedman, Charles Pryer, Robert C. Pruyn, William Barclay Parsons, Charles E. Lewis, J. R. McAllister, Evans R. Dick, W. H. Buckley, and Oakleigh Thorne.

LADIES who appreciate the difference between what is just good and that which is distinctive and choice, will find pleasure in looking over our imported shirt waists.

Perhaps first in the season's popularity are the effects in Baby Irish Lace. Many, however, will prefer the rich designs in Embroidered Net.

The dainty creations in Lingerie and Tailored Linen are, of course, always in order.

In our Radium China Silk waists we have a decided novelty that is going to prove very popular this Spring.

Our policy is to have a large variety of designs and only one or two samples of each. This means a wide range of choice and a chance for distinctive individuality in the waist you select.

VERDICT AGAINST N. Y. LIFE.

$7,000 Awarded to Richard Wightman, Non-Agency Man, by Westchester Jury.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 28.—A Westchester County jury in the Supreme Court to-day awarded a verdict for $7,000 in favor of Richard Wightman against the New York Life Insurance Company for commissions which he alleges are due for breaking a contract.

Mr. Wightman sued for $100,000 damages through Judge Isaac N. Mills of Mount Vernon. He set forth in his complaint that he had devised a plan to get a large amount of insurance business by means of magazine advertisements, and entered into a contract with the company for one year. The corporation agreed to pay a certain commission to him for securing the renewal of policies and for obtaining new policies. He was also to be allowed expenses not to exceed $1,000 a month in connection with his work.

He recites that he was so successful that other agents complained and he was discharged.

Mr. Wightman said after the verdict of the jury that it sustained his non-agency plan. He considers it a victory in that particular, but is dissatisfied with the amount of the verdict.

YELLOW DOG IN CHICAGO.

Telephone Company Refuses to Tell How $269,884 Was Expended.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 28.—The trail of the "Yellow Dog" has been found in the affairs of the Chicago Telephone Company by the city authorities who have been investigating the books of that concern.

Deputy Controller Gosselin told the Council Committee on Telephones this evening that the city auditors found thirty-five items in the disbursements for 1905 amounting to $269,884, the vouchers for which the company refused to produce. The items were sums ranging from $1,000 to $20,000 each, which were paid to various officials of the company and charged to a fund which was called "operating and maintenance."

When the Auditors asked for an explanation of these disbursements they were met with a statement from the officials that they did not consider it the city's business to inquire into the "propriety of expenditures."

John Barton Payne, special counsel for the company, frankly admitted that the company would rather have the items disallowed than produce the vouchers.

SUNDAY CONCERT CASES FAIL.

Dancing Was Moving Picture, Said Lawyer—No Evidence, Said Court.

Magistrate Walsh dismissed yesterday cases against Proctor's Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street Theatres and the Grand Opera House for violation of the Sunday law against public entertainments on the ground of insufficient evidence.

Policeman Behan testified that in the Proctor Fifth Avenue Theatre he had seen on a Sabbath night what he thought was dancing.

"Was it not skipping about the floor?" counsel for the defense asked him.

"Sure," replied Behan. "It might be called a jig. And there was some acrobatics," he added on second thought.

"Why, that was a moving picture you saw," declared the lawyer.

As none of the witnesses had seen the managers of the houses present at the performances, and as they could not therefore swear that the entertainments had been given with their knowledge and consent, Magistrate Walsh had no evidence to show that the managers were culpable.

FORDHAM HEIGHTS BURGLARS.

They Robbed Five Houses There on Tuesday Morning.

With the aid of a ladder which they carried from house to house, thieves entered five of the finest residences in Fordham Heights early Tuesday morning and robbed them of about a thousand dollars worth of silverware and clothing.

The heaviest loser was Maurice J. McCarthy, Secretary of the Fordham Club, who lives at 2,661 Creston Avenue. Other houses entered were those of J. C. Clark of Creston Avenue and Kingsbridge Road, J. C. Stratt in Morris Avenue, Charles E. Stonebridge in Morris Avenue near 194th Street, and John Kelly in Kirkside Avenue, near Kingsbridge Road. Mr. McCarthy places his loss at about $300.

BALLOON FLIGHTS COMING.

French Count Will Make First Ascension on Saturday at West Point.

Count Henry de la Vaulx, the French balloonist, who arrived here last week, will make his first ascension in America at West Point on Saturday. It will be conducted by the Aero Club of America, and the Count will go to West Point to-morrow with two of his balloons. After inspecting the facilities for securing gas, the Count will decide whether he will use the smallest of the three balloons which he brought over, or the medium one. The smallest holds about 20,000 cubic feet of gas and the medium one 35,000 cubic feet. It will be impossible to use the large one, holding 55,000 cubic feet, except at Pittsfield. In order to make an ascension there a success with the big centaure additional pipes are being fitted to the gas works so as to expedite the work of inflating the big balloon.

Count de la Vaulx is anxious to make as many ascensions as possible here, but he finds himself seriously handicapped by lack of satisfactory facilities. He expects to go to Pittsfield next week and an ascension may be arranged there later in the week.

Cortlandt Field Bishop announced at the Aero Club headquarters last night that the ascension on Saturday will take place as soon as possible after the arrival of the 11:15 A. M. train from New York on the New York Central Railroad. It is due at Garrisons at 12:45. A large delegation of Aero Club members will go up at that time. If the weather is unpropitious the ascension may be postponed until Sunday or Monday.

The Aero Club will give a reception to Count de la Vaulx next Tuesday night in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street.

Hotel Spalding Judgment.

A deficiency judgment for $56,779 was docketed yesterday against Edward J. Welch, as executor of the estate of Robert H. Spalding, a builder, now dead, and against Myer Hellman in favor of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This act follows the foreclosure sale on Sept. 6 last of the Hotel Spalding property, at 127 West Forty-third Street. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company bought it in for $660,000.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. To get its beneficial effects—buy the genuine—manufactured by the

SCRATCHES SPOIL RACES AT THE BENNING TRACK

Fields Small, but One or Two Events Are Interesting.

MILLER ON THREE WINNERS

Daly's Strongly Tipped Warning Beaten by Bettle Bouncer—Pater Finishes First, Eased Up.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.—Pleasant weather, a fair card, and the promise of good sport attracted a good-sized crowd to-day to the races of the Washington Jockey Club at Benning. A stiff breeze for twenty-four hours had so far dried out the track that it was dusty, although it was not fast.

The races proved to be of mediocre quality. Some of the best horses entered were scratched, the owners preferring to take no chances thus early in the season. The fields were small, consequently, but the running, particularly in the fifth and sixth races, was interesting. Miller rode three winners, and was second once.

With D'Arkle scratched in the first, the race was practically reduced to a two-horse affair, in which there was nothing but Pater. He closed at 1 to 5, and bore out the confidence of his backers by winning as he pleased, eased up under the wire. Loricate had no difficulty in getting the place from Baby Willie.

Computer, an odds-on favorite for the second race, justified the judgment of the talent by winning handily. Bath Maria, with Miller up, nipped the place from Campaigner in the last hundred yards. The third race was taken by the odds-on favorite Workman easily, the time being slow. Henry Waring, touted as a good thing, could do no better than second, beating Saladin for the place by a length.

The heavily played Kassil, in the steeplechase, fell at the first jump, and the race went with comparative ease to Garter Knot, at all times a strong second choice. Happy Hour fell, but even before the accident was not a factor.

The race of the day was the fifth, with eleven starters. It was a maiden event for three-year-olds, with W. C. Daly's Warning strongly tipped to win. Bettle Bouncer took command at once, beating the barrier by two lengths, and she never was headed. Warning made a strong bid in the stretch, but it was of no avail, as the mare easily stalled off any danger. Warning beat Euripides for the place in a hard drive.

Dekaber won the last race handily. Miller made an excellent ride, saving his horse until the stretch was reached, and then coming away from his field with lengths to spare. Malabar, backed from 20 to 6, took the place from Phoebus in a drive. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; five and a half furlongs, Columbia course. Pater, 104 pounds, (Miller,) 1 to 5 and out, won; Loricate, 120, (Helgesen,) 6 to 1 and 1 to 4, second; Baby Willie, 99, (Christian,) 50 to 1 and 4 to 1, third. Time—1:09 4-5. My Grace also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For maidens two years old; four and a half furlongs, old course. Computer, 110, (T. Burns,) 3 to 5 and out, won; Bath Maria, 107 pounds, (Miller,) 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, second; Campaigner, 110, (McDaniels,) 10 to 1 and 4 to 1, third. Time—0:58. Mount O'Donnell Brittainby, Bush Hill, Moccasin, Curriculum, and Bettle Landon also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Workman, 114 pounds, (Shaw,) 1 to 3 and out, won; Henry Waring, 87, (Schaller,) 4 to 1 and 3 to 5, second; Saladin III., (Turnburke,) 8 to 1 and 7 to 5, third. Time—1:32 4-5. Proceeds also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Open selling steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward; about two miles. Garter Knot, 144 pounds, (Robinson,) 3 to 1 and even, won; Life Buoy, 132, (Kelleher,) 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Douro, 153, (Davidson,) 3 to 1 and 7 to 5, third. Time—4:22. Black Death and Harry Patton also ran. Happy Four and Kassil fell.

FIFTH RACE.—For maiden three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Bettle Bouncer, 89 pounds, (Miller,) 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, won; Warning, 94, (C. Morris,) 4 to 5 and out, second; Euripides, 94, (McDaniels,) 5 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time—1:17 1-5. Twister, Ligero, Tarlac, Nonsense, Nutwood, George Atwell, Indra, and Qui Vive also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and forty yards, old course. Dekaber, 105 pounds, (Miller,) 6 to 5 and 2 to 5, won; Malabar, 107, (Romanelli,) 6 to 1 and 7 to 5, second; Phoebus, 106, (J. Johnson,) 6 to 1 and 7 to 5, third. Time—1:49 3-5. Sais also ran.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Philip J. Dwyer, one of the subscribers to the Astoria, the private sweepstakes for fillies two years old, which has been a feature of the Gravesend Spring meeting for several years, has leased from Newton Bennington, through Trainer Fred Burlew, two fillies which are to be named for Mr. Dwyer specially for this stake. He will have the running qualities only, and the lease was made with the single purpose of securing a starter for the Astoria, as Mr. Dwyer, with a stable of about ten horses in training, had none eligible for the Astoria.

The Dwyer Astoria entries are by Yankee and Banastar, respectively, and names still are to be claimed for them on The Jockey Club's date for naming, April 1.

In the Chevy Chase Steeplechase at Benning to-day Gamecock, the probable favorite, will be ridden by Lee Evans of Virginia. Dunseverrick will have Dion Kerr in the saddle, and Oleroso will be handled by Courtland Smith, his owner. On Monday Olerose fell with Mr. Smith, and the courageous young rider had his elbow badly wrenched. His friends have been trying to prevail upon him not to take the mount, but he insists that he will be able to handle the horse. Red, White and Blue, probably the only other starter in the race, will be ridden by Fred Okie, who is a partner with Sydney Paget in the Piedmont Stable. The Chevy Chase is attracting more attention in the hunting set this Spring than ever before, although Washington proper has no candidate in the entry list.

Union Settlement Team Defaulted.

Clark House basket ball team won from the Union Settlement in the junior Amateur Athletic Union championship tournament last night by default. The Union Settlement combination was unable to get together a full team. The two teams played an exhibition game, Union Settlement being strengthened by two outside players. The game was won by Clark House by the score of 47 to 4.

15 BOATS IN N. Y. A. C. RACE.

Notable List of Entrants for Long Distance Contest to Block Island.

There will be at least fifteen starters in the New York Athletic Club's race to Block Island. Sixteen boats are already enlisted to enter in the 101-mile contest if untoward incident does not prevent. One striking feature of the list is that it includes every boat that has ever competed for the trophy. In fact, the race is unique in that respect—that save one boat which was destroyed every competitor has returned each year to contest.

Three of the ocean racers entered in the New Rochelle race around Long Island to Cape May and return and in the Brooklyn Yacht Club race to Bermuda are named. These are Frank Maier's Tamerlane, W. S. Sullivan's Mopsa, and G. F. Robinson's Gauntlet. Another notable is the Crowninshield-designed Bab, built by Lawley, which has been bought by C. S. King from H. S. Alford of Boston, which will be brought around Cape Cod in May by her new owner and Harry A. Jackson, Jr. Then there will be two New York thirty-footers, J. W. Alker's Alera and Clifford Mallory's Banzai, besides Harry A. Jackson, Jr.'s, Alyce, R. W. Rathborne's Saladin, A. E. Bieling's Hanley, G. P. Granbery's Firefly, W. A. Lieb's Uncas, E. C. Ray's Acushla, C. E. Marsland's Io, J. A. Mahlstedt's Okee, John Le Boutillier's Heron, and F. M. Weeks's Little Peter.

Four prizes have already been offered. H. Mason Raborg has given a $100 cup for the first prize and W. A. Marshall another for the second boat. The New York Athletic Club will give a third and the Athletic Committee of the club a fourth.

The race will be started on June 23 from Huckleberry Island, and will finish at Block Island. The judges' boat at the finish will be the new Alma II., which O. S. Pinckney of the Atlantic Yacht Club's Regatta Committee is having built at Baylis's yard at Port Jefferson, from designs by Theodore D. Wells. She will be a seventy-five-foot power boat, equipped with two fifteen-horse power kerosene engines.

The race is limited to boats of thirty-one-foot water line and under, with an allowance 16 minutes 40 seconds per foot under the extreme limit.

TRAINING AT GRAVESEND.

Roseben Being Prepared for Carter Handicap—Whimsical In Shape.

Though it was an off day at the training stables yesterday several horses did decidedly clever work at Gravesend. Frank Weir sent Roseben and Jacquin along very smartly for a three-furlong breeze in 0:39½. Roseben is being pointed for the Carter, the opening stake of the Aqueduct meeting, and the character of his recent work should see him at the post a wonderfully good horse. He has all the marvelous speed of last season, and at this time he gives every promise of again being a phenomenal sprinter. Jacquin looks and works well. Stroller was also shown by Weir and his task was a half in 0:59, accomplished very handily.

Tim Gaynor, who is preparing the good filly Whimsical for the Carter, which is to be her first start of the season, has reason to be well pleased with the progress he is making. Yesterday she went along, hard held, for a very smart half mile in 0:55. She has wintered well and will come to the races a good three-year-old unless all signs fail. Mortie Boy and Fickle Dame, a pair of two-year-olds, were sent along for three furlongs in 0:43½.

Charles Littlefield brought out a set of seventeen that are intended for an early start, but nothing beyond light galloping exercise was asked. A. J. Joyner had an even dozen two-year-olds under saddle and they were also on the slow side. They are all meant for Aqueduct, and there are several in the lot that will be worth remembering when the racing commences about the New York tracks.

Priority and the two-year-old Anna Loretta Daly, from the stable of W. C. Daly, were on the Gravesend track, and while Priority stepped a half in 0:57 the two-year-old was sent along for a nice three furlongs in 0:42½.

At Sheepshead Bay there was nothing doing in the training line and there will not be until the main track is available. That will be at no very distant date.

SPEEDWAY PARADE PLANS.

Road Drivers Arranging Big Turnout for Annual Event.

The weekly meeting of the Road Drivers' Association was held last night at the Hotel Cadillac, when plans for the Speedway parade and horse show were adopted. The grandstand will be tastefully decorated with flags and bunting. Nearly fifty additional entries for the parade were announced, and the classes in the horse show will probably be increased, owing to the number of inquiries from prospective exhibitors. Application blanks for both the parade and horse show will be sent out the latter part of this week.

The question of permanent headquarters for the club was decided unanimously in favor of the Hotel Cadillac.

It was announced by Treasurer Boynton that more than 125 subscriptions had been received for the beefsteak dinner, which will be held at Shanley's, Forty-second Street and Broadway, to-night.

The committee on brushes will wait on the Park Commissioner this week to secure the privilege of placing telephone booths at the start, quarter post, and finish of the Speedway course. The question of building a new grandstand will be decided at the next meeting.

NO RECORDS FOR DUFFEY.

Judge Fitzgerald Refuses an Injunction to Restore Expunged Marks.

Judge Fitzgerald of the United States Supreme Court yesterday denied to Arthur F. Duffey an injunction against the Amateur Athletic Union and James E. Sullivan, its Secretary, to prevent the expunging of Duffey's performances from the official lists of amateur records and to compel their restoration.

Judge Fitzgerald sustained the position taken by Bartow S. Weeks, representing the Amateur Athletic Union, that the organization was voluntary and not amenable to injunction where property rights were not threatened; that no injunction could be granted to restrain an action already taken, and that Duffey's own statements proved that he received compensation for his athletic ability since 1899, in direct violation of the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union, and that therefore his performances subsequent to that date were not entitled to any recognition by the Amateur Athletic Union.

SUTTON HOME FROM PARIS.

Billiard Player Confident of Beating Champion Hoppe Next Month.

George B. Sutton, the billiard player, who has made Paris his home for the last four years, was among the passengers on the White Star Line steamer Teutonic, which docked last night about 10 o'clock. Sutton came over to take part in the billiard tournament at Madison Square Garden next month, in which he will meet Willie Hoppe, the young world's champion. He was very much interested in the details of the game in which Hoppe defeated Slosson on Tuesday night.

"I defeated Slosson by a much higher average than Hoppe did," he said, "and while I realize that Hoppe is a great billiardist, I think I will be able to beat him."

Sutton says that owing to an adverse decision by the French courts prohibiting betting in connection with billiards, the game is dead in Paris. He added that he expected to remain in this country indefinitely.

Miss Waterhouse Best Pistol Shot.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 28.—The results of the annual United States Revolver Association championship pistol shoot, held during the past week, was announced to-day. Miss M. M. Waterhouse of Centreville, R. I., the title holder, was the winner, with a score of 313; Miss Florence McNeely of Philadelphia took the second, with 198; A. E. Kirkpatrick of Toronto was third, with 175, and Mrs. Leonard Tufts of Boston, who won second last year, was fourth, with 151. Dr. F. T. Hyde of Boston made 106 and Walter Perry of Ansonia, Conn., 57.

Navy May Not Row at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 28.—The Naval Academy authorities are considering whether or not one or more crews will be allowed to enter the regatta at Philadelphia on May 26, to which an invitation has been extended. There is a strong movement here in favor of the entries. If it is decided not to go to Philadelphia the eight will row against the Ariel crew of Baltimore on June 2, making five races in all for the season.

Cleveland Will Lose Crack Pitcher.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, March 28.—Dr. Reese, a noted bone expert, declared to-night that Earl Moore, the crack pitcher of the Cleveland baseball team, would be of no use to the club this year. The muscles of the pitcher's left foot, which was injured in New York last Fall by a batted ball, have been torn loose, allowing the instep bone to drop down and making him flat footed. This is a serious blow to the Cleveland club, as Moore has been considered the mainstay of the team early in the season.

HIGH CLASS RACQUETS BY NEW YORK PLAYERS

Waterbury and Sands Beat Brooke and Cassatt.

BOSTON TEAM PLAYED WELL

Fearing and Scott Won from Mackay and Clark After Latter Had Defeated Hare and Willing.

The final round for the doubles racquets championship of the United States will be played this afternoon between George R. Fearing and Hugh D. Scott of Boston, the present champions, and Lawrence Waterbury and Charles E. Sands of New York. These teams won the right to compete for premier honors by winning the semi-final round, which was played yesterday on the court of the New York Racquet and Tennis Club.

The contests yesterday developed racquets of a high order. Three matches were played. In the most important, Waterbury and Sands defeated George H. Brooke and Robert K. Cassatt of Philadelphia four games out of six, by 15—8, 15—6, 7—15, 15—3, 11—15, and 15—13. The match was brilliant, the New York pair winning after the hardest kind of playing. Clarence H. Mackay and George C. Clark, Jr., of New York scored a hollow victory over T. Truxton Hare and Spencer Willing of Philadelphia in straight games, 15—9, 15—2, 15—1, 15—8. Mackay and Clark met with defeat in the final match of the day, Fearing and Scott winning a hard five-game contest by 15—9, 15—5, 15—10, 12—15, 18—16.

It was conceded that the winner of the Waterbury and Sands-Brooke and Cassatt contest would meet Fearing and Scott for the championship, and as a result the principal interest centred in that struggle. Waterbury and Sands captured the first two games in comparatively easy fashion. Brooke and Cassatt then braced up, and, with the aid of twelve aces in the second hand, won the third game. Waterbury and Sands scored an easy victory in the fourth game, but the Philadelphians annexed the fifth game, which was a long-drawn-out affair. The sixth game was fiercely contested. The New York players led by 13 aces to 4 at the end of the third hand. The Quakers replied with 7 aces in the fourth, and kept their opponents to a single tally in their half of the inning. The finish was spectacular, Brooke and Cassatt failing just when victory seemed almost sure for them. The score:

FIRST GAME.

Brooke and Cassatt	1	2	0	1	4	0	—8
Waterbury and Sands	4	4	0	1	1	5	—15

SECOND GAME.

Waterbury and Sands	2	2	11	—15
Brooke and Cassatt	5	1	..	— 6

THIRD GAME.

Waterbury and Sands	2	3	2	— 7
Brooke and Cassatt	1	12	2	—15

FOURTH GAME.

Brooke and Cassatt	1	1	1	0	— 3
Waterbury and Sands	7	3	2	3	—15

FIFTH GAME.

Waterbury and Sands	0	0	2	2	3	4	—11
Brooke and Cassatt	4	5	2	0	3	1	—15

SIXTH GAME.

Brooke and Cassatt	0	1	3	7	2	—13
Waterbury and Sands	2	1	10	1	1	—15

Referee—Hugh D. Scott, Boston Athletic Association. Marker—David Gardiner.

Hare and Willing of Philadelphia proved to be easy victims for Mackay and Clark of New York. The Philadelphia team started the match in a whirlwind manner, and ran 7 aces on their opponents in the initial hand. Mackay woke up in the second hand, and, with 6 aces on service and 1 on a miss, together with 3 aces by his partner, took the lead and retained it throughout the contest. The score:

FIRST GAME.

Mackay and Clark	0	10	5	—15
Hare and Willing	7	2	..	— 9

SECOND GAME.

Mackay and Clark	5	9	1	—15
Hare and Willing	1	1	..	— 2

THIRD GAME.

Mackay and Clark	0	7	8	—15
Hare and Willing	0	1	..	— 1

FOURTH GAME.

Mackay and Clark	0	6	9	—15
Hare and Willing	1	2	..	— 3

Referee—Morton S. Paton, New York Racquet and Tennis Club. Marker—George Standing.

In view of the showing made by Fearing and Scott on Tuesday a victory by them over Mackay and Clark in the second match of the semi-final round was anticipated. The Boston team played superb racquets, and captured the first three games with ease. After securing a good lead in the fourth game they let up, and before they could recover themselves, they were passed by Mackay and Clark, who won the game. The fifth and what proved to be the final game was the longest of the tournament. The Boston team again jumped out in front and at the end of the third hand led by by 8 to 5. Mackay and Scott gradually cut down the lead until it was 13—all, when five aces were set. Mackay and Clark scored three, and then missed. Fearing, by a brilliant rally, ran out the points, winning by the score of 18 to 16. The score:

FIRST GAME.

Mackay and Clark	0	4	1	4	— 9
Fearing and Scott	4	1	3	7	—15

SECOND GAME.

Fearing and Scott	0	2	1	0	4	4	4	—15
Mackay and Clark	0	2	0	1	0	2	..	— 5

THIRD GAME.

Fearing and Scott	2	2	3	7	1	—15
Mackay and Clark	1	0	5	4	..	—10

FOURTH GAME.

Fearing and Scott	5	2	2	2	0	—12
Mackay and Clark	2	3	4	2	4	—15

FIFTH GAME.

Mackay and Clark	3	0	2	3	2	4	2	—16
Fearing and Scott	4	3	1	4	1	1	4	—18

Looks Bad for Athletics at Wisconsin.

CHICAGO, March 28.—According to a dispatch received here the Athletic Committee of the Faculty of the University of Wisconsin last night voted to recommend the suspension of football for one year and to allow baseball, track, and crew athletics to continue if they are self-sustaining.

Members of the track team declare that it will practically be impossible for the team to go ahead with its training and compete in the intercollegiate meet under the circumstances. The members of the crew which expected to participate in the regatta at Poughkeepsie also talk in the same way. Nearly all of the athletic departments at Wisconsin depend for financial support upon football.

YACHT RACES ON THE SOUND.

Schedule Includes Thirty-eight Regular Regattas—First Race May 26.

The yacht-racing schedule has been prepared for presentation to the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound at its meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor on Friday evening. It includes thirty-eight regattas, exclusive of the New York Yacht Club dates, opening with the usual Spring races at New Rochelle, and closing with the American Yacht Club regatta on Sept. 22. Besides these, there will be many other special events arranged, including three cruising races. On Aug. 18 the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club will hold a race to Stratford Shoal and return for cruising boats. On June 23 the New York Athletic Club will hold its race to Block Island, and on Aug. 18 the Harlem Yacht Club will hold a long-distance cruising race, the course of which has not yet been fixed. Manhasset Bay will also hold a special cruising race to Block Island for the New York thirty-footers, while New Rochelle will have two cruising races.

The opening of the season has been fixed for May 26. On Decoration Day three regattas are scheduled, namely, at Bridgeport for the eastern boats, at the Harlem Yacht Club for boats at the western end of the Sound, with special races at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. Five clubs are scheduled for June regattas, nine for July, six for August, and eight for September. Some of these dates are of course conflicting, but the conflict is in each case arranged with a club at the eastern and another at the western end of the Sound, so that they will attract the boats from their own localities without affecting each other. The dates assigned by the committee, subject to the approval of the racing association, follow:

May 26, New Rochelle Yacht Club; 30, Indian Harbor Yacht Club, Bridgeport Yacht Club, and Harlem Yacht Club.

June 2, Knickerbocker Yacht Club; 9, Manhasset Bay Yacht Club; 16, Larchmont Yacht Club; 23, Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club; 30, New Rochelle Yacht Club.

July 2 or 3, American Yacht Club; 4, Larchmont Yacht Club and Hartford Yacht Club; 7, New Rochelle Yacht Club; 14, Riverside Yacht Club; 21, Larchmont Yacht Club and Hartford Yacht Club; 23, 25, 26, 27, and 28, Larchmont Yacht Club.

Aug. 4, Corinthian Yacht Club of Stamford and Horseshoe Harbor Yacht Club; 11, Huguenot Yacht Club and Bridgeport Yacht Club; 18, Stamford Yacht Club and Hartford Yacht Club; 25, American Yacht Club and Northport Yacht Club.

Sept. 1, Indian Harbor Yacht Club and Hartford Yacht Club; 3, Norwalk Yacht Club, Larchmont Yacht Club, and Sachem's Head Yacht Club; 8, Larchmont Yacht Club and Manhasset Bay Yacht Club; 15, Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club; 22, American Yacht Club.

NO GAME FOR THE GIANTS.

McGraw Anxious to Play, but Collegians Refused.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 28.—Rain which fell this forenoon, followed by disagreeably cold weather for ballplayers, caused the collegians' baseball team of this city to cancel their engagement with the Giants at 'Varsity Park, although Manager McGraw was anxious to play. The weather scared the amateurs off, but McGraw and his followers put in a busy afternoon.

Arrangements are being made for the move North, which begins on Friday night. The first stop is programmed for Louisville, where games will be played Saturday and Sunday. From Kentucky the Giants will wend their way toward the Polo Grounds, opening with Yale April 6.

Young Fitzgerald, the Sharon (Penn.) catcher, is regarded as a certainty for the position of aide to Catchers Bowerman and Bresnahan, and George Ferguson, in the opinion of those following the Giants' practice, has also nearly convinced McGraw that he is ripe for major league use. Of the new-comers who are under McGraw's eye little can be said for their chances for steady or random use at the Polo Grounds this year.

AMERICANS STOPPED AGAIN.

Rain Interferes with Game at Birmingham—Play at Atlanta Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 28.—Rain prevented the Greater New Yorks practicing this afternoon. If the clouds clear away there will be a game between the Americans and the Birminghams to-morrow afternoon. As Griffith has promised to work in the contest, and as Manager Vaughan will do all that he is able to defeat the "Old Fox," the game promises to be the most interesting of the Spring series.

Barney Oldfield, the noted automobilist, has extended an invitation to any one of the New Yorks to accompany him in his two-mile race against time on Friday evening. So far none of the ball players have accepted.

The New Yorks' last game here occurs on Saturday. On Sunday they leave for Atlanta, where they play on Monday. From Atlanta the will continue their trip homeward, playing games en route. Griffith is pleased with Birmingham, but regrets the rain that has hampered his work. The men are in excellent trim. Keefe, who has been a trifle ill, is convalescent.

Catcher Drill Goes to St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 28.—President Lennon of the St. Paul American Association Baseball Club yesterday purchased Catcher Lewis Drill from the Detroit American League Club. The consideration is said to be the largest ever paid by a minor league club for a player. Drill is a member of a St. Paul legal firm, and will retire from baseball at the end of the season.

Baseball Games Yesterday.

At Savannah, Ga.—Brooklyn, 7; Savannah, 4, (ten innings.)

At Annapolis—Midshipmen, 2; St. John's College of Annapolis, 2, (eleven innings.)

Easy Pool Victory for Wyley.

C. Wyley won the handicap pool match last night in the amateur tournament now in progress at the Broadway Academy. He met G. Ricker, both being at the 100 mark. Wyley played in high-class form, making a number of excellent runs, his best being 26, and he had two scratches. Ricker was only able to score 43, his best run being 21, and he had one scratch. The players to-night will be L. Davis (125) and C. Jackson, (90.)

Our Strength at $15

Here is the line of goods wherein most of all is shown the strength of the Brill organization.

Introductory words are unnecessary. We'll let the goods talk for us.

Louis XV. Fitted Back Spring Coats.

The smartest, dressiest Spring coat in years. Has created a furor among good dressers the length and breadth of the land such as has not existed before in years.

Most stores and most manufacturers were not prepared for the tremendous demand. Wholesalers fortunate enough to have a few garments on hand demand and get any price. Many retailers are asking prices out of all reason for quality of merchandise offered.

Here are fitted back Spring Coats, examples of high-grade journeyman tailoring, such as must be put in garments of this nature to insure perfect drape and correct effect. Standard quality materials of correct gray shades, in wale and herringbone weaves, correct for these garments, at a price that is only possible because months ago we anticipated a great demand........ $15

Men's Suits of strictly pure worsted and strictly all-wool high-class cassimere, presenting smart, neat and dressy shades of correct grays, in various weaves, and melton finished black Thibet suits.

Six different models, side vents, centre vents, extreme, heavy and medium lapels, full lined and ½ lined, in fact every new 1906 model. Trimmings are finest alpacas. Sizes range from 33 to 52.

The tailoring is journeyman work; the models are correct and present many new and distinctive "Brill" features in the way of lapels, sleeve finish, stitching, etc.......... $15

Silk-to-the-Edge Spring Coats of black Vicuna, Thibet and Oxford unfinished worsted, cut on new model ¾-length Chesterfield, slightly fitted back, deep vent and heavy lapels, lined throughout and to the edge with pure dye Merveilleux silk; finest journeyman tailoring; all sizes.......... $15
